PAY CITY HELP TOMORROW; NO SCHOOL FUNDS

Trustees Are Told to Raise Own Cash.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

There will be a pay day tomorrow for all city employés. The distribution of the pay checks may start this afternoon if City Controller Szymczak completes arrangements with the banks this morning.

The amount to be paid also depends upon the controller's negotiations with the banks. He has been promised at least $1,900,000, which is sufficient to pay the city employés for the last half of April, but he hopes to get enough for a full month's compensation for every city employé.

It was decided yesterday that none of the cash to be received today will be used to pay back salaries of school teachers. The school board, it was said, must do its own financing hereafter.

Mayor's Aids Meet.

This decision was reached at a meeting of officials placed in charge of city hall affairs by Mayor Cermak during his illness: Commissioner of Public Works Sprague, Controller Szymczak, Corporation Counsel Sexton and Ald. Sonnenschein, the mayor's secretary. Mr. Sexton, who is in Washington, was represented at yesterday's meeting by Assistant Corporation Counsel Joseph Grossman.

The decision was communicated to Attorneys L. J. Hassenauer, Thomas Mason, T. G. Essington and Wiley W. Mills, representing the teachers' organizations. They were asked to withdraw their protests against paying city employés unless school workers were also paid.

The school board earlier in the day passed a motion by Trustee Robert F. Carr requesting the city to distribute any money it obtained equitably among school as well as city employés and at the same time. Representatives of teachers' organizations present commended the action of the board.

A Loan in the Future.

President Lewis E. Myers was informed by city officials that the school trustees must do their own financing. Commissioner Sprague and Controller Szymczak told Mr. Myers that they believe the bankers would lend the schools cash in the near future if the board will "make it possible."

To make it possible, the law authorizing "not sufficient funds" checks must be nullified to make the school board tax anticipation warrants marketable. A suit against that law is pending in the state Supreme court. If the court upholds the act the board will have to ask Gov. Emmerson to call a special session of the legislature to pass remedial legislation. This would take time and cost the taxpayers a tidy sum.

In addition, according to the city officials, the school board must reduce its 1932 budget, and the Sargent committee on public expenditures also insists that the board reduce its tax levy by "$15,000,000 at least." The bankers have told the board they will be influenced largely by the Sargent committee's recommendation.

It Will Take Months.

At the rate the trustees have proceeded in the last week they will require months to trim a minimum of $15,000,000 from their expenditures. The city council has been trying since last April to force the school board to trim its tax levies by delaying approval of them.

The lawyers for the teachers pleaded at the meeting yesterday in Col. Sprague's office that if the council will pass the school tax levies, they will be able to sell school tax warrants. The city officials, acting in lieu of Mayor Cermak, therefore announced there is no reason for further delay in passing the school tax levies. That puts it up to the lawyers for the teachers to make good their forecast.

Review Mayor's Pay Efforts.

Commissioner Sprague and Controller Szymczak issued a statement reviewing Mayor Cermak's efforts to aid the school teachers and other school employés and summarizing the present situation.

The banks are willing to loan the city money for corporate purposes, but they cannot lend money to the school board in its present financial mix up, the statement said.

The teachers and the school trustees, however, are urging the city to borrow money from the banks and then loan it to the schools. The statement said that the city cannot borrow enough money to supply both the corporate and school needs.

"The city cannot continue to sacrifice its own employés, who have will-

HEAT TO STAY TODAY; COOLER DUE TOMORROW

Mercury Goes to 97° for Second Day.

Heat Widespread

Phoenix, Ariz.	110	El Paso, Tex.	100
Matteon, Ill.	107	La Crosse, Wis.	98
Minneapolis	102	Green Bay, Wis.	98
Raleigh, N. C.	102	Springfield, Ill.	98
St. Louis, Mo.	100	Evansville, Ind.	98

The torrid wave held Chicago and the central states in an unrelenting grip yesterday. Today promises to be just as warm, according to the forecaster, C. A. Donnel, with a bare possibility of rain and relief tonight or tomorrow morning.

"It's going to stay hot tomorrow," Mr. Donnel said last night. "The promise of a cooling thunderstorm has passed off. There may be slight showers Thursday evening or Friday morning, but it is doubtful. A shift of the wind to the northwest is indicated for Friday, but the relief it brings will not be pronounced."

Mercury Rises to 97 Degrees.

These doleful tidings came after an afternoon during which the July sun and a southwest wind, for the second consecutive day, pushed the mercury up to 97 degrees at 4 p. m. at the University of Chicago observatory, high above the Midway and in sight of the lake. For official purposes this was the hottest temperature of the day.

But in the federal building kiosk at Adams and Dearborn streets another government thermometer, shielded from the sun but subject to reflected heat from the baking pavements, registered 106 at 2:30 p. m.

The high temperatures held up into the night, giving promise of setting a record for the year for all night heat. After the 97 degree maximum at 4 and 5 p. m. the temperature dropped slowly. At 10 o'clock, when the last official reading was reported, the mercury stood at 89. An unofficial temperature reading taken at THE TRIBUNE Tower at 3 a. m. was 86 degrees.

Prolong Beach Hours.

Every beach along the lake front was congested yesterday, the crowds at the water line being so dense that guards thought a rule of standing room only might be in order. The water temperature was a tepid 75 degrees.

Aware of the stuffiness of apartments, south park police advanced the closing hour of the beaches from 10 p. m. to 11 o'clock. In the parks the closing rule was abrogated and patrolmen were instructed not to molest those who wished to sleep in parked cars or on the grass. A special police detail was assigned to patrol the parks all night to prevent nude bathing and maintain decorum.

Two bathers were drowned and a third died of a broken neck during the day. Earl Stokes, 24 years old, 242 East 16th street, Chicago Heights, caught cramps and sank in a pool in the forest preserve. Roberto Otebero, 40 years old, 8929 Buffalo avenue, was drowned in the lake off 100th street. Willis Arteban, 28 years old, 4101 South Richmond street, died in the Illinois Central hospital of a broken neck suffered last Saturday in a dive at the 64th street beach.

Alexander Stillman, son of the New York banker, James A. Stillman, and young Stillman's mother, Mrs. Fifi Stillman McCormick, wife of Fowler McCormick, were each injured slightly in separate airplane accidents last night.

Young Stillman, flying here from New York with a college chum to visit his mother and stepfather, at their home in Barrington, cracked up his De Haviland Moth plane in a swampy field near Gary when, after making a safe landing, he took off again, got lost in the air and was compelled to land a second time. His companion, Loring Swasie of Philadelphia, was not injured, having gone for help after the first landing.

Mother's Plane Also Crashes.

Mrs. McCormick and her husband, waiting at Sky Harbor airport for the arrival of her son, received news of the boy's mishap there and insisted on rushing by plane to his bedside. The plane on which she and Mr. McCormick flew to the aid of her son nosed over in a ditch near Ford airport at Lansing, leaving Mrs. McCormick with a painfully bruised arm. Her husband and the pilot were unhurt.

Stillman, who is 20 years old and a Harvard university student, took off with his chum from Roosevelt field, New York, at 9 a. m. yesterday, expecting to reach Sky Harbor before nightfall. As darkness fell they lost their bearings over Gary and Stillman brought the ship down in a baseball park near 38th street and Broadway without mishap.

Swasie took a taxicab for the Beacon airport two miles south of Gary to ask the attendants there to light the field to enable them to take off from the ball park and land there. Young Stillman, remaining in the plane, grew weary of the wait and decided to chance a takeoff.

Lost in Darkness; Crashes.

He took the ship aloft and, unable to get his bearings, decided to ground the plane again. In landing the ship catapulted on its back and Stillman climbed out with cuts on the bridge of his nose and on his scalp. Just where he crashed is not known. The Gary police were still hunting the wrecked plane this morning.

Alexander limped a mile across the field to a concrete highway, waiting at the roadside for a chance to hitch hike into Gary. A Gary contractor, Frank Essmeister, was driving by and, suspecting the young man to be a bandit, was about to keep on going when his wife saw Stillman's bleeding face and had him stop.

The couple drove Stillman to the Mercy hospital, where he was attended by Dr. Walter M. Behn, who pronounced his injuries not serious.

"He seemed a little dazed," Essmeister said after arriving at the hospital. "He said he had been in a crash and explained that the ship turned over. I had no idea who he was and didn't ask his name. You say he is young Stillman? Well, I've read a lot about the Stillmans. I'll drop over to the hospital in the morning and see how he is getting on."

Mother Charters Plane.

Alexander's mother and her husband, meanwhile, were at Sky Harbor airport, near Barrington, awaiting the arrival of Stillman's ship. A nurse, telephoning the McCormick home from the hospital, was switched to the airport, where Mrs. McCormick received the news. She commanded all speed be made to get her to the hospital.

Maj. Homer Berry, attaché of the airport, rolled out a Stinson plane. A call to the Gary airport disclosed there was no one there to turn on the lights. A route was charted to the Ford airport at Lansing, ten miles west of Gary, and Sky Harbor officials made arrangements to have a taxi meet the Stinson plane at the Ford field.

Mrs. McCormick and her husband climbed in. The trip was without incident until, nearing the field, Berry is said to have misjudged the distance. The plane came down in a ditch, bounded into an onion patch, and turned tail up.

Mrs. McCormick emerged with a severely bruised arm. Fowler McCormick and Berry were uninjured. They sped in the taxi to Mercy hospital.

Mrs. McCormick remained there over night with her arm in an ice pack. Dr. Behn said both his patients would probably be able to leave for Barrington today, where Mr. and Mrs. McCormick have leased the Frank S. Whiting home. Mrs. McCormick's first husband was James A. Stillman, from whom she was divorced somewhat over a year ago. On June 5 of last year she married Fowler McCormick, son of Harold F. and Edith Rockefeller McCormick of Chicago.

DICTATOR OUSTS CABINET AND POLICE HEADS

Von Papen Acts to Restore Order.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, July 20.—Goosestepping soldiers ruled Berlin and all of Prussia, Germany's biggest and most powerful state, tonight.

A military dictatorship, headed by Chancellor Franz von Papen and Gen. Kurt von Schleicher, minister of defense, was established this morning. The reichswehr (army) is in readiness should Prussia attempt to resist the orders of the dictators.

The entire Prussian cabinet was ousted. Soldiers occupied the ministry of state in Wilhelmstrasse. Machine guns were mounted at the doors of Chancellor von Papen's offices.

Berlin Police Chief Arrested.

Prussian officials tonight were relying on a decision by the Leipsig Supreme court rendering the government's actions unconstitutional. They telegraphed an appeal for a temporary injunction against the dictatorial decrees.

A detachment of reichswehr marched to Berlin police headquarters this afternoon and arrested Albert Grzesinski, president of the Prussian police, and his assistant, Bernhard Weiss, "for the purpose of protecting them."

For months Adolf Hitler's Fascist followers have been campaigning violently against Grzesinski and Weiss, asserting that they were more severe in their treatment of Hitlerites than in that of communists. Their arrest was celebrated as a Hitlerite victory.

Von Papen Named.

From his estate, Neudeck, in the heart of junker East Prussia, President Paul von Hindenburg appointed Von Papen as commissioner of Prussia through an emergency decree. In a second decree he made Von Schleicher military dictator through a proclamation of "exceptional status" for Berlin and the province of Brandenburg. This decree bristles with death threats and places all police power in the hands of military executives.

Von Papen's first moves were to oust Premier Otto Braun of Prussia and Karl Severing, Prussian minister of interior, and to install the mayor of Essen, Franz Bracht, as his representative in the Prussian ministry of interior.

Severing refused to leave his post, stating that he will withdraw only if force is used against him. He held that his ousting was unconstitutional. He declared himself fully able to keep law and order and pointed out that he has done so in stormier days.

"I Rely on German Justice."

After refusing to budge from his desk all day, Severing finally received a call from Von Papen's police chief, Melcher; his representative, Bracht, and a police captain. He repeated his declaration that the Von Papen action was unconstitutional, but agreed to leave his desk when the police captain threatened to use force.

"I rely on the justice of the German courts," he said as he walked out.

Especially dramatic today was the formal military arrest of Albert Grzesinski, president of Prussian police; Bernhard Weiss, vice president, and Col. Hugo Heimannsberg, commander of the Berlin police. At 5 o'clock this afternoon twelve soldiers under the direction of Capt. Hauffe drove up to the police headquarters in its old red brick citadel.

The soldiers were clad in service regalia—the familiar bucket shaped steel helmets, guns and bayonets, and as a final touch loaded hand grenades were slung from their belts. They dismounted from their automobile in the courtyard and parked their guns.

Arrested After Refusal to Quit.

Accompanying Kurt Melcher, Essen police chief, who was appointed to replace Grzesinski, and Herr Poten, who was to replace Col. Heimannsberg, the small party strode up a side stairs to the chambers of the chief police officers. The soldiers unclipped their hand grenades. Two were stationed as guards at the doors of the executive chambers.

Grzesinski was first asked if he would or would not relinquish his post of his own free will. Upon his refusal, the sentence of arrest was formally spoken to him. Weiss was next placed in the custody of the soldiers, and last, Col. Heimannsberg.

All three were conducted down the long corridors of police headquarters while from the open doors cheers and calls of sympathy were given by police officials sympathizing with them.

A QUIET STREET WANTS ITS LIGHTS 'NOT TOO BRIGHT'

The residents of a short and exclusive Evanston street — Sheridan place—who built their own street lighting system by private subscription and have maintained it for years, had a hearing yesterday in the court of County Judge J. D. Van Keuren. They objected to being included in a special assessment levy of more than $1,000,000 with which the city is building a new light system for the entire suburb.

Howard F. Bishop, an attorney, whose home is at 2881 Sheridan place, told Judge Van Keuren that he represented among others, A. F. Klink, 2885 Sheridan place, president and treasurer of the Jewell Electric Instrument company; Bernard J. Fallon, 2845 Sheridan place, vice president of the Chicago Rapid Transit company, and Fred W. Sargent, 2870 Sheridan place, president of the Chicago and North Western Railroad company.

His clients insist that the inclusion of their street in the general system would merely duplicate the lights which already exist. They oppose the increase of from 60 to 250 candlepower in each light, saying that the quiet of the exclusive neighborhood would be disturbed by more illumination. They urged that the present cement fixtures are more ornamental than the new iron posts. The hearing will continue today.

Mussolini Adds to Own Power; Ousts Grandi

BY DAVID DARRAH.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, July 20.—Premier Benito Mussolini ruled Italy with a revamped cabinet today. Once again he took personal charge of two more of the ministries after dismissing five ministers and 11 undersecretaries. He named three new collaborators.

The outstanding feature of the change was considered to be the departure of Dino Grandi as foreign minister and the comeback staged by Edmondo Rossoni, syndicalist and labor organizer, who becomes Mussolini's right hand man as undersecretary of the prime minister, which post was vacated by Francesco Giunta. Two of Rossoni's friends, Biagi and Postimilone, also are appointed to undersecretaryships in the ministry of corporations.

This development, in parliamentary terms, would probably be interpreted as a turn to the left in Fascist policy and as a reinforcement of Mussolini's announcement that he would "go toward the people."

Seeks More Personal Control.

The changes indicate, it is stated, that Mussolini wants personally to exercise a firmer guiding hand on his corporative system and on foreign affairs in view of the difficulties he anticipates in the future.

Grandi's dismissal was the big sensation of the cabinet shakeup. It is reported that Mussolini was displeased with his foreign minister for not having known sooner about the Franco-British entente negotiations at Lausanne as it left him in the position of not being aware of what really was taking place behind the scenes. It is said that he was charged with this by Mussolini. Grandi was offered and refused the London embassy, according to reports.

Grandi's job will be taken over by Fulvio Suvich, who, however, will have the rank only of undersecretary, Mussolini himself retaining the full portfolio. This may, perhaps, be taken as a warning that international conferences of the future will have a tougher Italian champion to deal with. Suvich is a Trieste lawyer who was undersecretary of finance once and has represented Italy at international gatherings.

New Finance Chief a Banker.

Giuseppe Bottai, who leaves the ministry of corporations, also will get an ambassadorial post, it is expected. Mussolini, who takes the corporations portfolio, will run it with the aid of Rossoni.

The other three outgoing ministers are Senator Antonio Mosconi, finance; Alfredo Rocco, justice; and Balbino Giuliano, education.

The new finance minister, Guido Jung, is a banker and financier. He has been acting as president of the national export institute. Jung was financial adviser to the Italian embassy in Washington some years ago.

Duce Directs Religious Affairs.

Pietro di Francisco, new minister of justice, is rector of Rome university, replacing Alfredo Rocco, one of Il Duce's oldest collaborators. In connection with this change of ministers, a significant change is also made in shifting the direction of religious cults, which formerly belonged to the ministry of justice, to the ministry of interior, which is run by Mussolini. This, besides being looked upon as a gesture to anti-clerical sentiment, is considered as meaning that he intends to keep a tight check on the relations of Italians with the Vatican state. The Vatican's reactions are awaited with interest by diplomats.

Francesco Ercole, new minister of education, is rector of Palermo university. He drew attention some weeks ago with a speech in the chamber interpolating Grandi on the Maltese question, in which he raised the question of whether England's traditional policy with regard to Italy was changing.

WALKER TO CALL ON 130,000 TO CUT PAY; HE'LL DO IT BY RADIO

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Mayor Walker, over the radio, will call upon 130,000 city employés Friday to cut their own salaries.

Only department heads will hear the mayor's appeal in person at the city hall. The rank and file will tune in their radios to hear the appeal for a 20 million cut in the city pay roll on the voluntary part of the employés. A state law prevents the city arbitrarily making the reduction.

Mayor Walker has discussed the matter with the budget commission, which has undertaken a study of the city's finances in the hope of discovering how the 1933 budget may be reduced by $75,000,000 to $100,000,000. The commission's first official report, which is signed by Peter Grimm, chairman of its board of trustees, shows the city pay roll totals $247,552,500 a year.

Deported Alien Will Get $18 Weekly Life Income

Cleveland, O., July 20.—(AP)—Charles Sivka, 39, deported as an alien, will receive a life income of $18 a week in United States money while living in his native Czechoslovakia. Immigration authorities charged Sivka, now en route to his native country, entered the United States illegally in 1927. When found, however, he was recovering from an accident suffered in an automobile body company plant, and the state compensation board awarded him the weekly compensation.

Next Sunday—
SUMMER FASHIONS from Paris

"Clothes worn by social headliners this summer are more thrilling than ever," reports Bettina Bedwell, Tribune fashion correspondent at Paris.

"Colors, vivid and striking prints, and odd, new materials are in the limelight. The daytime color scheme of black and white has declined."

Be sure to read all of this interesting, authoritative article in the Fashion Section of next Sunday's Tribune.

and transported to the Moabit jail, where they were booked as offenders against the latest Von Hindenburg emergency decree.

Tonight the three prisoners, realising that resistance was useless, signed a declaration that they would abstain from their official business and were released. They added a formal statement that they were acting under compulsion.

Von Papen, in an official announcement of his appointment as commissioner, charged that high Prussian officials had failed to do everything in their power to repress communists. He branded their criticism of his measures as deliberate undermining of state authority.

Fear Leaders Will Be Seized.

From these statements the Socialists infer that Von Papen will try to seize their leaders. They voiced indignation that Severing, who, they claim, has worked incessantly to undermine communism, should be turned out.

Von Papen's spokesman, Secretary of State Planck, tonight expressed hope that it would be possible to cancel military rule in Prussia very soon.

"We have taken over the power without serious conflict anywhere. As soon as Prussia succeeds in electing a parliamentary cabinet, the emergency rule will be withdrawn."

Von Papen hopes, it is learned, that the new measures will induce Centrists to make peace with the Hitlerites in Prussia and form a new government with them. As the party alignment stands now it is impossible to form a Prussian cabinet, 47 per cent of the votes being held by Hitlerites, and their allies, 37 per cent by Republicans, and 16 per cent, the balance of power, by communists.

Nazis Try to Delete Reds.

Hitlerites have tried to induce Von Papen to dissolve the communist party, but so far Von Papen has refused to comply. The Hitlerites are using communist riots as arguments in favor of dissolution, which would give the "national front" the majority it needs to form a Prussian parliamentary government.

To crush all attempts at an uprising in Berlin and surrounding Brandenburg the "exceptional status" decree by Von Hindenburg placed all power in the hands of Von Schleicher.

The decree suspends all of the bill of rights, including freedom of person, free expression of opinion, freedom of press and right of free assembly. The bill also permits violation of the sanctity of the mails, telegraph and telephones, and legalizes searches of homes without warrants, confiscation of property and restriction of property rights.

Executive power is vested in the war minister, who can delegate it to military commanders. The entire police force of Berlin and Brandenburg is under him.

Offenders Liable to Penalties.

Fines up to nearly $4,000 and jail sentences can be imposed on those who fail to obey orders of the military commanders. Whoever endangers lives or causes loss of life by disregarding the provisions of the emergency decree will be imprisoned or sentenced to death.

High treason, arson, explosions, flooding, destruction or partial crippling of railroads, and incitement to revolt will be punished by death. Extraordinary courts can be formed at the request of the military executive chiefs.

The Prussian state ministry was surrounded and occupied by reichswehr this noon and all officials of the press department were ordered to quit work or be ousted from their posts. Von Schleicher appointed Lieut. Gen. Gerd von Rundstedt as chief military executive.

Von Papen Bid Refused.

Von Papen invited the remaining ministers of Prussia [those other than Braun and Severing] to confer with him and Bracht this afternoon, but they declined the invitation, stating that Von Papen's actions were unconstitutional. They were then deposed.

Labor unions circulated handbills in Berlin tonight urging members "to keep discipline. Do not let yourself be drawn by wild slogans. Our leaders are meeting now. Their decisions will be made known tomorrow. You will have ample opportunity to answer the Von Papen government by seeing to it that the parties backing Von Papen suffer crushing defeat in the election on July 31."

Von Papen conferred with representatives of the states of Baden, Bavaria, Saxony, Thuringia, Hamburg, and other German states this morning, asserting that the measures he is taking in Prussia are not an infringement of Prussia's independence. Bavaria immediately filed a protest.

Adolf Hitler, who has been touring east Prussia, arrived in Berlin today and is conferring continuously with friends mutual to him and Von Papen. He is reported to be trying to bring pressure to bear on Von Papen to postpone the reichstag elections July 31.

ingly, loyally and quietly, without public demonstrations, accepted the severe reductions in their salaries and income, in their effort to aid the city government in every way possible to reduce expenses, at the cost of much suffering to themselves," the statement said. "It is, therefore, not surprising that such employés, almost to a unit, now are protesting against the city's past policy of using funds collected to pay their salaries for the purpose of paying board of education payrolls."

But the school teachers urge the city to utilize its aggregate of funds to purchase school tax warrants. That is impossible, according to the statement, because those funds have overdrafts now of $17,000,000. Thomas Marshall, attorney for City Treasurer Kearns has served notice "that no further overdrafts will be permitted on the city's aggregate of funds that will in any way increase his burden on his official bonds."

This "door is closed definitely," says the statement.

In a word the statement says that the only way out for the school board is to reduce its expenditures drastically and make its tax anticipation warrants marketable.

Bomb Damages Roof of West Side Movie Theater

A small bomb was exploded this morning on the roof of the Lindy movie theater, 1710 West Madison street. The blast tore a hole in the roof near the screen. The damage was less than $200. Police said the bomb might have been tossed from the Madison street station of the Humboldt Park elevated, which is about 100 feet west of the theater. Harry Nedo, 18 North Hermitage avenue, the owner, said he has had no labor or other troubles.

Lawyer Cites 1833 Statute to Escape Speed Charge

An Illinois statute passed in 1833, exempting judges, lawyers, clerks, and officers of a court from arrest while going to or coming from a court, was cited yesterday by Attorney S. L. August, 77 West Washington street, to win his freedom from a charge of speeding 51 miles an hour in Lincoln park. Municipal Judge Leon Edelman dismissed him when he cited the statute, stating that he was going to try a case before a Lyons justice of the peace.

BOOST IN SCHOOL SPENDING ASSAILED BY G. W. ROSSETTER

Expenditures of the Chicago public school system have shown an alarming increase in the last five years, especially in the proportion of expenditures for noninstructional purposes, George W. Rossetter, president of the Chicago Association of Commerce, declared yesterday.

In his statement he referred to the investigations recently completed by two committees of the association, headed by C. L. Rice and Sterling Morton, respectively. The Morton committee reported that, whereas New York and other large American cities apply 80 cents of their school tax dollar to actual education, Chicago uses only 70.6 per cent of its school funds for actual teaching expense. The committee reported that, while in 1925 noninstructional activities consumed 19.7 per cent of all salaries paid by the Chicago school board, they consumed 29.5 per cent in 1929.

"Salaries paid to noninstructional employés have been excessively high compared with those of teachers and principals and out of line when the values of these two types of personnel are compared on a service rendered basis," Mr. Rossetter said.

BABY IS BORN ON STREET CAR; CALL HER "CAROLINE"

M. W. Stenmeier, conductor on a southbound Damen avenue street car, yanked the bell cord sharply for a stop at Harrison street last night when Mrs. Sarah Johnson, 25 years old, 2359 Elston avenue, beckoned to him mutely. She whispered something.

The conductor nodded, then ordered all the other passengers off the car. The motorman was consulted, and he turned in a call to the Warren avenue police. Policemen Harry Bossen and John Skopect responded.

Meanwhile, the standing car tied up traffic for fifteen minutes. A crowd of 1,000 men, women, and children gathered around wondering about the reason for the blockade. The reason was a baby girl, born to Mrs. Johnson on the street car. A few minutes later Mrs. Johnson, who is colored, was taken with her child to the county hospital, only a few blocks away.

At the Warren avenue station Policemen Bossen and Skopect made a report of the case. Because the baby was born on a street car—and on a street car line—they recorded her name as "Caroline."

Woman Plunges to Death from Building in Loop

Plunging from a window on the thirteenth floor of the Pittsfield building, 55 East Washington street, last night, Mrs. Fannie Latter, 45 years old, 4947 North Whipple street, struck the grillwork above the seventh floor courtway and was instantly killed. Her husband, Louis, a tailor suffering from tuberculosis, said she had lost possession of her dress shop on Lawrence avenue recently and gone to work in a State street shop. They have two children.

Edward L. Ryerson Jr., chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, was endeavoring to sell $1,175,000 in tax warrants yesterday to obtain a stopgap fund for operation of relief stations in Chicago pending the anticipated $10,000,000 loan by the Reconstruction Finance corporation for Illinois relief work.

There is a faint chance that failure to dispose of the tax warrants, the last remaining of the $18,750,000 issue authorized by the special session of the legislature, may force closing of relief stations tomorrow. However, Mr. Ryerson said that he believed that if Illinois is assured the federal loan, creditors of the relief organization will allow their bills to run pending actual arrival of the money.

Hope for U. S. Loan.

"If we get the $10,000,000 asked of the R. F. C., we hope it will last until election time," Mr. Ryerson said. This is on the assumption that the money will be received by Aug. 1.

"After the election, we will start a campaign, similar to the drives of the last two years, to replenish the funds of the private charities of Chicago, the United Charities, Catholic Charities, Jewish Charities, and Salvation Army."

Last year pledges of $10,500,000 were received by the organization directed by Samuel Insull Jr., of which all but $170,000 have been collected. The 1930 drive raised $5,000,000.

The sale of the tax warrants on which Mr. Ryerson was working would supply funds to operate relief stations until after Aug. 1. At present the relief organization is spending about $100,000 a day in Cook county. Downstate counties have already been allocated funds to keep their activities running to Aug. 1.

Demand Special Privileges.

Police blamed an alleged demand by representatives of the Council of the Unemployed that its members be accorded special privileges by the relief organization for a threatened riot yesterday outside the Stamford Park relief station, 1701 String street.

Members of the council, police said, have communist affiliations and have been responsible for most of the unemployment disturbances recently. Mrs. Janet Schmitz, in charge of the Stamford Park station, said that they visited her several days ago to demand special privileges.

Crowd Breaks In Door.

Yesterday about 300 men and women gathered outside the station. Policeman Dominick Varsetto, assigned there, closed the door. Members of the group pounded upon it until they broke the glass, but no further damage was done. At that moment Lieut. Make Mills of the industrial squad and Capt. Phil Parodi of the Maxwell street station arrived with eight police squads.

Leaders of the crowd made soapbox speeches before the gathering dispersed. Lieut. Mills arrested five alleged ringleaders: Joseph Weber, 23 South Lincoln street; Joseph Shoster, no address; Edward Van Horn, 642 Liberty street; Joseph Bebko, 1717 West Madison street; and James Adams, no address.

Illinois Relief Loan Plea Filed; Urge Speed as Hoover Waits

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—The application of the state of Illinois for a $10,000,000 relief loan from the Reconstruction Finance corporation was formally filed by representatives of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission at the corporation's headquarters today.

Action on the application, however, was delayed by President Hoover's continued failure to sign the two billion 122 million dollar relief bill under which the loans to states for relief of destitution are authorized. It was intimated that the President was delaying until all, or at least most, of the applications for loans were in, so it might be determined if the total asked exceeded the sum appropriated.

Illinois Envoys Confident.

Officials of the Finance corporation could make no committment as to their attitude on the Illinois aplpication, but the state representatives left the corporation's headquarters, convinced that the Illinois loan would be one of the first, if not the first, to be acted upon after the President's signature had made the relief measure a law.

They likewise expressed the conviction that the corporation's action would be favorable.

The application, together with Gov. Emmerson's affidavit of need, required under the provisions of the bill, arrived by air mail in Washington this morning and was presented at noon to the secretary of the Reconstruction Finance corporation. As far as could be learned, it was the first application for a relief loan to be formally filed at the corporation, although Pennsylvania officials have written a letter to the corporation regarding a $45,000,000 loan for that state.

Three Return to Chicago.

Shortly after the application had been placed in the hands of the corporation, all except one of the Illinois relief delegation returned to Chicago. Those who left the city were William H. Sexton, Chicago corporation counsel, and head of the delegation, Dewitt Billman, who has represented Gov. Emmerson in the preliminary negotiations with the Finance corporation, and W. S. Reynolds of the Illinois emergency relief commission. C. P. Goodspeed, also of the Illinois relief commission, remained in the capital to keep in constant touch with developments at the Reconstruction corporation.

Mr. Sexton stated that his conversations with the board of directors of the corporation have convinced him that the board members are sympathetic toward Illinois' request for federal aid in relieving her destitute. He felt, Mr. Sexton said, that the action on the application would be favorable.

"We have done all we can," Mr. Sexton declared. "The application is in the hands of the corporation. I do not believe we have been precipitous in filing it so soon. The need is very great in Illinois, and I believe the members of the Reconstruction Board appreciate that fact and are sympathetic. We are caring for 160,000 families in Illinois—128,000 of them in Chicago—so you see the welfare of a great many people is involved in this loan."

The ten millions asked by the state at this time, Mr. Sexton said, will be sufficient to carry on the needed relief work in the state for three months. Gov. Emmerson, he said, had applied for only ten million out of a possible forty-five million at this time, in the hope that conditions at the end of the three months period would no longer require federal aid. The governor and the Illinois relief commission had felt, Mr. Sexton explained, that it would be more advisable to make loans as they were needed, rather than to plunge the state into a forty-five million dollar debt at the outset.

Construction Loans Later.

In view of the pressing need for immediate relief funds, Mr. Sexton stated the city of Chicago will not make application at this time for loans from the Reconstruction corporation for the construction of self-liquidating projects. The city intends, he said, to seek a number of such loans later on, but it was felt it would not be "reciprocating the courtesy extended representatives of Chicago and the state" to press for such loans while the relief loan is still before the corporation.

Mr. Sexton declined to disclose the projects for which construction loans are to be asked. He has not talked the situation over with Mayor Cermak, he said, and although he and Public Works Commissioner Sprague have outlined a tentative program, he preferred to withhold information regarding it until the mayor has been consulted.

Lewis Pleads for Speed.

"The construction loans," Mr. Sexton said, "are not pressing. There is no emergency with regard to them, and we feel that it would be better not to apply for them until the emergency relief loan has been disposed of and the Reconstruction corporation has had an opportunity to adjust itself to the new work of making loans for such purposes."

Earlier in the day Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], during a visit to the White House, called the attention of President Hoover to the filing of Illinois' application for relief funds and urged the President to expedite in whatever way possible an early action on the application. He also told Mr. Hoover that he believed the Chicago sanitary district should be granted a loan of $100,000,000 with which to carry out the sewage treatment program ordered by the Supreme court.

New York state, because of constitutional limitations, cannot borrow relief funds from the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Gov. Roosevelt said today. However, the corporation may be asked to handle the $20,000,000 relief bond issue expected to be voted next fall.

WOMAN EMPLOYE SUES COUNTY FOR HER BACK SALARY

County Clerk Sweitzer, County Treasurer McDonough, and the county board were made defendants in a petition for a writ of mandamus filed in the Circuit court yesterday by Mary E. Callahan, adult probation officer. She seeks to force the payment of her salary during the "payless vacation" period of last September and also demands the return of a 15 per cent cut which the board decreed for the period from Dec. 1 to March 13, when the 1932 budget was passed.

The petition alleges that the September payday had been provided for in the 1931 budget and therefore the board had not the power to withhold the salary. It also charged that the 1931 budget, in which her salary was set at $210, was in effect until the 1932 budget was passed. She charged that the board had no power to make their budget retroactive.

Circuit Judge Thomas Taylor Jr. recently ruled in favor of the county employés in a similar suit brought by a deputy sheriff. The county appealed his ruling and the case is pending in the Appellate court.

Fixes Hose to Exhaust Pipe; Ends Life in Car

Making a death chamber of his automobile a man believed to be Morey Davis, 30 years old, of 1834 Millard avenue, ended his life last night. He was found in his parked car in McClurg court, near Ontario street, dead of carbon monoxide poisoning. He had attached a rubber hose to the exhaust pipe, started the motor, and run the other end of the hose through a hole in the floor. Two letters were found, one asking that his friend, T. M. Goldman, 1837 Millard avenue, be notified.

How U. S. Agents Trapped Mr. Hennessy.

Two federal prohibition agents, Roy Budd and A. W. Turner, set out last Sunday to gather some evidence in the Fox Lake roadhouse of Edward Hennessy. They succeeded—but not without some difficulty. Turner was equipped with an evidence gathering device which had served him well on previous occasions. It consisted of a rubber hose, concealed in his sleeve, by which beer or hard liquor was siphoned into a bottle in his pocket.

The two agents entered the roadhouse, walked directly to the bar, and ordered beer. When it arrived Hennessy served them. Turner lowered his hose into the stein and got the evidence.

"A Mite Suspicious."

A man drinking at the bar near by looked at Turner a moment and departed, followed by Hennessy. Budd took advantage of the absence to rush behind the bar and fill a second bottle from the tap. Then Hennessy and his friend returned. The proprietor carried a .45 caliber pistol and the second man was waving a .38 revolver.

"We're a mite suspicious," Hennessy remarked. "There's been a lot of prohibition agents around, and we think we'll search you."

The siphon, pocket bottle, and second bottle of beer were taken by Hennessy and his friend. But they overlooked the agents' pistols.

Having regained the evidence, Hennessy's friend departed, and the proprietor invited the agents to join him in a drink. As he bent above the beer tap Turner and Budd drew their revolvers and forced him to raise his hands. Then, the agents said, the chief of police of Fox Lake appeared and they told him to take Hennessy into custody.

The Chief Leaves.

The dry agents made the arrest and Hennessy was arraigned yesterday before Commissioner Edwin K. Walker. He was held for hearing on July 26 in bond of $5,000. He is charged with possession of liquor, sale of liquor, maintaining a nuisance, diverting government property, and intent to commit an assault with a deadly weapon.

PRESIDENT ORDERS FIRST CONSOLIDATION TO SLASH EXPENSES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—Acting under the authority granted him by the recently enacted government economy bill, President Hoover today issued an executive order abolishing the radio division of the department of commerce and transferring its duties to the federal radio commission. It was the first consolidation of government agencies effected by the President since he was given such power under the economy measure.

In ordering the move the President authorized the radio commission to dismiss officers and other employes of the radio division which were not found indispensable. There are 190 employés of the radio division, the great majority of them being in the field. Only 31 are located in Washington.

The $490,000 appropriation made for the radio division in the 1933 department of commerce supply bill will be turned over to the radio commission, according to W. D. Terrell, director of the radio division. President Hoover directed the commission in his order to turn back to the treasury whatever portion of the appropriations might not be needed as a result of the consolidation.

The radio division was organized as a part of the commerce department in 1911. It has supervised all commercial and private radio stations, assigned call letters and examined and licensed operators.

'UNCLE SAM' MAY YET BE BRANDED ON CATTLE RANCH

Federal Inquiry Shows Trend of Bureaus.

BY ARTHUR M. EVANS.

Kansas City, Mo., July 20.—[Special.]—The government in the live stock business, headed towards a bureaucratic food monopoly and a price dictatorship, was the theme unfolded today in the hearings of the Shannon congressional inquiry into the operations of Uncle Sam as a business rival of his own taxpayers in private enterprise.

Experts of long standing in the live stock industry set forth that the federal farm board has cut away from the idea of coöperative marketing, to aid which it was established, and is seeking to set up the government as a monopolistic middleman between cattle raisers and consumers. In the surge of protests were represented both the live stock producers, who are reported boiling over in the southwest against the farm board's operations, and the commission trade in the market centers.

Price Already Affected.

Business houses of ancient establishment, they testified, have been knocked into the red by federal bureaucrats. Cattlemen were described as having the whip cracked over them by governmental agencies. Meantime the inroads of government into the cattle business have proved so costly that for the last ten years the producers' share of the dollar paid by the consumers of meats has been constantly declining. Where a decade ago the cattleman got 50 or 60 cents of the consumer's dollar he now gets less than 30 cents.

J. C. Swift, 20 years in the live stock industry in Kansas City; Theodore K. Lampe, 35 years in the business here; James Todd of Maple Hill, Kas., producer of blue ribbon stock, and John B. Gage, attorney for the Live Stock exchange, were the star witnesses.

In seeking to crowd the old private marketing agencies to the wall, the great weapon of the farm board subsidiaries was described as unlimited credit from the national treasury at low interest rates, about 2 per cent. Private enterprise, paying 6 to 8 per cent for money, it was pointed out, has a fat chance to compete against its governmental rival.

Where It's All One Sided.

"It's a sad spectacle," said Mr. Swift, "when a certain limited group can have unlimited access to the funds of the government, while other groups are denied access to the same funds, although they have helped pay for them in taxes.

"The funds of government today are available in unlimited amount to certain preferred live stock organizations who agree to transact their business through the preferred governmental agencies. The setup now carries 60 million dollars of capital from the government. It is growing by leaps and bounds, and it looks as if the financing of the live stock industry is drifting into governmental channels.

"Seventy per cent of the food crops are marketed through live stock. It is time for the government to stop, look and listen, for we are in danger."

The drift from the idea of farmer owned coöperatives in the farm marketing act was brought out in a report on the financing of the live stock agencies of the farm board. The board in 1930 set up the National Live Stock Marketing association, organized under the laws of Delaware. This corporation has its subsidiaries.

"Not Coöperative."

Actual contributions of members to the marketing association, it was set up, amounted to only $62,000. By 1931 the farm board had loaned it $4,196,000 on an actual capital investment of only $62,000 in cash. It had invested two million dollars in buying capital stock in subsidiary corporations and had outstanding loans of two millions to other corporations.

"In addition," said Mr. Gage, "credit associations had been established which were able to pyramid this capital to more than ten times its amount.

"Grasp this: On an investment of $62,000 in cash, a credit setup of 20 million dollars was established, the money coming from the government.

"In view of the extremely small amount of private investment, we say this is not an actual coöperative venture, but is government itself in business as a competitor of individuals in the cattle industry."

The working capital set up by the government for this government venture was declared to have been at an interest rate of less than 2 per cent. Thus federal tax money is being put into direct competition with established business at an interest charge which is impossible for those outside governmental setup to obtain.

The Kansas Livestock association was declared by cattle raiser Todd, to have been denied access to the federal funds, while Mr. Swift pointed out that the Farmers' Union here, one of the largest old line organizations of a coöperative nature, was not in favor with Washington and "is not participating in these extraordinary proceedings of government in live stock."

Handle Half of Business.

In St. Louis, the farm board agencies were said to handle 50 per cent of the live stock business, and in Kansas City not more than 10 per cent.

"Down here," remarked Mr. Swift, "we seem to have a good deal of the spirit of the founders of America still, but how long can the industry withstand the government as a business competitor?"

Businessmen laid before Congressman Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City, the chairman of the inquiry, declarations that they had been told by the farm board that the program was first to establish control of production, then control the flow to market; after that to dictate the price.

As to the growth of bureaucracy, the 28,000 employés of the department of agriculture were pointed to as working to establish a federal food dictatorship. One bulletin tells them how to get the business of the private firms. Signboards advise producers to sell to government agencies, while twenty-two commission agencies are doing business for the government, and any borrowers are forced to market through the parent company.

The private trade gets it going and coming, as narrated by Mr. Lampe. He declared that government interference with the live stock business through boards and commissions had now reached a double action stage.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, July 21.—[Thursday.]—Alarmed by the Japanese invasion of Jehol province, national government officials yesterday telegraphed Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, virtual Chinese dictator, to return to Nanking, the capital, immediately. Chiang has been in Hankow directing the anti-communist campaign.

Fighting began yesterday afternoon in Jehol. Five Japanese airplanes dropped thirty bombs on Chaoyang, in eastern Jehol, one striking a trench mortar factory and causing forty casualties. Another struck a brigade headquarters. Other bombs caused considerable damage to business houses and public buildings.

Chang Hsueh-liang, ousted Manchurian war lord, now in Peiping, received a dispatch from Tang You-ling, governor of Jehol, declaring that the Japanese have demanded that he recognize the Manchoukuo government and permit the Japanese to station a garrison in Jehol city, the provincial capital.

Says Move Planned Since March.

The official [Chinese] Kuo Min agency last night declared that "this military move has been planned by the Japanese general staff ever since the establishment of the puppet government in Manchuria last March. At that time Tang Yu-ling sent an agent to Mukden to make inquiry regarding his property upon which the Japanese demanded that he join the Manchoukuo government.

"Later on Tang refused to interfere with Chinese volunteers which had been passing through Jehol to Manchuria," the agency dispatch continued. "As a result the Japanese dispatched a staff officer, Col. Gonsiro Ishimoto, to Jehol city as a liason officer to press Tang further to join Manchcoukuo.

"A few days later the Japanese reported Ishimoto missing and the recent military activities followed."

Reports Clash Monday.

The Chinese report claimed that two Japanese battalions clashed with Chinese volunteers on last Monday at Chaoyang and that many villages in the vicinity were destroyed by Japanese artillery fire. Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander, is dispatching all available forces to Jehol, the report added.

The Chinese claim to have 20,000 volunteers on the eastern border of Jehol who are amply supplied with munitions.

Chang Hsueh-liang has called a military conference at Peiping and has sent urgent messages to Chiang Kai-shek and to Nanking.

CERMAK STILL UNDECIDED ON EUROPEAN TRIP

Mayor Cermak, convalescing in his summer home at Antioch, said last night that he does not feel well enough to decide where he will go to regain his health. If he should go to Europe the trip will be made upon the advice of his personal physician and son-in-law, Dr. Frank Jirka, who will accompany him.

"I feel about as well as could be expected under the circumstances," the mayor said over the telephone. "I know I need to go away for a while to recuperate my strength and whether I go to Europe depends upon how I feel and what my doctor says." A report prevailed in the city hall yesterday that the mayor would leave for Europe on Tuesday. Regarding that, he said, "If I don't feel better tomorrow than I do today, I won't go any place."

Mr. Cermak is on a strict diet and is resting virtually all of the time save for occasional motor boat rides. His serious illness kept him in St. Anthony's hospital for ten days following attacks of indigestion and general exhaustion after the Democratic national convention.

LETTER REVEALS WIDOW SLAIN IN HOME BY ROBBER

Body Discovered After Note to Neighbor.

A strange letter asking a neighbor to go to the aid of Mrs. Catherine Lentis of 1042 Wellington avenue, yesterday revealed the murder of the 67 year old widow during the robbery of her home by a former servant and her husband. A second letter also figured in the case.

Following an examination by a coroner's physician Lieut. James Moffat of the Sheffield avenue station announced that Mrs. Lentis had been strangled to death. She had also been struck on the mouth. Two teeth were knocked out.

Police immediately began a search for Jacob Fischer, 2217 Melrose street, and his wife, Catherine, who had been Mrs. Lentis' maid. Police said the pair had gone to the Lentis home, and after beating the widow, who was a cripple, had fled with several hundred dollars.

Written in German.

The letter which revealed the crime was addressed to Mrs. Marie Hoelscher, who lives at 1046 Wellington avenue, next door to the Lentis home. It was received yesterday morning. Written in German, it was translated as follows:

"Dr. Mrs. Hoelscher: Would you kindly have the goodness after receiving these lines to go to Mrs. Lentis. Since we needed money, and since we knew from experience that the old lady on account of her doubt in regard of assurance would not lend any we saw ourselves forced to make the loan against her will. We needed only $100, but for safety's sake we took more since the old lady would cause a rumpus by calling the police. It would be useless since after you receive this letter I will be out of reach of the American police. It will be very unpleasant for you, therefore we ask your pardon but finally we have a right to live and I waited and hungered long enough and lived without a wife. Respectfully yours, Jacob Fischer.

"P. S. Go to the basement door. It is open. Tell her please we are only making a loan."

Writes to Sister.

The second letter was received by Mrs. Marie Milde, 3439 North Paulina street, a sister of Mrs. Lentis, while Mrs. Milde was being questioned by Lieut. Moffat. It was written in English, apparently by a woman, and unsigned. It stated: "Please go and visit your sister at once. Mrs. Lentis is in no condition where she can open the door for you. The maid is no more there. The basement door is closed." This note was postmarked 9 a. m. Wednesday.

Police said neighbors recalled seeing Jacob Fischer go into the Hoelscher home at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night. They believe that the crime was committed shortly after that.

Mrs. Lentis was the widow of Dr. Nicholas Lentis, who died 35 years ago. Two years ago a fall injured her spine and she could walk only with the aid of crutches since then.

PAROLED CONVICT JAILED; ENDS ONE MAN CRIME WAVE

CRIMINAL COURT.
Joe Compea, Ajax Spikes, Thomas Lumpkins, and Willie Washington, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in Pontiac reformatory by Judge Rudolph Desort.

Carl Stepina, 25 years old, 1427 South 49th court, Cicero, a paroled convict, was held to the grand jury yesterday in bond of $25,000 by Judge John Sbarbaro on a charge of robbery with a gun. Stepina was captured last Friday night after he and a companion, who had escaped with the money, had robbed Herbert Strope, 4731 West Harrison street, of $180 in a garage at the rear of that address.

The court ruling yesterday climaxed ten days of criminal activity by Stepina, which began shortly before July 11, when he was arraigned in Judge Thomas A. Green's court on a disorderly conduct charge. He had been arrested with another ex-convict and a guilty verdict would have sent him back to prison as a parole violator. When Stepina testified he had served in the same division overseas with Judge Green and had been cited six times for bravery he was discharged.

He was next arrested for the Strope robbery and was lodged in the Fillmore street lockup. Tuesday night he sawed through the bars of his cell, but was seized just as he was about to escape.

Friends had called to see him, and when the lockup keeper went to call Stepina he found a dummy made of newspapers stuffed in Stepina's clothing. Stepina was found hiding behind lockers with only a wooden door barring freedom. He had three hack saw blades in his possession.

Stepina was paroled recently from Joliet penitentiary, where he was serving one year to life for bank robbery.

OFFER RONGETTI PAROLE; TRADE FOR DEPORTATION

Government officials have agreed to parole Dr. Amante Rongetti from Leavenworth penitentiary, where he is serving two years for violation of the anti-narcotic law, if he will accept immediate deportation to Italy. Mrs. Rongetti revealed the government offer yesterday, when she appeared in the Criminal court to ask that the state set aside a manslaughter sentence so Rongetti might be deported.

Prosecutor William A. Rittenhouse asked time to consider the matter, but said that he doubted if the request could be granted.

Baby Given Away by Dad to Be Sent to Charities

Buddy Farr, the 8 month old boy who was given away by his father, Fred Farr, on a St. Louis-Chicago motor bus, is to be sent to Kansas City for care by Catholic charities. Miss Bernadine Healy, social worker associated with St. Vincent's infant home and hospital, made this announcement yesterday. The father has been sent to the Lincoln Home for the Feeble-Minded by Judge Joseph Graber of the Domestic Relations court. The mother, Lola Mosley, is in St. Louis, Miss Healy said. It was said that two aunts of the baby in Oklahoma City, who offered to adopt Buddy, may be given the child by the Kansas City charities.

CORONER'S JURY HOLDS EIGHT IN JOB RIOT KILLING

One Faces Murder; Workmen Describe Battle.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ottawa, Ill., July 21 [Thursday].—A fourteen hour inquest into the labor riot at the Marseilles dam of the Illinois waterway Tuesday, in which one man was killed and sixteen others were wounded, ended this morning with James Collins, 38 years old, an Arizonian, being charged with murder and seven associates being held as accessories.

STATE'S ATTORNEY E. O. HANSON.

Collins was identified as the man who shot and killed Steve Sutton, husky labor agitator. He was pointed out by Joseph J. Shirley of Joliet, who said he saw Collins blaze away at the labor leader with a shotgun. Collins denied the accusation, but admitted firing a harmless shot. The seven men designated as accessories are Ralph Taylor, Lamar Partin, Joseph Murray, Olaf Hoff, Harry D. Paige, H. H. Staples, and Leo Dale.

150 Witnesses Called.

The verdict of the coroner's jury was returned at about 1:30 o'clock this morning. The inquest opened yesterday at 11 a. m.

State's Attorney R. O. Hanson had insisted that all those who admitted firing guns should be held on charges of attempted murder.

As the authorities labored to fix the responsibility for the shooting by questioning nearly 150 witnesses it was disclosed that Sutton, a powerful man, had been summoned from Joliet by the union organizers to "impress" the open shop workers. On the day before the riot he had punched and kicked several dam workers, it was charged. It was not chance that left him dying while others of the mob of 400 union men who advanced against the 130 workmen barricaded at the dam, escaped with minor wounds.

127 Held in Jail.

At Marseilles an uneasy quiet prevailed. Work was stopped on the dam across the Illinois river and guards were scattered about the streets. Chance of an immediate recurrence of hostilities was slander, however, as the 127 workmen arrested after the shooting Tuesday were still packed into the cells of the county jail at Ottawa. The temperature on the streets was in the high 90's.

Other developments yesterday included the discovery of 17 sticks of dynamite with caps attached near where the nonunionists had gathered. The dynamite had been made ready for emergency use if the attackers came too near, several witnesses admitted.

Pay Agitator $75 a Man.

The Marseilles outbreak brought to light the ambitious efforts of Tony Augustino, Joliet labor organizer, reputed to be connected with communistic organizations, to make himself master of all the laborers on the Illinois waterway. A waterway official revealed the state of affairs which was climaxed by Tuesday's tragic happenings.

Nearly a month ago a band of 500 men staged a demonstration against the 200 open shop workers on the Dresden island dam project and a laborers' union was organized. Augustino is said to receive $5 a week from each new union member's pay until $75 has been paid.

Two attempts were made to organize the 150 nonunion workers at the Brandon Roads project. Officials of the Arundel Construction company there, basing their petition upon the fact that the waterway is government property, sought and obtained the aid of federal marshals and the union organizers withdrew.

Similarly at Morris, Ill., where the waterway is being dredged and 150 open shop workers are employed, union men a month ago placed pickets and staged parades.

Official Is Called.

Among the witnesses was Augustino, the Joliet labor organizer, and Virgil Floyd, secretary-treasurer of the Teamsters and Chauffeurs' union of Joliet. He is an assistant to Augustino in the organization efforts.

Augustino, nattily attired in contrast to the denim clad other witnesses, told of his near-successful efforts in organizing the workers. Floyd admitted that he sent the union men to Marseilles preceding the fight.

After telling of his negotiations at the Ottawa airport with Augustino, Supt. Miller, a level eyed young man in blue shirt and khaki trousers, described how he was dragged from his automobile by the mob near the dam and manhandled.

"They knocked me down and I was unconscious for a few minutes," said Miller.

HOOSIER HOUSE VOTES SALE OF MEDICINAL RUM

Indianapolis, Ind., July 20.—[Special.]—The house today adopted an amendment to the bill drawn to repeal the state dry law which would authorize the sale of medicinal whisky. It was announced the amendment is intended to prevent intoxication in public and driving while drunk.

The amendment was offered by Representatives W. E. Stanton [Dem., Lake] and Fred A. Egan [Dem., Lake], leaders of the wet element, to meet objections raised by dry s against outright repeal of the bone dry law without any substitute. The amendment also reduces the prosecutor's pay for liquor law convictions from $25 to $5 and the fines for drunkenness from $10 to $100 to $1 to $50.

It provides for the sale of medicinal whisky by registered pharmacists on prescription of licensed physicians. It would permit possession of liquor where permitted by federal law.

GOV. ROOSEVELT'S CAMPAIGN PLANS TOLD BY FARLEY

Radio and Talkies to Play Important Roles.

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—The regular Democratic organization in each state will conduct its own campaign for the election of Gov. Franklin L. Roosevelt as President, National Chairman James A. Farley announced today in making public general outlines of the campaign setup.

This plan, held so successful in winning the nomination for Gov. Roosevelt, was prepared by Mr. Farley and Louis Howe, close personal adviser of the governor, and was approved by Mr. Roosevelt yesterday.

Mr. Farley announced that he had been requested to head the campaign committee, which will be distinct from the national committee.

The radio and talkies will also play an important part in the campaign, Mr. Farley said.

Plans Floating Committee.

The Roosevelt committee headquarters, which are to be located at the Hotel Biltmore about Aug. 1, will work through the party organizations in the several states. The national campaign will not function as such, except where the national committeeman is also the state boss.

There will be no overcrowded campaign committee to clog the national headquarters, it is indicated in Mr. Farley's statement. Instead there will be a floating committee, with groups of 10 or more national figures present at the national headquarters in rotation.

Mrs. Ross to Head Women.

In this way none of the Roosevelt leaders will be disappointed and representatives from all parts of the country will be able to give council and advice, and to act as liaison officers between the central committee and the various state organizations. No regional headquarters will be established.

Mr. Farley announced that former Gov. Nellie Taylor Ross of Wyoming will head the women's division. Charles Michelson, who was publicity director for the national committee during the Raskob-Shouse régime, will continue in that capacity.

KLEIN COMES OUT FOR $750,000,000 CUT IN U. S. COSTS

Julius Klein, one of the two Illinois Republican nominees for congressman at large, took a stand yesterday for reduced federal expenditures. He replied to a questionnaire sent out by George W. Rossetter, chairman of the Chicago Association of Commerce of the National Organization to Reduce Public Expenditures, explaining his attitude.

"As I emphasized in my primary campaign I am absolutely in favor of cutting federal expenditures by at least $750,000,000 and I shall work and vote in this direction if elected," said Klein. "I am in favor of reducing expenditures by consolidation of bureaus and eliminating all unnecessary expenditures along that line."

He also said that he would battle for prohibition repeal.

BONUS ARMY IS AGAIN URGED TO LEAVE CAPITAL

Police Seize Radicals After Clashes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—A day of near riots marked by no fewer than seven clashes between police and the radical left wing near the White House of the bonus expeditionary force was followed tonight by an urgent appeal from Brig. Gen. Pelham D. Glassford, superintendent of police, for leaders of all factions of the bonus army to remove their men from the capital.

Glassford's request was made in the form of letters sent by messenger to Walter W. Waters, commander of the main body of the bonus force, to John Pace, communist leader of the radical "left wing," who was arrested during the demonstrations today, and to Roy Robertson, leader of the California delegation, which has split from Waters' rule.

The communications called attention to the fact that congress had passed a general relief bill. Glassford pointed out that the District of Columbia does not participate in the relief provisions of the measure and suggested that the penniless veterans now in this city might find more relief in their home states.

Glassford's request followed violent disturbances this morning between the local police and the radical faction of the bonus army, which resulted from the veterans' efforts to picket the White House, and which finally culminated in the arrest of Pace.

White House Guarded.

The precautions taken at the White House during the day were the most extensive yet to be employed since the bonus army arrived here more than two months ago. The great iron gates were barred for the second time in two successive days. A cordon of more than a hundred special police were thrown about the grounds. Pedestrian and vehicular traffic was detoured from the streets adjoining the White House, and police cars loaded with tear gas bombs and machine guns cruised in the neighborhood.

Pace and a party of about 200 of his followers left their billet in defiance of police orders, with the avowed intention of picketing the White House. They got no nearer than two blocks of their destination. At seven points in the police barricade their attempts to gain the vicinity of the White House were repulsed.

Presence of R. O. T. C. Starts Rumor.

Finally Pace and two of his lieutenants were arrested for parading without a permit and disorderly conduct. And within an hour his followers had returned to their billets, hot and tired from their exertions under a 90 degree sun.

The presence of a large number of youths dressed in the khaki uniforms of the R. O. T. C., visiting the city from nearby Fort Humphreys, gave rise to repeated rumors that the city had been flooded with troops in anticipation of trouble.

Bride an Austrian

LONDON, July 20.—(AP)—Mrs. Marcus Daly, 33, widow of the son of the late American copper magnate, was married at the Prince's row registry office to George John Djamgaroff, a newspaper man. Among the guests were the Grand Duchess Cyril of Russia, who signed the register.

Mrs. Daly's husband died in November, 1930, while on a hunting trip in Africa, leaving an estate worth $7,000,000. She is the former Lele Von Harrenreich of Vienna, daughter of Gen. Alois Von Harrenreich, one of the officers of the court of Emperor Franz Josef of Austria. She is a sister-in-law of Mrs. James W. Gerard, wife of the former ambassador.

Mine Closes When Workers Refuse to Accept Pay Cut

Duquoin, Ill., July 20.—[Special.]—The Gayle strip mine, owned by the Peabody Coal Company of Chicago, which has been operating under the old scale pending adjustment of wage differences, suspended operation today, throwing seventy-five men out of work. The mine resumed operations a week ago when it appeared the new scale might be adopted. Action of miners in rejecting the proposed new scale caused the mine to close.

U. S. JUDGE REFUSES TO DISMISS SUIT AGAINST FEDERAL POWER BODY

Norfolk, Va., July 20.—(AP)—Without attempting to discuss the constitutionality of the federal water power act, Federal Judge Luther B. Way today overruled a motion by the federal power commission to dismiss a suit in which the Appalachian Electric Power company is asking for a order to restrain the commissioners from interfering with the construction and operation of a gigantic water power project on the New river.

The decision came after former Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, appearing for the power company, had assailed the power commission's order to the power company not to construct the New river plant without a major license from the commission.

Mr. Baker, addressing the court before a room crowded with lawyers who attended the case to hear him, prefaced his remarks on the constitutionality of the power commission's act by asserting that in the United States there had been three branches of government, the legislative, administrative, and judicial, but that there had crept into the American and English systems of government a fourth division, a body of administrative tribunals which are attempting to encroach upon the others and to regulate businesses entirely outside the scope of the federal government.

CHARGE 4 POLICE WITH MURDER IN BRUTALITY DEATH

9 Other Officers Held in 3d Degree Slaying.

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Warrants charging murder in the second degree were ordered against four members of the Nassau county police force today by Supreme Court Justice Meier Steinbrink, sitting at the Mineola courthouse as a committing magistrate in the John Doe inquiry into the "third degree" death of Hyman Stark, a prisoner, last Friday.

Lesser charges, ranging from that of being an accessory to murder in the second degree to that of failure to perform police duty, was filed against others of the 13 policemen suspended on Monday.

All were held in bail and turned over to Sheriff David Dows, who was ordered to "treat them exactly the same as any other prisoners."

Lieut. Jesse Mayforth.
Detective Leslie W. Pearsall.
Detective Harry Zander.
Detective Charles Wesser.

Tappen Held as an Accessory.

The one man held as an accessory to murder, and also on a charge of failure to perform his duty as a policeman, was Deputy Chief of Police Frank J. Tappen, the political "boss" of Oyster Bay, who was charged at Monday's hearing with having boasted of standing on Stark's neck and stomach and "rocking back and forth."

Seven men were charged with assault in the second degree. They are: Detectives Patrick Shanley, Marcel Chagenon, George Hutchinson, Thomas Bonanza, Joseph Hizenski, and Patrolmen Lannis Ray and Harold Liljegren.

All the twelve men named and one other, Patrolman Harold Breitenbacher, were also charged with conspiracy to obstruct justice. Breitenbacher is the only man held on only one charge.

Grand Jury Summoned.

The Nassau county July grand jury was summoned this afternoon by telegraph into special session tomorrow to consider the Stark case.

Stark died Friday night after being in the hands of the Nassau county police for eight hours and apparently undergoing a terrific third degree "sweating."

Stark and three fellow prisoners were held for the robbery and beating of the aged mother of Detective Hizenski, one of the men held for assault.

WHY THIS SENSATIONAL REDUCTION?

Why is America's luxury napkin now offered at less than the regular price of any other leading brand?

Modess is today the only sanitary napkin millions of particular women will use. Once you try it, you'll find—as millions have—that it is the softest, safest, most comfortable napkin made.

To get you to try it—Modess is now reduced. Quality stays the finest—but the price of Modess is now less than the regular price of any other established brand, 55% less than Modess cost last year. According to location and service, prices vary in different stores. But the most you should now pay for Modess anywhere is twenty-five cents.

Try Modess! See what a revelation it is! Different? You can't imagine how different till you wear it. What's the secret? . . . The Modess filler. Soft, fluffy, molding to the body the moment you put it on. No stiff layers like piles of paper. No compressed ends to reveal themselves under the sheerest dress. Modess can never be detected.

This same yielding, downy filler spells comfort too. Chafing is unheard of. "Packing" and stiffening are impossible. For even the gauze is treated on an entirely new principle.

Modess is more absorbent. And the specially-treated back repels moisture—gives you perfect peace and security. Modess is deodorized. Disposable. And surgically safe. Made by Johnson & Johnson, world specialists in surgical dressings.

Get Modess now—at this wonderful reduction. The more you buy, the more you save!

LOWEST PRICE! Price sanitary napkins now—at your drug or department store. Then be wise! Get a supply of Modess and save!

MOST ABSORBENT! A bottle of ink poured on Modess will be absorbed but won't come through the moisture-repellent back.

CAB CO. OFFICIAL ADMITS HOOKUP WITH FIRM IN N. Y.

Says Rates Can't Be Cut in Chicago.

Ben Samuels, vice president of the Yellow Cab company, admitted yesterday at a public hearing before a council subcommittee on the proposed taxicab monopoly ordinance that the Chicago company is under the same management as the Yellow Cab company of New York.

One of the charges on which the removal of James J. Walker, Tammany mayor of New York, is being sought is that he accepted securities of the Parmalee Transportation company, the corporation controlling and managing both the New York and Chicago Yellow Cab companies, and thereafter pushed the enactment in New York of a taxicab monopoly ordinance similar to that now sought in Chicago.

Bonds Named by Seabury.

Samuel Seabury, counsel of the legislative committee which investigated Mayor Walker's conduct, in his letter to Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt asking Mayor Walker's removal, phrased the charge thus:

"That the mayor accepted ten $1,000 Reliance Bronze and Steel corporation bonds, ten $1,000 Parmalee Transportation company bonds, and thirteen $13,000 Hygrade Food Products corporation bonds, said thirty-three bonds being of the aggregate value of approximately $26,000, from J. A. Sisto [a stock broker], who then had a large financial interest in bringing about a limitation of the number of taxicabs in New York City and who was desirous of inducing the mayor to bring about such a limitation of the number of said taxicabs; that thereafter the mayor actively sponsored and caused to be enacted legislation, the passage of which was, to his knowledge, desired by J. A. Sisto and by certain corporations, in the securities of which J. A. Sisto and Samuel Ungerleider & Co. were substantially interested.

On Payment to Sherwood.

"That at a time when Samuel Ungerleider & Co., in association with J. A. Sisto, was substantially interested in the future of Parmalee securities, the value of which would be increased by a limitation of the number of taxicabs operating in New York City, Samuel Ungerleider & Co. paid Russell T. Sherwood, the mayor's financial agent, $22,000 more than the market worth of shares of stock which Samuel Ungerleider & Co. purported to buy from Sherwood."

The hearing yesterday opened with a denial by Ald. John Toman [23d], chairman of one of the subcommittees which drafted the monopoly ordinance, that the measure is his baby. He headed a subcommittee on taxicabs of the local transportation committee. A similar subcommittee, headed by Ald. Thomas J. Terrell [29th] of the traffic and public safety committee, also worked on the ordinance.

"It's not my ordinance," declared Ald. Toman, who then added: "But I want to limit the number of taxicabs."

Questions Cab Official.

Ald. William A. Rowan [10th] questioned Vice President Samuels at the hearing.

"Can you reduce rates?" he asked.

"We can reduce rates and go into bankruptcy," replied Samuels. "That story in THE TRIBUNE the other day—[the story pointed out that Chicago cab rates are highest of those in 14 larger cities in the country]—whoever wrote it didn't have any knowledge of the subject.

"Under the same management Yellow of New York is losing money, while Yellow of Chicago is making money."

"I have understood that Yellow of Chicago pays a large sum of money—I have heard the figure of $75,000 a year—into Yellow of New York for the purpose of reducing profits," said Ald. Rowan.

Denies Excess Profit.

"That is not true," said Samuels. "There are no excess profits."

Parmalee Transportation company supervises operations of the various operating cab companies, including the two referred to by Ald. Rowan, through Transportation Management corporation, a wholly owned subsidiary.

Representatives of various civic associations, including the City club and downtown business associations, protested against the monopoly ordinance at the hearing.

William H. Dudley, appearing for the Van Buren Improvement association and the Greater Central District association, said: "These associations are opposed to a 20 year franchise, or to any franchise unless cab rates are lowered. We feel the Yellow Cab company has taken a high handed manner in parking where cabs don't belong. Cabs are monopolizing downtown streets."

William J. Merrick, of the South Central association, said that he had received a draft of the ordinance shortly before the meeting, and wished time to study it. When other representatives made similar requests, the hearing was continued until next Wednesday.

Priory Washington Irving Helped Build Burns

Ruins of Bolton priory at Pelham Manor, N. Y., as they appeared after furniture had been removed from the building. Flames destroyed the roof of the building, doing damage estimated at $100,000. ZIEGFELD AFFAIRS IN CHARGE OF BANKER DURING HIS ILLNESS

New York, July 20.—(AP)—A. C. Blumenthal, banker and movie magnate, assumed today temporary control of the business affairs of Florenz Ziegfeld, who is ill with pleurisy in a hospital in Los Angeles.

Blumenthal, close friend of the "Follies" producer for the last ten years, said he was asked to take control in a telegram from Ziegfeld and his wife, Billie Burke. He accepted "as any friend would do," he said, and will be in charge only until his friend is able to return to his desk.

Ziegfeld Improves Daily.

SHIP USED BY BYRD ARRIVES IN CITY TODAY

The City of New York, the vessel that carried Admiral Richard E. Byrd and his men to Little America for their flight to the south pole, will reach Chicago waters late this afternoon. The craft will be an exhibit in the World's Fair lagoon.

According to reports, the boat will reach Belmont harbor at 5 o'clock. Then will follow a reception by yachts, coast guard ships, motor boats, and other water craft. The City of New York will then proceed to its anchorage off 23d street.

The Byrd ship was built at Arendal, Norway, in 1886, and was used as a sealer for many years. The stout craft, 185 by 31 feet, was able to crush through polar ice so effectively that Capt. Amundsen recommended it to Admiral Byrd when the latter planned his polar dash.

MYSTERY MURDER WIDOW SUBMITS TO LIE DETECTOR

Coroner Frank J. Walsh yesterday resorted to the "lie detector" in an effort to solve the murder of George Carl, grocer at 2511 South Crawford avenue, whose fate had been foretold by a seeress. The examination was conducted in the rear of the grocery store where the man was slain.

After insisting upon the presence of their attorneys, the widow, Mrs. Vera Carl, and her brother, Ivan Grilec, 4345 West 25th street, submitted to "lie detector" tests conducted by Leonard Keeler of the Northwestern university crime laboratory and inventor of the machine.

When asked whether Ivan killed her husband, Mrs. Carl's reaction agitated the recording needle, and she exclaimed: "No! I'm positive of that. I'd hang before I'd say that."

Grilec said he did not know who was made the beneficiary of Carl's $5,000 life insurance policy, or whether the premiums were paid. He is being held for further investigation.

Capt. John Ptacek of the Lawndale police said he believed the shooting of Carl was "some sort of a family affair." Dr. Keeler will make his report to the coroner today.

BAR WANAMAKER DIVORCE; WIFE JUDGED INSANE

Norristown, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—A preliminary injunction restraining Capt. John Wanamaker Jr., Philadelphia, from getting a divorce in Reno, Nev., where he filed action June 24, was granted by Judge J. Ambler Williams in the Montgomery County court at Norristown today.

The order was made in behalf of Wanamaker's wife. Sept. 16 was fixed for a hearing on the injunction.

Wife Adjudged Insane.

Reno, Nev., July 20.—[Special.]—John Wanamaker Jr. filed suit for divorce here June 24, charging desertion. Accompanying the complaint was an affidavit alleging his wife, Mrs. Pauline Disston, was insane. She has never, however, been committed to any institution or adjudged insane officially. Today Judge Moran granted a petition that a guardian be appointed for Mrs. Wanamaker and it was granted, Lloyd V. Smith, Reno, attorney, being appointed.

3 Ex-Convicts Sentenced to Leavenworth Prison

Three ex-convicts were sentenced to 15 years each in Leavenworth penitentiary yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes for the robbery of three sub-postal stations. They are Roy Little, 33 years old, Welton Spark, 24, and Arthur Cherrington, 28. They were traced by money orders which they took in a robbery of the D. P. Sieberd store at 1151 West Garfield boulevard, and arrested in South Haven, Mich., where they cashed one of the orders.

YOUTH HELD TO GRAND JURY.

Edward Bickley, 21 years old, 2901 Edgewood avenue, was held to the grand jury in bonds of $90,000 yesterday by Judge John Sbarbaro on 13 charges of burglary in the Rogers Park district.

ACCUSE BERWYN COUNCILMEN IN BRIBE TRUE BILLS

Banker Is Charged with Paying Officials.

Three Berwyn aldermen, seven former aldermen, and a former city attorney of the suburb were reported named in a true bill voted yesterday which charges them with accepting $10,000 in bribes. Francis Karel, president of the closed First American National bank of Berwyn, was also reported named in a true bill charging that he paid the $10,000 bribes. He is under indictment in the federal court on a charge of embezzling the $10,000 from the bank funds.

The three aldermen reported named in the true bill are Albert Kuncl, 2805 South Ridgeland avenue; Joseph F. Cervenka, 6505 West 26th place, and James Blaha, 2509 Scoville avenue, all of Berwyn. The former aldermen are Andrew Anderson, 2625 East avenue; Benjamin Lejcar, 2643 Oak Park avenue; George Horvath, 1237 South Highland avenue; Henry Troula, 1926 Cuyler avenue; Charles Nadherny, 1826 Scoville avenue; Louis Smutny, 1534 Grove avenue, all of Berwyn, and Rife Bauder, now living in New York City. The former city attorney is Frank Posvic, 2111 South Euclid avenue.

Basis of True Bills.

The evidence which led to the true bills was gathered in an investigation of an ordinance adopted by the Berwyn council by which the city was bound to rent as a city hall, with the option of buying at an alleged exorbitant price, the closed First National bank of Berwyn.

The testimony given to the grand jury was presented by two other former aldermen of Berwyn, who turned state's evidence when they were granted immunity. They are Thomas F. Shea, 1934 South Oak Park avenue, and Charles F. Zack, both of Berwyn.

Attorney Byron C. Thorpe, former mayor of Berwyn, demanded the investigation, after hearing the statement of Karel, made at the time of his federal indictment, that he had used the money embezzled to pay bribes. The story, as presented to the grand jury by Assistant State's Attorneys Charles Lounsbury and Wilkie Ham, is as follows:

The First American National bank was a consolidation of three banks, one of which was the First National of Berwyn. At the time of the consolidation, certain properties could not be listed as assets in the new bank. They were turned over to trustees, who operated as the Berwyn Securities company. The title of the old First National was vested in Karel and two others as trustees.

Rental Deal Disclosed.

The city had occupied one part of the bank building and paid $100 a month for it. The new ordinance, allegedly planned by Karel and paid for with the $10,000, called for the city to pay $650 a month for the entire building. At the end of three years, the rent was to be raised $50 a year until it reached $750.

At the end of 10 years, under the new ordinance, the city was to be allowed to purchase the building for $127,000. Karel is said to have made his proposal to Zack and Shea, members of the Aldermanic building committee. They are said to have agreed and to have convinced the other aldermen named in the true bill. The ordinance was passed with but two dissenting votes, those of Richard Bonnomy and an alderman named Nelson. Zack and Shea are said to have confessed accepting $1,200 each, and said that the balance was split equally among the others.

Those reported named in the true bills are liable to a sentence of one to five years in prison and to fines of $5,000 each, if convicted.

BEG YOUR PARDON

In THE TRIBUNE on Sunday it was stated that "the January market in the Merchandise Mart will be the only furniture market in Chicago." This information was erroneous. It was stated yesterday by V. L. Alward, president of the American Furniture Mart, that if any wholesale furniture exhibitions are held anywhere next winter one will be held at the Furniture Mart, 666 Lake Shore drive, which houses the permanent exhibits of more than 500 furniture manufacturers, and is the country's largest exhibition building devoted exclusively to home furnishings.

ONLY FOUR DAYS LEFT TO PAY 1ST TAXINSTALLMENT

List of West Town Delinquents Given.

County Treasurer Joseph B. McDonough yesterday warned delinquent taxpayers that only four days remain on which payments can be made on the installment tax payment plan before judgment is to be asked against those who have not protected themselves by making a 25 per cent payment. The judgments are to be asked before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki Monday.

Payments will be accepted Monday at the treasurer's office. The office will remain open as long as taxpayers appear to make payments. The treasurer advised delinquents to pay today and tomorrow to avoid the last minute rush.

Another List Printed.

The subjoined list of properties on which, according to the records, less than half of the 1930 taxes have been paid is taken from volume No. 517, which covers the area in West town adjoining the loop. The names given are those to whom the tax bills are addressed and these persons or corporations, in many cases, are merely the agents of or the lessors to the persons who are actually liable for the bills.

The records give merely the item number and the legal description of the property taxed and the address of the person to whom the bill is sent. The address does not purport to be that of the property taxed. The list follows:

300 PERSONALTY TAX SUITS WILL BE FILED TODAY

First of 11,000 to Collect $12,000,000.

Special County Attorney Lee La Rochelle will file suits in the Circuit court today against 300 persons and corporations delinquent on 1930 personal property tax bills. The 300 suits represent more than $3,000,0000 in tax money due the county.

In the next few weeks Attorney La Rochelle will file 11,000 suits against taxpayers delinquent on personal property bills for 1930. Hearings on the suits will begin before Circuit Judge Craig A. Hood Aug. 1 and will continue until the last is heard. In the 11,000 suits Attorney La Rochelle will seek to collect more than $12,000,000 in taxes.

Legal contests are expected on many of the larger bills on the ground that the taxes are confiscatory. Among the large taxpayers against whom suits are to be filed today, according to Mr. La Rochelle, are:

Mr. La Rochelle was appointed by the county board to collect the delinquent personal property taxes through court action. The appointment has been approved by the Circuit court. He heads a staff of attorneys. His assistants are James J. McDermott, Samuel E. Block, and Elmer M. Walsh.

Turn Over Records

John M. Pratt, executive secretary of the Association of Real Estate Taxpayers of Illinois and its only salaried official, admitted at the state's attorney's office yesterday that his organization believed that 23 per cent of the 1928 and 1929 realty taxes were justly assessed.

His association has played a leading part in taking court action to invalidate the tax rolls for those years. His admission came during questioning by Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse and Grenville Beardsley, who are trying to determine if officials of the association are guilty of conspiracy for obstructing tax collections. They asked Pratt why the association did not urge its members to pay 23 per cent of their taxes. Pratt replied if they had done so, their lawsuits would have been jeopardized.

The executive secretary turned over his records to the prosecutors. These, it is expected, will show the association has taken in $500,000 in fees. James E. Bistor and Henry Hedberg, other officials of the association, will be questioned today.

PLAN NEW CODE TO REPLACE LAWS ON FORECLOSURE

Present Statutes Outworn, Judge Says.

A plan to change outgrown foreclosure laws, designed for farming communities and unworkable in the complicated system of modern real estate finance, is being prepared for submission to the state legislature at its next session by Superior Judge Denis E. Sullivan and the judicial advisory council.

With Justice Frederic De Young of the Illinois Supreme court, Circuit Judge Harry Fisher, and Attorneys Amos C. Miller and John J. Healy, Judge Sullivan is preparing to draft the outline of statutes intended to quicken the sluggish, cumbersome, and expensive wheels of chancery justice.

The primary purpose of the new statute will be to make real estate a more liquid asset by enabling an investor to acquire a marketable title on foreclosure within a reasonable length of time.

Present Foreclosure Law.

The present foreclosure laws provide that when a mortgage has been defaulted and the creditor has taken the matter to the courts the total indebtedness of the property owner is computed and then his holding is put up for sale, usually by a master in chancery. The property is sold for what it will bring and this sum is applied on the debt.

For one year after this is done, however, the original owner has the right to regain title by paying off the debt as fixed by the courts. If the owner is unable to redeem his holding, any of his creditors may obtain title to the property by paying the fixed indebtedness any time with a 15 month interval after the sale. An investor who purchased the property at the actual sale is given his money back, plus 5 per cent interest for the time during which he held title.

Law Ties Up Assets.

"No investor is going to bid at a foreclosure sale when he knows that he cannot get title, but must wait a year and is liable to have the property taken away from him by any creditor," said Judge Sullivan. "Consequently no one bids but the mortgagee, with the net result that this law keeps the property from being a liquid asset for 15 months.

"And usually when the mortgagee bids, his price is so low that it does not cover the amount of the mortgage. In that case the mortgagee comes into court and demands a deficiency judgment against the owner who thus loses not only his property but becomes liable for the balance of the debt not covered by the bid.

"The present law was intended to protect the agriculturists. If they have a bad crop one year this law gives them another year in which to raise a good harvest and redeem their land. It is a beneficient law for the farmer but the effect in Cook county is quite the opposite.

Redemptions Few, He Says.

"I presume that during the last 20 years as head of the chancery division of the Superior court in Cook county I have had to do with some 75,000 to 90,000 foreclosures. I think a fair estimate of the redemptions made in that period would not exceed 400, and all of these within the first 30 or 60 days after the sale."

The judge explained that the proposed statute would include a provision which would allow the owner to declare his intention of trying to make a redemption. In that case the judge hearing the case could allow him a stated period in which to carry this out. The exceptions in the usual run of foreclosure suits would not then govern the majority.

NEW YORK'S BRANCH OF ECONOMY LEAGUE PREPARES FOR ACTION

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—The New York state branch of the National Economy league, which has for its purpose the cutting down of governmental expenditures, beginning with the money expended for veterans' relief, was organized today.

The meeting was in preparation for the formal organization meeting of the national organization here next Tuesday, which during the three months of its existence has been working under a permanent organization headed by Archibald B. Roosevelt.

Evan Hollister of Buffalo was elected chairman of the state committee at today's meeting; Dr. James Alexander Miller of the Academy of Medicine, vice chairman; Arthur F. Cosby, secretary, and J. Pierre Bernard, treasurer.

COP SHOOTS BY ACCIDENT; HITS GUN STORE CLERK

Dr. Max Gecht, recent victim of a ransom kidnaping for which two men received life sentences, went to Von Lengerke & Antoine's store at 33 South Wabash avenue yesterday to buy a revolver. Walter Witert, 36 years old, a special policeman from Franklin Park, accompanied him. Charles Michael, 27 years old, 3041 Poplar avenue, a clerk, was showing Dr. Gecht some guns.

"This is the kind of gun you should buy," said Witert, drawing his own weapon. As he did so the revolver was discharged and a bullet pierced Michael's chin and left cheek.

Witert was taken to the Central police station, where he said he had accidentally pulled the trigger. Michaels' wound is not dangerous, police were advised.

IT HIT HIM AT 2 A.M.

TRIUMPHS IN MILEAGE TEST

CLAIMS give way to FACTS IN 2 million TIRE MILE TEST

Will I get the maximum number of miles for my dollar out of this or that tire? Professor Phil C. Huntly of the Armour Institute of Technology, a truth seeking scientist, set out to answer this and the many other questions that confront a motorist when he goes to buy tires.

Prof. Huntly disregarded advertising claims of manufacturers—he took 251 sizes and makes of tires, including all the leading brands and the famous ALLSTATE COMPANION TYPE tire and subjected them to a pitiless road test. Over 2,000,000 tire miles were driven over tougher roads than you would ever encounter. Then every tire was sent to an independent laboratory for complete chemical and physical analysis.

And here's the truth this fact-finding test revealed: THE ALLSTATE COMPANION TYPE TIRE was EQUAL to or BETTER IN QUALITY than any tire of similar construction and 25% CHEAPER in price!

Now you don't have to guess about tires! Look at the chart! Buy ALLSTATE COMPANION TYPE tires at new reduced prices and receive 1,000 tire miles for every 25c you spend! Your savings are guaranteed by Sears, Roebuck & Co., The World's Largest Store!

CAPITALIST CITY BELIES PROGRAM OF STATE IT RULES

Melbourne Sedate, Victoria a Socialist State.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.

MELBOURNE, Australia, July 1.—[By Mail.]—Although Melbourne long has been regarded as the capital of a socialist state—Victoria has the largest program of state conducted services in the world outside of Russia—the city looks like a great capitalist center. A mirror of its life today probably would reflect little of fundamental difference between the general conduct and welfare of its people and the inhabitants of Montreal or San Francisco.

It is midwinter here now. Cold gusts of rain sweep in from the southern ocean. Streets are crowded and brilliantly lighted. Collins street, with its smart shops and massive banks; Swanston street with its department stores, restaurants and theaters; Bourke street, with its cheap jack shops and gaudy show houses, are filled with damp, surging throngs, well clothed in woolen coats and vests, for wool is cheap here.

Cold Interiors a Tradition.

In the lower and middle class eating houses, where food is cheap and good, they do not bother to remove their overcoats, but sit at tabls muffled up. Rooms are about as cold as the street for the British tradition of cold interiors is faithfully carried out in Australia.

The windows of the bars, more discreet here than in Sydney, are filled with notices of cold weather drinks—coffee royal, hot gin and lemon, whisky slings.

The doors are closed at 6 o'clock, but a doorman takes his place at a back entrance to let in the late comers. The liquor laws are not obeyed here, and probably not anywhere else.

Sedate and Solid City.

Melbourne is a city of about a million. It is largely industrial and commercial, rising above flat land, like Chicago, but without the soaring architectural ambition of its rival, Sydney. The Victorian tradition seems to lie over its business center. It is sedate and solid.

Strange doctrine may be heard, people here are far from satisfied with the socialistic venture. Soap box orators are still here. Young intellectuals are still yearning for Eutopias, talking about the smug capitalism in Victoria, predicting "the revolution." Business men talk timidly about a return to private enterprise, the encouragement of private initiative, so much of which has been killed by the activities of the state in planning and developing the affairs of the people.

Square Meal a Day.

The state employs about 43,000 civil servants. There are about 46,000 unemployed on the dole. It is not much of a dole, about one square meal a day, but Victoria deprecates this as an unsatisfactory solution of the unemployment difficulty, and is seeking to create work.

The policy of the new conservative government, which has just replaced the Labor government, is to get away from the dole and to shut down as far as possible on state enterprises. The reason is largely financial, for Victoria has become a deficit government and until this turn was taken back toward solvency was facing general default and financial collapse.

Under the new premiership of Sir Stanley Argyle it has been the leader in advocacy of the "premier's plan" for an all-Australian effort at solvency. Despite its efforts, however, it has not been able to hold the deficit down this year to the level agreed to with the bankers. The political drain has been too much and old commitments too many, and taxation has reached a point of diminishing returns.

Here, as in other Australian states, the government is dominant in most of the common things that touch the life of the people, and the voice of the politicians is the great voice in the land.

Socialism Found Wanting.

There is no attempt to control opinion in this government and some rather surprising criticisms emanate from the "Labour club" of the university, which seems to be made up of a number of young men who are greatly enamored of the Russian soviet scheme of things. The following excerpt from a recent issue of a magazine issued by this club does not indicate that these students realize that they are living in a semi-Socialist state now, that many of the theories inherent in a completely socialized state have been tried here and found sadly wanting.

"The university is dead in respect to its ostensible function, which is pursuit of truth. Having excepted a few genuine scholars in the science schools, we hold that the university does not concern itself with seeking truth at all, but rather with establishing states of mind in the community which make it easier for the ruling class to rule. The university is dead, because it is cut off from the working class, which is the living heart of society."

A Specter Arises.

The ruling class in this government, until recently at least, was the Labor party. The arbitrary wage awards, the pension and insurance systems, the sustenance dole, conditions of labor, the great state enterprises which were supposed to benefit labor, all came from the moderate group of the Labor party and their influence on the older party leaders.

Now there has been an awakening and a stiffening on the part of the Conservative and Young Nationalist elements, frightened by the specter of revolution and chaos presented a few months ago by the Lang menace in New South Wales.

Forsake the dole, cut wages, reduce state expenditures in all directions, make it a crime to advocate communism or revolution—this is the tendency now, with Labor sitting on the side lines and scoffing from the opposition benches, even as the young gentlemen of the university scoff, and waiting for the new turn of the wheel.

On the Dole, Pay No Rent.

The basic wage here is the same as the federal rate—from $10 to $15 a week for ordinary labor, including the margins for those with more skill. It is an 8 hour day in this state, with a day and a half off each week.

The depression finds everybody turning to the state for relief. The farmer wants a way found to get higher prices. The laborer wants his wage protected. The business man wants his products protected and his taxes lowered. (The jobless want food.

"The state cannot let any one starve."

This has been the theory on which every one has accepted the situation. They do not trust private charity to do this task, although there are private charities at work and a beginning of scientific social service is noted.

Labor in Victoria proved quite conservative when Australia's hour of need came last year. When it was realized that the states and the nation faced default and dishonor before the world and the "premier's plan" of balancing the budgets was born, the Victorian premier, E. J. Hogan, fell in line, as did South Australia's Labor premier, L. L. Hill.

Partly Repudiates Plan.

Mr. Hogan, unfortunately, went to Europe at the wrong time and his deputy premier, Thomas Tunnicliffe, repudiated the plan in part, at the dictates of the militant minority of the Labor party. They would not stand for the reduction in wages, pensions and social services made necessary. The government went to the people on this and was defeated.

Meanwhile the Labor party is seeking to expel Mr. Hogan and other members of the late government who agreed to this plan of reduction. Australian labor en masse has a feeling that its standards have been swept aside by this plan, that some way must be found, regardless of economic laws and world conditions, to continue their old wage. The government is expected to work miracles.

DROWNED

EDGAR MURPHY.

Edgar Murphy, 7945 Drexel avenue, who was captain of the 1922 football team at Purdue university, was drowned early yesterday in the Illinois river at Morris, Ill.

He went to Morris last Saturday to work as an engineer with war department inspectors on construction work on the Illinois waterway. He was last seen at midnight Tuesday while working on the Dresden dam. The manner of Murphy's death is unknown, but is believed to have been accidental.

Murphy was 33 years old. He was graduated from Purdue in 1923 and held an engineer's degree. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. James S. Murphy.

DISARM PARLEY GETS DEATH WRIT; GIBSON HOPEFUL

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, July 20.—Delegates of 60 nations in the general commission of the disarmament conference sat tonight and listened to their "achievements" as they were set down in a declaration ending the first phase of the conference by the four whip powers—the United States, Britain, France, and Italy, after infinite labor.

The little fellows are to be given a chance tomorrow to air their views on the declaration they are supposed to sign, but they must be quick about it, President Arthur Henderson indicated, so that the conference can be adjourned by Saturday until some time next year.

Gibson Sees Step Ahead.

Ambassador Hugh S. Gibson, chief United States delegate, told the conference today that the declaration was not so bad. "Naturally," he said, "I should have preferred a resolution accepting still more definitely the details of President Hoover's plan, but the American delegation feels that the present resolution contains the maximum agreement which can now be achieved.

"The resolution represents the first step toward realistic disarmament, since it contains the engagement of a substantial reduction in a wide range of existing armaments. Hitherto all debates on this subject have been confined to methods. Now, at last, we are deciding what to do in the way of concrete measures of reduction and giving directions that methods be found for carrying out these measures."

Germans and Russians Angry.

However, the Russians and Germans were so angry tonight they said that instead of abstaining from voting they will vote against the resolution, which was intended to pass unanimously. They showed their anger when Henderson, after declaring that to save time there would be no general remarks, gave Gibson the floor.

Count Rudolf Nadolny, the German, rose to a point of order, his scarred face livid, and inquired with ominous politeness if nobody else would be permitted to do the same. Then Maxim Litvinov, Russian foreign commissar, rose and began to roar. He said the big powers had been doing all the talking for the last few weeks and asked why the others couldn't do a little now. Henderson, badly rumed, snapped back and said it was time for practical decisions. Gibson sought to postpone his talk until tomorrow, but Henderson bucked up and insisted he take the floor. There was applause from all but ten or twelve delegates.

NEWFOUNDLAND OUSTS BRITISH EXPERT WHO RULED ITS FINANCES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ST. JOHNS, Newfoundland, July 20.—A semi-official communique in the government press today states that Premier Frederick C. Alderdice's government has dispensed with the services of Sir Percy Thompson, British treasury expert, who was brought to Newfoundland last October by the Squires government to advise and recommend methods to solve the country's financial difficulties.

A syndicate of Canadian banks holds an agreement by which interest of $4,895,000 on loans must be provided for out of an estimated revenue of $10,800,000. It is recognized here that Thompson and his assistant, J. H. Penson, controller of the treasury, by a special act of the legislature, had virtual control of the colony's finances. R. J. Magor, Canadian business executive who undertook reorganization of railway and postal services and also as relief controller since December, has resigned.

During the fiscal year, with a population of 280,000, Newfoundland spent $1,370,000 on the dole. Labor conditions are bad, with no relief in sight. Unemployed are out of temper with the new government's failure to find means of employment and may get out of hand any day.

PRACTITIONER CHARGED WITH SELLING BABIES

State Bares Deals with Unwed Mothers.

H. E. Wells, a licensed osteopath practicing in a nine room suite at 6414 Cottage Grove avenue, was arrested by police from the state's attorney's office last night on charges of dealing in babies for profit. According to J. E. Edwards, chief inspector of the department of registration, Wells has been engaged in the traffic for the last eighteen months. He was released on a $500 bond and will appear in court 1128, city hall, this morning.

Edwards Tells System.

The osteopath's system, according to Inspector Edwards, was to insert an advertisement in a newspaper offering a good home and adopted parents for an unwanted infant. Such advertisements, Mr. Edwards said, brought scores of unwed mother to the osteopath's office.

Wells, the inspector said, would inform the mothers that a fee must be paid to cover "legal expenses" involved in the adoption. He was able to get about $100 from each mother, it is understood.

His next step, according to the charges, was to get in touch with one of the numerous childless women whom he knew to be eager to adopt a child. In the final transfer of the baby he was able to collect another $200 or $300, Mr. Edwards was informed.

Medical Charge Made.

The warrant, as issued by Assistant State's Attorney H. S. Weinberg, charged Wells with practicing medicine without a license. The investigators were unable immediately to discover a statute prohibiting the baby traffic, but said they had a complaint from Mrs. Vera Rhinhart of Danville that Wells had removed her tonsils a year ago.

However, Inspector Edwards said the complaint would be amended to charge Wells with falsifying public records. In several instances, the inspector said, Wells made out false birth certificates.

BOLIVIAN TROOPS SPEED TOWARD CHACO WAR AREA

2,000 Women Pledge Lives to Fatherland.

LA PAZ, Bolivia, July 20.—(AP)—Cheered by thousands of aroused Bolivians, a troop train left here today bound "for the Bolivian interior," within twelve hours of a reported Paraguayan attack on the Bolivian fort, Mariscal, in the long disputed Chaco territory.

Just after the train left, a military communique said that 500 Paraguayans had surrounded the fort on July 16, and that the Bolivians poured an intense artillery fire into the advancing ranks, "stopping their advance and causing the enemy heavy losses."

"Our troops resisted valiantly for a day and a half," the communique went on. "Our losses were 5 dead, 3 wounded and 2 missing. A Bolivian detachment is marching in good order toward the next fort."

2,000 Women Parade.

[It was not clear just what was meant here, but it would appear that the Bolivians had retreated from Marsical after a day and a half of fierce fighting.]

Two thousand women paraded to the presidential palace today, carrying banners and pledging their lives to the fatherland. Anarosa Tornero, principal of the La Paz normal school, exhorted the women from a palace balcony to be ready if necessary for Red Cross service "on the field of battle."

Protest meetings were reported today from various towns in the interior. They denounced "Paraguayan aggression." All the political parties and various commercial units united today in a common promise of help to the government in "this patriotic pass." Eduardo Lopez Romana, a Peruvian here, offered the government 5,000 sacks of sugar free of charge. The central bank made a spontaneous offer of a large loan.

Bolivian Version Denied.

ASUNCION, Paraguay, July 20.—(AP)—President Jose Guggiari tonight said he was informing Paraguayan legations abroad that the Bolivian version of the recent Santa Cruz, Chaco, fort incident was inaccurate.

[This would indicate that Fort Mariscal referred to in Bolivian dispatches, and Fort Carlos Antonio Lopez of Paraguayan dispatches were the same. The Paraguayans have claimed they recaptured the fort. The Bolivians were vague, but their dispatches indicated their forces retreated in orderly fashion after a severe battle.]

Patriotic demonstrations continued in the capitol tonight, although the city was comparatively quiet. There were intense demonstrations last night after the war ministry announced that Fort Pitiantua, also known as Fort Carlos Antonio Lopez, had been recaptured by Paraguayan troops.

The Whole Trend is toward a Milder Cigarette

Do you remember the days when you first started to smoke?

ALL CIGARETTES tasted somewhat alike to you, but after awhile you noticed that some cigarettes were decidedly stronger than others... Remember?

As smokers become more experienced, they demand milder cigarettes. Chesterfields are milder. There is no argument about that. Their mildness is a feature as distinctive as their package or their trade mark.

SEAWAY TREATY TO BE OPPOSED AS BAD BARGAIN

May Call Special Session to Act on Pact.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—Senators in close touch with St. Lawrence waterway treaty developments today declared that opposition to the pact will center around charges that it represents a bad bargain for the United States, deals unfairly with Chicago and Mississippi valley states, and plunges this country into new and unwarranted expenditures.

These charges, it was said, will be based on treaty terms which drastically limit the Chicago water diversion to a point which may wreck the Illinois waterway, which place the major burden of the cost of construction on the United States, and which bind this country to begin work at once on a project which will take at least 258 millions, and possibly as much as 500 millions out of a depleted federal treasury during the next seven or eight years.

Senator Lewis Protests.

Chicago and Mississippi valley states' opposition to the treaty as now written was carried straight to the White House today by Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.], a member of the senate foreign relations committee and an outspoken opponent of any move to limit the Chicago diversion to a figure which imperils the lakes to the gulf water route and the health of Chicago. After conversing with the President, Senator Lewis said that there was a possibility the President might call a special session of congress for September in the hope he could secure quick ratification of the treaty.

White House officials, while not commenting officially, said the President had no thought of calling a special session at that time.

In his talk with the President Senator Lewis stated that Chicago and the Mississippi valley states were unalterably opposed to the section of the treaty which limits the Chicago water diversion. Senator Lewis said the water diversion should never have been mentioned in the treaty, inasmuch as Lake Michigan is not a boundary water.

"The decree of the Supreme court in the Chicago drainage case," he stated, "allowed Chicago 1,500 cubic second feet of Lake Michigan water for drainage and sanitation. The court took the position that the question of navigation should be taken up at a later date by congress.

"The treaty, however, fixes a limit of 1,500 subic second feet for both navigation and sanitation, thus closing the door to congressional action later which might have brought relief to Chicago and the Mississippi and Illinois valleys."

The Illinois senator voiced objection to the construction of the waterway at this time because of the cost.

"This pact will not be ratified in its present form," he said. "Your grandchildren will never see that canal built."

REVEAL BAIN'S FIGHT TO KEEP UP BANK STOCKS

John Bain, former head of a chain of twelve banks, who is now on trial with his two sons and a son-in-law on charges of conspiracy to defraud depositors, tried in vain to keep up the value of his bank stocks, according to testimony given yesterday. As early as December, 1929, the stocks had declined in their listed value, but Bain urged the stockholders not to sell. The testimony was presented before Judge John M. O'Connor, who is hearing the case without a jury.

John McCrimmon, formerly personal auditor for John Bain, identified letters written by Bain. In June, 1930, one was sent to Bain's brokers asking them to discontinue publishing quotations on bank stocks because the holders wanted to sell and Bain was not ready to buy back the stocks.

Another letter read in evidence was sent to officers and directors of Bain's banks. They were directed to urge stockholders to retain the stock or else dispose of it quietly through the individual banks without involving the downtown office. If the banks had to buy the stock, the letter said, they were to borrow the money from other Bain banks.

SEND PROTEST TO HOOVER ON SEAWAY TREATY

A protest against the clause of the St. Lawrence seaway treaty with Canada restricting diversion from Lake Michigan at Chicago to 1,500 cubic second feet was sent to President Hoover yesterday by the Chicago Real Estate board.

After commending the President for his efforts to obtain an outlet to the sea through the St. Lawrence, the letter declared that any treaty providing for the construction of the waterway should contain no reference to diversion at Chicago.

"The Lake Michigan waters are not international, as this lake lies wholly within the United States and every stream that runs into Lake Michigan has its source and its entire course in the United States," said the letter of protest.

WRIT ISSUED TO HALT CANDIDACY OF JOS. F. HAAS

Superior Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday issued an injunction to restrain the canvassing board of the election commissioners from proclaiming the candidacy of Joseph F. Haas, 11318 South Michigan avenue, as one of a dozen Republican nominees for municipal judge at the coming election. The injunction was sought by Assistant State's Attorney Edgar B. Elder, a candidate for nomination at the April primary, who would win a place on the ticket if Haas were eliminated. Elder charged in his petition that Haas changed his name from Joseph F. Mall, only a short time before the primary.

N. Y. CHARGES HOOVER ACTION ON SEAWAY PACT BREAKS PLEDGE

Albany, N. Y., July 20.—(AP)—Gov. Roosevelt's power authority appointed to handle the development of the St. Lawrence river for electric power, declared in a communication to the governor today that President Hoover's refusal to discuss the treaty negotiations with Mr. Roosevelt was "based on an erroneous assumption."

The communication said the President's declaration that the New York governor would be heard after the treaty was signed was a "direct violation of repeated pledges of the state department."

Mr. Roosevelt smilingly referred to the power authority's document as a "very excellent letter," he would not comment further.

The power authority communication took issue with the President's statement of July 10 that treaty negotiations had been under way three years. It contends the negotiations really began last November.

The "erroneous assumption," which the power body claims existed in Mr. Hoover's recent reply to his rival for the presidency was "that you were seeking to interfere in the conduct of international negotiations."

DENIES CHARGES TAX REFUNDS GO TO AID CAMPAIGN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—If it were true—and it is not—that recent Republican campaigns have been financed by tax refunds, then it must be equally true that the Democrats have profited in the same fashion, Representative B. H. Snell [Rep., N. Y.], house Republican leader, declared today.

His statement was made in answer to a recent house speech by Representative John J. O'Connor [Dem., N. Y.], who charged that tax refund were parceled out to Republican campaign contributors or to corporations whose directors were generous Republicans.

According to this line of reasoning, Mr. Snell maintained, tax refunds had gone to help the campaigns of the Democratic candidate, Alfred E. Smith, the Democratic candidate, John W. Davis, and the present Democratic nominee, Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Gov. Roosevelt Director.

He pointed out that Gov. Roosevelt is a director of the Fidelity and Deposit company of Maryland, which received a $44,856.10 refund from the federal treasury, and of the International Germanic Trust company of New York, which received a $2,013.12 refund. The National Surety company of New York, Mr. Snell declared, of which former Gov. Smith is a director, has benefited by a tax refund of more than $45,000, while the firms of which Mr. Davis is a director have received refunds of nearly four millions.

John J. Raskob, benefactor in chief of the Democrats, had received a personal refund, Mr. Snell disclosed, of $3,361.90, and the corporations in which he is interested have received refunds totaling more than five millions. In like fashion, declared Mr. Snell, Pierre S. du Pont, who contributed $50,000 to the Democratic war chest in 1928, has seen the E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. receive a refund of $6,174,317.01; the Bankers' Trust company receive $29,165.70, and the Missouri Pacific Railroad company receive $18,000.

Other Democrats Listed.

As other Democratic contributors who have been recipients of tax refunds during the Republican regime Mr. Snell listed Bernard M. Baruch, Herbert H. Lehman, Frank L. Polk, former secretary of state; John D. Ryan, Charles H. Sabin, Rudolph Spreckles, Percy S. Straus, Paul M. Warburg, Gerard Swope, Cleveland E. Dodge, Charles S. Guggenheim, Arthur Curtiss James, Joseph P. Grace, Herman A. Metz, and Junius Parker, all of New York; Jesse Jones of Houston, Tex.; Harvey Couch of Arkansas, Samuel W. Fordyce of St. Louis, former Senator Gerry of Rhode Island, Howard Bruce of Baltimore, Ed. N. Hurley of Chicago, and many scores of others.

"The total refunds made to the corporations in which these gentlemen have interest mount into hundreds of millions of dollars," Mr. Snell concluded. "Of course, I do not believe a Republican administered treasury as wicked as Mr. O'Connor would have the country believe that our treasury is would have been so politically unwise as to take the public funds to furnish sinews of war to the enemy.

"I know that any contention that the Republican administered treasury has financed Democratic campaign funds through tax returns is absurd. But it is no more absurd than Mr. O'Connor's claim that by the same means it has financed Republican campaigns."

Recount Shows Church Ahead; 553 Disputed Votes

When the board of election commissioners completed the recount of the Republican primary vote of the Tenth congressional district yesterday Ralph E. Church, who was given the nomination last April, was ahead by 130 votes. Circuit Judge Thomas J. Lynch, who ordered the recount on the petition of James Simpson Jr., contestant for the nomination, must pass on 553 disputed ballots, however, which may change the result. In one precinct of Lake county there are 113 ballots marked for Church which are said to bear the initials of the election clerk instead of one of the election judges, as provided by law.

TIP IN ADVANCE LEADS TO RAID ON HUGE STILL

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Seven federal agents raided a liquor manufacturing warehouse in Brooklyn today and confiscated equipment and accessories valued at $200,000. They found a 20,000 gallon whisky still going at full blast and 21 vats filled with mash, the capacity of the vats varying from 5,000 to 20,000 gallons.

The building, a five story red brick structure, just off the Broadway shopping district, was a network of trapdoors and chutes and iron gradings constructed at heavy expense and designed to be concealed from the most intensive scrutiny. The chutes led down to a series of underground tunnels connecting with the cellars of adjoining apartment houses.

The raiding party comprised six department of justice agents and Special Investigator James C. Healy, all attached to the Brooklyn office of the prohibition administrator. It was understood that they received information of plans for the warehouse six months ago.

THESE PRICES PROVE you don't have to buy low quality tires to get LOW PRICE

HERE'S something to think about if you want the biggest money's worth of comfort, safety and trouble-free mileage when you buy tires.

You don't have to buy low quality tires to get low price.

You don't have to take second-choice tires to save money—because FIRST-CHOICE costs no more.

Here are prices that prove it. Read them and remember, they buy real Goodyears. Big, stout, husky, tough Supertwist balloons with the name Goodyear Speedway on the sidewall, and Goodyear materials through and through.

For 17 years, motorists have voted Goodyear Tires the best on the market—because they have bought more Goodyear Tires than any other kind. Because Goodyear makes millions more tires than any other rubber manufacturer, it stands to reason Goodyear can build them better and better.

Take another look at the prices here, and ask yourself: Why buy any second-choice tire when FIRST-CHOICE costs no more!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

MR. STIMSON MAKES AMENDS FOR GEORGE ROGERS CLARK.

Secretary Stimson of the state department has put his signature to the St. Lawrence seaway treaty with Canada, thereby providing for the southern extension of the international boundary line roughly from the forty-seventh to the forty-first parallel of latitude near the eighty-fifth meridian. The northern frontier is thus brought down some 350 miles and such important American settlements as Milwaukee Chicago, Gary, and Muskegon are put on the line. Chicago also is put on the spot.

It is the most important boundary change by diplomatic negotiation since Edward Everett persuaded the Tory party in Great Britain not to take a partisan advantage of Mr. Peel's Whig ministry in making a compromise in the Oregon case involving the Columbia river and the Strait of Juan de Fuca. The consideration there was the reluctance of humanity to permit a territorial controversy to evoke a war. The Americans of the day were chanting an ominous slogan of "Fifty-four-forty or fight."

A few years earlier Daniel Webster and Lord Ashburton had quieted another controversy which had threatened to precipitate the Aroostook war between Maine and New Brunswick. Reference is made to the earlier incidents involving boundary changes merely to give additional point to congratulations which may be extended Mr. Stimson. He has handled his public with greater suavity than any of the older statesmen and with no consequent public uproar has surrendered much more than they ever considered doing in compromise.

The territory into which Mr. Stimson's new map will run the Canadian line is well developed. It has flourishing cities and is the nucleus of transportation in the United States. Chicago is the most important American meeting place of rail and water transportation and is about to open communication with the Gulf of Mexico. Elihu Root, in dealing with Canada in treaty negotiations, refused to surrender the territory involved. His treaty, which Mr. Stimson's will supplant, reserved the waters of Lake Michigan exclusively to American jurisdiction, subject to the unqualified supervision of the American congress. Within a short while the temper of the times has changed. Mr. Stimson's treaty with Canada will recognize the international character of this American inland sea and give it over to treaty obligations.

Canada, even more than the American secretary of state, is to be congratulated. This is the most important extension of Canadian jurisdiction since the passing of the Quebec act in 1774, when the territory of Quebec was enlarged to contain the domain west of the mountains between the Ohio and the Mississippi rivers. A few years later this Canadian empire was lost to the successful arms of the Virginian, George Rogers Clark. Mr. Stimson makes amends for Clark's intrusion upon the scene. He has not returned all of it, but he has made a compensation which the Canadians must regard as handsome.

The access of the people of the region to the Gulf of Mexico, which has always been their dream, will be restricted by the Canadian rules against the use of the water at their door.

It seems not inappropriate that at this precise time there should be a disposition in Chicago to drop the name of Gen. Clark from the street originally named to keep his memory green and do him honor.

MICHIGAN CAN'T LET GO.

Gov. Brucker of Michigan in denying an application for the pardon of Fred Palm said that he regarded administrative interference with the punishment fixed by the courts as one of the contributing factors of lawlessness. His record thus far is clear. He has pardoned no one. He does not believe that the case of Palm is of such a nature as to force an exception to his rule. "My position is that I consider this to be an authority which should be exercised with great restraint and under conditions wherein the justice of the act is beyond dispute. I find no such conditions in the case of Mr. Palm."

In a state which has suffered as much as Illinois from the freeing of habitual criminals with political connections there can be no criticism of Gov. Brucker's position in general. The specific case admits at least a doubt. Palm's original sentence was for life. It was imposed when a very cruel group of prohibitionists had been given their way by Michigan. It has been modified and the Lansing barber can look forward to his eventual freedom. The half pint of gin which was found in his house, possession under the state law of the time constituting his fourth felony, will not keep him behind bars forever, but the amended sentence is from seven and a half to fifteen years.

The case boils down to the fact that this punishment is given the barber because a small bottle of gin was found in his house during his absence. Except for that the man would be free. His record all told, including the four counts which can be technically construed as felonies, reveals at the worst a small town ne'er-do-well. No one reasonably could anticipate any social injury from Palm that could not be expected from any other one in four of any community. The chances are all in favor of him supporting his children at his trade without offering any other disturbance to the public mind than often telling how and why the state locked him up. The precise thing which sent him up originally for life has been the common experience of half the citizens of Michigan, possession of an alcoholic drink.

Authority in Michigan, evidently beset by devils, has been unable to let go this victim of a now dead hysteria. Gov. Brucker's reasoning would be admirable and his position unassailable if it were not the misfortune of the state to have this particular exhibit of the witch hunt on its conscience.

NEW AND OLD STREET NAMES.

A proposal has been made to continue Broadway south from Diversey parkway to 138th street, using parts of Clark street, Archer avenue, Wentworth avenue, and Vincennes avenue, and calling the continuous street Broadway for its entire length.

It is argued on behalf of this plan that it would be of benefit to business, at least on the present Clark street, which, it is said, has an unsavory reputation.

The argument seems to us pretty thin. Ald. Coughlin pointed out that two of Chicago's largest banks, the federal building, the City club, several theaters, fine office buildings, and several leading hotels assert the respectability of Clark street in the central district, and he and others plead for the retention of the name of George Rogers Clark, who won this region from the British during the revolution, and is one of the great names of midwestern history. The unsavory memories of part of the street have been rapidly fading.

There were also objections to the substitution of Broadway for Wentworth and Vincennes avenues. One street commemorates one of our forceful and picturesque pioneers, Long John Wentworth, the other the trail to Old Vincennes.

We think it would be a pity to deprive any part of these streets of such distinctive names. We made a mistake in giving up the name and memories of old South Water street. To put a name like Broadway, commemorative only of New York and suggestive, at least to outsiders, as Ald. Rowan remarked, of "chorus girls and the like," seems to us a cheap thing to do, unworthy of Chicago's self-respect and regardless of an intelligent appreciation of the significance of old names. It is a parvenu proposal. Chicagoans of this generation should be more conscious of her gallant history, not less, and a ruthless sacrifice of her historic place names would do us little credit as a civilized community. We ought, on the contrary, to multiply our memorials of the past. There are many localities which figured in the annals of the city which could be commemorated by replacing meaningless street or place names by names which recall some event or person in our history. In any case let us not give up any more than we have.

AN OBNOXIOUS ORDINANCE.

The proposed new taxi ordinance shows no consideration of the interests of the public and should be promptly and decisively defeated. Chicago now pays the highest rates of the fourteen largest cities under such competitive conditions as exist. A city ordinance permits still higher, and the new ordinance, while it recognizes the present competitive rates, would add a charge of 10 cents per extra passenger. It is the lack of this extra charge that has reconciled the public to the high rate for the short haul.

While increasing the charge, the proposed ordinance restricts the number of taxis to 4,600, thus shutting off any chance of relief by the natural process of competition.

We do not favor rates or conditions which would not permit taxi drivers to make reasonable earnings and the companies a fair return on investment. But the proposed ordinance would produce a situation which the council should not permit. Its first duty is to protect the public from unreasonable exactions and to favor the maintenance of adequate facilities at fair rates.

Editorial of the Day

COOLIDGE REMINDS AMERICA.

[The State Journal, Lansing.]

Would Calvin Coolidge say what Collier's reported him as saying if he had chosen to run and was now running? The question affords an interesting bit of political speculation.

Mr. Coolidge takes the position that the government of the United States belongs to everybody and not merely to the rich. Here a great and resounding hurrah goes up!

But Mr. Coolidge continues. Since the government should belong to all of us, all of us and not merely the rich should pay for it. Here may follow a long silence. This putting of the matter is not so provocative of applause. "Soak the rich!" makes a much better device for provoking a loud cheer.

The idea expressed by Mr. Coolidge is that everybody should pay a small tax, each according to his means, as measured by his will for consumption. He would bring this about by a small direct tax. To this end he advocates a general sales tax.

This point of advocacy by Mr. Coolidge comes rather agreeably to the State Journal because it has on various occasions raised some of the considerations Mr. Coolidge raises. This paper has never proceeded to the point of advocacy of the plan involved, but it has said, "Here is a matter to be thought upon."

Excessive taxation of a comparatively small number of people is seen a grave threat to the whole structure of American democracy, according to Mr. Coolidge. "If we delegate the paying of our taxes we shall find that we have delegated the control of our government," is the way he puts his view of the situation. That is a contention that may have to be argued with some, but there are others who pretty clearly see the contention because of their own experience.

The point as to political responsibility is unmistakable. There has been a growing disposition to evade political responsibility. Nothing is clearer than that if the people of the United States are to control the government of the United States they must pay the taxes to support it. Power and responsibility cannot be separated.

It is argued that if the payment of taxes is pretty much shouldered off onto the select few that few will have to exploit the people below them to get the wherewithal. That would be a system of overlordship which was a great bane and system of distress in the past.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

THE STRANGE TALE OF THE TOURIST AND THE THUMB WAGGER.

A tourist speeding along a country highway met the thumb waggle from a man standing along the road and slowed up and took him in. As the car started on again the hitch hiker said:

"Do you know who I am?"

"Nope," said the autoist, "but I'll bite, who are you?"

"I am Alfonso," said the hitch hiker with pardonable pride "the late king of Spain."

"Glad to meetcha, Al," said the motorist.

"Such familiarity does not please us," said the late king, "and, furthermore, we do not care to have one of the common herd ride with us in the royal sedan. So turn the wheel over to our royal hands and get the hell out of the car and run along in the road in front of the coach and shout, 'Make way for the king! Make way for the king!'"

As his majesty produced a wicked looking gun at this point the tourist did as he was told and chased down the sun baked road shouting his message.

Alfonso drove along slowly behind him and waved the gun every time the tourist edged towards the side of the road looking for a chance to escape. King Alfonso's keeper finally arrived and took his majesty into custody and gave the motorist back his car.

"But," said the keeper, "I should really take you to the asylum, too. Any motorist that takes in a hitch hiker is just plain nertz."

WOMEN ARE LIKE THAT.

If we should meet again some day,
In places where we've been,
I'll close my heart with seven keys
Lest you should stumble in.
And I shall talk of cool white things,
Of fallen leaves and snow;
And if your love knocks at my heart
I'll never—never know!
But if I see you gaze outside,
As if to scan the view
That leads through thickly wooded hills
Where once I walked with you,
I hope you will not turn to see
How swift the changing skies
Can melt the winter of my words
To summer—in my eyes.

ROSA ZAGNONI MARINONI.

HOW THE WORLD CHANGES! Louis Maurer, once one of the chief artists of the Currier & Ives prints, dies at the age of one hundred, and he died happy because he lived to see his work, once regarded as cheap chromos, eagerly sought and hung in art galleries and the homes of connoisseurs. When Louis Maurer toiled over his little pictures the great and the rich and the elect of the earth called it awful tosh and would not let any of it come in to mar the gosh awful mid-Victorian things they had around the parlor, including the red plush album on the marble top center table and the sea shell collection on the cabinet in the corner. Now go and buy a Currier & Ives and you will have to pay right through the nose. Queer world this—oh, very!

CULTURAL NOTE FROM HOLLYWOOD: "Director Frank Borzage of Paramount studios says: 'For our next production I am hunting for beautiful legs, legs with a blonde temperament, if you know what I mean.'"

"HEY! HEYS FESTE, "will you respectable guys please lay off Norman Thomas and stop hurrahing for him? Look at the Democratic party. What did Alexander Hamilton and all the staid old Federalists think of the Democratic party? Just bums, that's all, a gang of bums that was going to wreck the country. But as the years went on the Democrats began to grow respectable. Now look at 'em. And the Republican party! What did the greater part of the country think of that when it was founded? Why, the old line Whigs thought anybody who called himself a Republican was a red handed assassin. Lincoln was elected the first time by only forty per cent of the popular vote, and what the nice people thought of those who voted for Abe was simply nobody's business. And look what happened to the Republican party. And now here you come a-tootin' and say it's getting almost respectable to vote for Norman Thomas. Lay off Norman Thomas now; you'll get him and the Socialist party respectable, and they'll go the same way as the Democrats and the Republicans. Lay off 'em now—I'm telling yuh."

ROSE PETAL RHYMES FOR ROBIN LEE

The long sweet tunnels
Of your honey colored curls
Are full of such bright angry bees!
You must not let their tangle
Make you cry,
You must not let their gossip
Make you sneeze!

They've probably lost their fairy keys
To some well locked
And treasured honey hoard,
And they're no doubt
In a buzzing swirl
Up and down each tunnel curl,

THE DOME SHAPED DOME.

The phrenologists were wrong, but they were not all wrong. They had a batting average of about 99 per cent strikeouts, and there were people who were willing to throw in the other 1 per cent for good measure. Changing the figure of speech, it is well to think twice before throwing in the tail with the hide. It has no value for the owner of the skin, and the man who keeps it may make a fly brush out of it.

Within a year this space has been occupied by an article in which we dealt with the significance of too much space between the eyes. This one deals with the dome-shaped head. The doctors have a name for it, but it is too difficult to remember.

Occasionally a head is so fashioned that a dome appears to sit on top of the head. In some instances the remainder of the head appears to be rounded in somewhat the regular way and then, usually at the back, the top segment of a dome seems to be set on. In a few instances the dome is set on the front of the head.

Certain savage races artificially press the head so as to get these dome effects. The forehead is apt to be strikingly straight, with no ridges, either perpendicular or slanting in a straight line. The eyes usually have a pop-eyed appearance.

The best opinion is that this unnatural shape of the skull arises from too early closure of the sutures and soft spots in the skull. However, some disagree with this opinion. The early closing of the sutures and soft spots puts the growing brain and its fluids under pressure. The shape of the skull depends on the place and the direction of the "give" under pressure. In the most typical cases a globular dome develops on top and behind, but the on-top and in-front cases are not rare. It is agreed that the base of the skull may be the growing point in rare cases, producing knobs that do not agree with the usual pattern. The eye socket is misshapen by the pressure. It is shallow and it may be pushed a little to one side. There may be something of a transverse valley somewhere around the nose region. Mothers are sometimes disturbed because the soft spot in the baby's head remains open too long. As a rule, when this occurs a reason can be found and, when found, it should be remedied.

There is a condition at the other end of the line. Just the reason for it we do not know, but there are certain results which follow it concerning which there is some information. The shallow eye socket generally causes the eye to be poor. The eyeball is liable to be short, causing longsightedness. Generally there is pressure on the optic nerve, and blindness due to optic atrophy may follow. The eyes are apt to cross, or to turn out, and there is likely to be nystagmus, or eye dancing. Other special senses, such as hearing, smell, and taste, are apt to be poor. A fair proportion of the people with these dome heads have poor minds and some are feeble-minded.

COLD SORES.

Mrs. A. E. M. writes: I would appreciate any information you can give me on cold sores. I have these every few weeks—sometimes on my mouth and other times around it. Spirits of camphor doesn't seem to help much if any. Is there anything which will aid in healing them? What can be causing their frequent appearance?

REPLY.

Cold sores around the lips belong in the shingles family. They result from infections, such as malaria, pneumonia, and the common cold. There is no better local application than a camphor ointment or cream. One containing carbolic acid or one having some menthol may be serviceable. The remedies of the salicylate family are helpful when taken internally. Usually it is not advisable to take them.

If a person is subject to crops of cold sores he should look for a cause and try to cure that. He may need some quinine or treatment of the sinuses; or a course of laxatives followed by a regulated diet or a trip to some springs with saline waters.

LIME FOR HAY FEVER.

L. M. R. writes:

1. Should hay fever sufferers increase the amount of lime taken into the system?
2. What foods are rich in lime?
3. Can lime be taken in medicinal form?
4. Would a growth in the nose bring on more severe attacks of hay fever, and would you advise removal of growth during first stages?
5. Is any progress being made toward compelling property owners to cut weeds on vacant lots?

REPLY.

1. Yes.
2. Milk, butter, cheese, and nuts.
3. Among the preparations that are used are chloride lactate and gluconate. Since so little is absorbed it is advisable to give it for a long time.
4. In a small proportion of cases there are conditions in the nose that need to be operated on.
5. Not much. The laws against weeds harmful to crops are pretty well enforced. Those against weeds harmful to people are not.

KEEP MOUTH CLEAN.

T. Y. writes: About four years ago I scraped my tongue with my teeth, leaving a small place near the center. It is tender and sore at times. Now there is a small, sunken place where it was scraped. Is it liable to get worse, and will the use of snuff keep it rare, or make it worse?

REPLY.

I cannot guess what your trouble is, but the general advice to those with chronic sore areas in the mouth is to quit tobacco and keep the mouth very clean.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JULY 21, 1916.

LONDON.—The second phase of the great Anglo-French offensive is developing. At every point in the Somme region the giant British and French guns are pouring shell into the German works, destroying barbed wire entanglements and wrecking trenches. French forces have captured the entire first German position extending from Estrees to the height of Vermandovillers. They also have taken on both sides of the river about 2,500 prisoners in today's engagements. The British on their front advanced about 1,000 yards north of the Bezantin-Longueval line while heavy fighting continues in the northern outskirts of Longueval village and at Delville farm. Near Armentieres the Australians on a two mile front undertook successfully the biggest raid of any war. They damaged the Germans heavily before retiring to their own positions.

LONDON.—A Rome dispatch says it is reported from Petrograd that a great battle is developing at Jablonitza, the results of which thus far have been favorable to the Russians. Jablonitza is in the Carpathians south of Kolonea, near the northern end of one of the mountain passes leading to Hungary. The second stage of the battle for the possession of Kovel is continuing with extreme violence.

BALTIMORE. — The activities of spies have delayed the departure of the German merchantman submarine Deutschland. A force of strangers is reported to have been keeping close tab on the boat's movements. Though ready to leave at any moment the Deutschland at midnight was riding sleepily in its berth.

MEXICO CITY.—Details of Mexico's proposals for a peaceful solution of difficulties existing with the United States were made public by the foreign office when a copy of the note sent to the Washington government on July 11 was given to the newspapers. The note suggests the naming of three commissioners by each government to meet at some neutral point to discuss the question of withdrawal of American troops now in Mexico and the drawing up of an agreement providing terms for the reciprocal crossing of the frontier by troops of either nation.

SAN ANTONIO. — The militiamen were paid off today and they came to town for "one royal time" and then there will be twenty-nine days of penury until the ghost walks again. All the cafés and the leading hotels did a big business.

CHICAGO.—Mrs. Nellie Bogle Sauer and Dr. Perry Roberts Chance combined their internationally romantic lives yesterday when they were married in Paris. She was formerly Miss Nellie Bogle, daughter of Walter S. Bogle, a coal dealer of Chicago. On July 27, 1904, she married Dr. H. Edward Sauer, a Chicago physician, instead of Fred E. Eldred, with whom she was to have gone to the altar on that day. In May, 1907, Mrs. Sauer divorced her husband. Dr. Chance is a dentist and hails from Dayton, O.

CHICAGO.—Col. Gurdon S. Hubbard, 78 years old, born in Chicago in 1838, once a wealthy real estate dealer and a prominent member of the Episcopal church, died a charity patient in St. Luke's hospital. In his prosperous days he was known for his benefactions and some of his old friends said he had been a liberal donor to St. Luke's hospital. When his fortune was gone he was accepted as a charity patient there.

YESTERDAY'S QUESTION.

How do we know the northern part of our continent was once covered by glacial ice?

REPLY.

In most land areas soil grades downward into subsoil which, in turn, grades into decayed bed rock and that into undecayed bed rock. Water, air, organisms, temperature changes, etc., operating from the surface through past ages, have decayed and disintegrated the bed rock. But the soil and subsoil of the northern half of North America rests directly on undecayed bed rock and contains bowlders of many different kinds, totally unlike the underlying solid rock. Many of these bowlders are curiously planed on one or more sides and marked by parallel grooves and scratches. The bed rock beneath this imported soil and subsoil is similarly scored, grooved and scratched, the abrasion marks pointing more nearly north-south than any other direction. Existing glaciers produce an exactly similar débris with exactly similar marking and abrade the underlying bed rock in the same way.

BROKEN SIDEWALK.

Chicago, July 13.—[Friend of the People.]—Cannot something be done to have the sidewalk in front of 6101 Carpenter street repaired? It is so broken up that walking over it is impossible. To whom should this be reported? A. W. C.

Report is made that the condition of sidewalk referred to is such that barricading is not necessary and filling would not be practical. The sidewalk division of the board of local improvements, which has jurisdiction has been requested to take necessary action to have condition corrected.

JOSEPH J. BUTLER,
Superintendent of Streets.

COURT WITNESS.

Chicago, July 19.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Being a witness in an accident case for the plaintiff I would like to know who pays for time lost from work. 2. Is there any set amount? 3. A subpoena was served on me on a Sunday by the plaintiff's attorney. It was marked "Copy" and bore no seal, although it had the signature of a court clerk. Is this a legal subpoena? 4. Could I refuse another one without a seal and if marked "Copy" and served by the attorney's clerk? 5. I also received $1.25 with this subpoena. J. M.

1. The party who calls the witness should pay the fee in the first instance. The witness fees are taxed against the losing party when the case is decided.
2. It is common practice here to give the witness $1 and mileage.
3. Yes, presumably the original bore the seal.
4. See No. 3.
5. This would be the ordinary practice.

DENIAL BY MISS HERSTEIN.

Chicago, July 17.—My attention has been called to the vituperative editorial entitled "Louder and Wilder" in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE of July 15. The news article of July 10 on which it was based I did not see at the time of its publication, because I had discontinued my subscription to THE TRIBUNE.

The statement of your reporter in that article, concerning my conversation with him, I hereby deny categorically, and I demand a retraction from you both of the statement and of the editorial based on it.

When, at his request, I handed THE TRIBUNE reporter a copy of the speech I had made I remarked that he would probably find the statistical data on the Chicago tax situation, with which it was principally concerned, rather boring; and that I had indulged in no political "mud slinging."

No accurate report of my remarks could possibly justify his statement that I "expressed regret" for not delivering "a more blistering indictment which would have got a better play in the paper," or your editorial comment that I "regretted not having made my talk hotter for a better newspaper display."

Please do not fail to retract both of these damaging attacks upon me.

LILLIAN HERSTEIN.

THE TRIBUNE reporter referred to by Miss Herstein writes the following:

Miss Herstein's demand for a retraction of statements concerning her in my article of July 10 and the editorial of July 15 is without justification, in my opinion.

I did not keep my notes, but I have a pretty clear recollection of the matter. The facts, as I recall them, are as follows:

Miss Herstein addressed the League for Independent Political Action. I did not hear her speech but, having learned it had to do with Chicago, asked her for a copy.

She brought it from her room and handed it to me. Then, as she truthfully states in the third paragraph of her letter, she remarked that it contained rather boring statistical data, adding that she had indulged in no mud slinging. We were running through the copy together.

"You might make something out of the last part," she remarked. "I charge the vested interests with trying to wreck the Chicago schools. I don't mention any names, but when I speak of vested interests I include THE TRIBUNE."

I told Miss Herstein that, had she mentioned THE TRIBUNE in her speech, I should have filed whatever she said for publication.

"I know you do that," she said. "I'm sorry I didn't make it a good blast because I know how you reporters are. The hotter the speech the better play it gets."

WALTER FITZMAURICE.

THERE SHE STANDS.

Chicago, July 7.—I am a native son of Boston, Mass., and am proud to come from a section of our country where character is the noblest trait of man. Friday evening when McAdoo and Garner switched their delegates over to Roosevelt remains one of the darkest spots in our political history. Our great New England states—Massachusetts, Connecticut, and Rhode Island, as well as New Jersey—stood by their guns and voted for Al Smith. This man returned home a beaten man instead of a conquering hero. It is certainly a good thing for our country that the revolutionary war was not fought in the west, because a dicker with King George would surely have followed and we would now be a colony of England.

PAUL LISTEMANN.

COME ONE, COME ALL.

Maywood, Ill., July 12.—Your willingness to print the long letter from Dr. Thomas in today's Voice of the People shows that THE TRIBUNE is still THE TRIBUNE and well worth reading by all regardless of their political beliefs.

W. M. OLSON.

THE OTHER SIDE IN WISCONSIN.

Chicago, July 15.—While THE TRIBUNE was "telling the truth" about Wisconsin it might have told about the reduction of 12½ per cent in telephone rates in Wisconsin. If THE TRIBUNE controlled Illinois administration were concerned with the people's welfare instead of fighting for special interests it could effect huge savings for the subscribers, at the same time preventing illegal profits by the telephone monopoly.

For you to say that "Kohler was lied out of office" does not make it so. If you want to tell the truth, why not explain that taxes increased under Kohler? Wisconsin has made the largest property tax reduction of any state in the Union this year with a reduction of 11.6, as compared with 9.4 in Illinois. (This does not include Cook county, as the Illinois reduction would probably have been wiped out if Cook county had been included.)

Do you think that by continually harping about conditions in Wisconsin you can distract people's attention from the rotten politics in Illinois, and that by presenting your own biased views of conditions in Russia and Australia you can convince the hungry in this country that they are not hungry?

Why this conspiracy of silence regarding our own sufferings under the radical capitalism that you uphold? You criticized Glenn Frank for defending his Christianity; now we have the pathetic picture of THE TRIBUNE telling its readers that it does not lie. That little explanation might not be amiss just now, when the radio gives the reading public an opportunity to check up on "the World's Greatest."

It has taken our master minds three years to decide that congress caused the depression. Where were they while congress was not in session? The best Mr. Hoover could do was to declare a moratorium to relieve suffering Europe. Would that have happened if congress had been in session?

The real anarchists in this country are those who want to rob the people of their only defense against greedy capitalists—their right to send men to congress who will look after their interests. Deprive them of that right, and we will have more of the system of plunder that THE TRIBUNE is fighting for. If we are to have confiscation, might it not as well be by the government as by men like Kreuger and our Wall street pool operators?

G. H. H.

"PERMISSIBLE" MODIFIED "OTHER BEVERAGES."

Ripon, Wis., July 15.—When you wrote your editorial recently criticizing Democrats for not voting for beer and accused them of violating their platform plank you evidently ignored the phrase "permissible under the constitution." As beer is intoxicating [at least any beer which will satisfy the wets] and as the constitution prohibits the "manufacture, sale, and transportation of intoxicants," Democrats who vote against beer are standing firmly on their platform and the constitution. Any member of either house of congress who votes for beer is violating his oath to support the constitution.

F. E. TINKHAM.

A NEW-TIME SALOON.

Chicago, July 7.—Most beer drinkers prefer that beverage on draft, so if it comes back let us have the new-time saloon and a new name for it. There should be an unobstructed view of the interior from the sidewalk, and screens, curtains, or booths should be prohibited; no partitions allowed except for kitchen purposes, and the use of tables and chairs encouraged to finally eliminate the bar. No brewer to own any building, lease, or fixtures where beer is sold, and penalty for violation to be loss of license to manufacture beer.

Many of the old-time saloons were as decently conducted as any other small retail stores. With the above rules those that were not decently conducted would have been out long before 1920.

They cheer!

The Chicago Tribune's responsibility to its readers is not limited to intelligent and complete presentation of the news. The value of its community contact is not measured alone by 85 years of fighting for public welfare.

The Tribune goes far beyond the printed page in its service to the public. It organizes and stages great public sports events, not only to entertain Chicago, but also to encourage and foster the standards of sportsmanship—to inspire American youth with the finest ideals, by popularizing attendance and participation in clean amateur competition.

The Tribune today has the largest sports program ever developed by any newspaper. Each year approximately 275,000 people participate in or attend sports events exclusively promoted by the Tribune. The Golden Gloves boxing tournaments command national and international interest. Over 125,000 people attended these amateur bouts last year. The second annual international bouts are being held July 26 at Soldiers' Field, Chicago. Tournament champions of Germany are pitted against the Chicagoland team. Like the France-U. S. Golden Gloves bouts last year, this event is of major importance in international competition.

The annual Tribune Water Carnival is another bright spot in Chicago life that plays to a capacity audience of 50,000 and upwards. It is not unusual for 5,000 contestants to participate in the Silver Skates Derby, another Tribune promotion, and for 60,000 spectators to view the spectacle. The Tribune Annual Ski Meet attracts equally large crowds.

These and other mighty sports dramas help make the Tribune more than the first-choice newspaper of the entire Chicago area. It is a neighbor and a friend—a host and a community leader, serving Chicago, entertaining Chicago, and embracing the whole picture of Chicago life so completely that it cannot be separated from any effort to win this territory's trade or favor. Tribune representatives will be pleased to tell you how the experiences of such thoughtful and outstanding advertisers as Lever Bros., General Foods, Procter & Gamble, and Kellogg have helped establish this recognized axiom of business:

"IF YOU'RE NOT IN THE TRIBUNE, YOU'RE NOT IN CHICAGO"

YOUNG MOTHER AND BOY KILLED IN AUTO CRASH

Four Others Hurt in Oak Lawn Collision.

A boy and a young mother were killed late last night in a crash of a passenger car and a truck at 95th street and Cicero avenue, Oak Lawn. Two women and two children were hurt. Those killed were Mrs. Ruth Downs, 20 years old, of 5236 Emerald avenue, and Thomas Greer, 5, of 5238 South Union avenue.

Mrs. Downs and the boy were riding east in 95th street in an automobile driven by John Greer, the boy's father. Other passengers were Mrs. Martha Greer, 37, Greer's wife; Mrs. Clara Dempsey, 46, of 5236 Union avenue, her daughter, Margaret, 5, and Mrs. Downs' infant daughter, Elaine, four months old. At Cicero avenue Greer's car hit a north bound truck and trailer operated by Marcel Boone of 1526 West Congress street and overturned. The injured were taken to the Little Company of Mary hospital. Later Mrs. Greer went to the German Deaconess hospital. None of the injured are expected to die.

Girl Killed in Crash.

A young woman was instantly killed and four other persons injured last evening when the roadster in which they were driving to the Diversey beach collided with a street car and overturned at Cortland street and Ashland avenue.

The dead girl was Miss Vivian Manetti, 19 years old, 819 North Drake avenue. The injured are Theodore Kern, 20 years old, 926 North Ridgeway avenue; Miss Adeline Picerno, 27 years old, 822 North Drake avenue; Mrs. Elizabeth Perroine, 28 years old, 928 North Ridgeway avenue, and her son, James, 4 years old. All were taken to St. Mary's hospital. Mrs. Perroine's daughter, Adeline, 11, escaped unhurt.

The accident occurred when the roadster turned from Ashland avenue into Cortland street, where a west bound Armitage avenue street car was approaching the intersection. The machine sideswiped the surface car and then upset

La Grange Man Killed.

Lester Hubbard, 34 years old, 628 South Waiola avenue, La Grange, was burned to death near Ossining, N. Y., Tuesday evening when his motor van crashed into a stone wall. The gasoline tank split and flames immediately enveloped the machine. Ralph Wolf, 2021 South 18th street, Maywood, was thrown clear and escaped with bruises.

LORD PLUMER, WAR HERO, IS BURIED IN WESTMINSTER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, July 20.—In the first military interment in Westminster abbey since the burial of the unknown warrior on Nov. 11, 1920, the ashes of Field Marshal Lord Plumer, commander of the British second army which checked the German forces at Ypres during the war, were laid to rest today. Much military pomp attended the ceremony. It was the first burial in the abbey of one of Britain's soldier leaders in fifty years.

Funeral services for the general who never lost a battle were conducted by the archbishop of Canterbury. The ashes were placed under a brass plate on the abbey floor near the burial place of the unknown soldier.

Riderless Charger Follows.

King George's dragoon guards, life guards and six battalions of the brigade of guards lined the historic route from Wellington barracks. The remains were carried on a caisson which was followed by Lord Plumer's charger, riderless. The field marshal's plumed hat and his baton rested on the coffin, which was covered by the same flag used at the funeral of Earl Haig.

The massed bands of the brigade guards, playing a funeral march, led one of the most brilliant displays of military pomp London has seen in years.

Allenby Is Pallbearer.

The duke of Connaught, the king's uncle and senior field marshal of Great Britain, represented King George. Pallbearers included four marshals, among them Viscount Allenby, all clad in resplendent uniforms, with their breasts covered with decorations and orders won in many British campaigns.

The spectators stood ten deep in the streets. Most of them were veterans wearing medals. Several were overcome by the intense heat. Two guardsmen standing under two pound bearskins fainted.

Senior in the now abolished rank in the navy, Commodore Bull was stricken shortly before dinner time at his home, became unconscious, and died shortly afterward.

The youngest of all midshipmen to have been graduated from the Naval academy at Annapolis—he was graduated at 17 as a member of the class of 1870—Commodore Bull retired 25 years ago.

He had a varied career in a rapidly changing navy, which was young in steam and barely aware of heavy armor when he entered the service. He served through the Spanish-American war in the blockade off Havana and later saw service in the Philippines.

Ruth Blodgett Writes a New Story of Sea

'Home Is the Sailor' Uses Stock Settings.

BY FANNY BUTCHER

"Home Is the Sailor," by Ruth Blodgett [Harcourt Brace]. Published today.

ONE of the minor characters in Ruth Blodgett's latest novel is a Maine sea captain, who has been a model for innumerable novelists digging for literary gold. Miss Blodgett makes it plain that she realizes that a Maine seacoast town and its "characters" are excellent copy, although somewhat frayed on the edges by too much usage. But she also realizes that there is always room for one more good tangy tale of the sort that has brought Joseph C. Lincoln fame and fortune and lined at least one of Booth Tarkington's inner pockets with platinum. And so she has written "Home Is the Sailor," with the stock characters, the stock situations, and the stock atmosphere, but with a certain reality and zest that give the book an excellent reason for being and that are bound to give readers pleasure.

RUTH BLODGETT.

Miss Blodgett is, I understand, an authority through intimate association with the Maine seacoast. She knows her Maine coast geography and she knows her Maine coast psychology. The background of "Home Is the Sailor" is the background which produced generations of sea captains jaunting on the seven seas—of which only Quint Gray survives as the owner of a small boat. Among his contemporaries among the ladies, however, are old Mme. Grey, a matriarch with a royalty complex, and her tiny group of the survivors of the Sew-We-Do's who never do any sewing but meet three times a week to have their gossip and their grog.

The town feud is between the E-Greys and the A-Grays, as they were called, both of whom originally sprang from the loins of a parson, a "regular old hell dodger, they say, who came over with the first bo't-lo'd, more to get rid of a wife in the old country than to preach the word o' God, I guess," as Quint observes. "For didn't he change the E to A in his name, and go hitch himself up to the prettiest young lady here in the colony's soon's he landed. 'Nd just as he's countin' on everythin' goin' 's smooth's silk, don't number one, her as was E-Grey, turn up on 'nother bo't and raise everlastin' hob. 'Twas his batch o' young ones that's spelled the Gray with an A that's carried the blot o' not bein' born in proper wedlock."

The descendants of the adventurous preacher, during the generations sifted through the town, and two protagonists of the rival branches are the hero and part heroine of the book—a young country doctor who has chosen his native town to practice in because his chief interest is in research and he hopes to have time to continue his studies there, and the pretty spoiled daughter of the most impressive E-Grey.

That daughter is less of the real heroine than her mother, "Marty" Grey, on whom the whole village relies in time of stress and who is a "character" of fineness and strength and humor. And perhaps even Martha Grey is less the real heroine than Chrys Merriam, 23 years old, who arrives in the town to be the district nurse and whose duties seem to include coddling the peevish old maids and widows of the village almost more than measuring and weighing the school children. Chrys has a level head on her shoulders, which are only four feet something off the ground. Between them she and Marty do more for the village than the village suspects, and they do more for each other than either of them suspects.

There is nothing spectacular about "Home Is the Sailor." It certainly will not shove its author into the front rank of contemporary novelists, but there is an honesty about it, and a reality that make it a pleasure to read. If you are one of the addicts of Maine seacoast novels you mustn't miss "Home Is the Sailor." If you are one of those who "have read the last book about quaint New England seacoast folk" that you ever intend to read, then accept this review as a "No Parking Here" sign.

Also published today is a gay, fluffy novel about another spot dear to writers of American fiction—Paris, France. It is called "A Romantic Young Man," and is about one Garth Van Rensselaer Brent, a little brother of the rich, who knew all of the smart vices and had a way with him—with a woman, a rapier or a Wedgwood teacup. Adventure of the most fantastic sort he slashes out of life for himself. Achmed Abdullah, who knows how to put hot adventure into cold print, is the author of "A Romantic Young Man."

Institute Opens Summer Art Exhibit Today

Prize Works of Chicagoans on Display.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

Today sees the opening in the east wing galleries of the Art institute of the summer exhibitions. Yesterday a temperature of approximately 100 degrees forced the pre-viewer to scan the walls hastily, with a mind more intent upon escaping from the gallery than on evaluating the work hung for our approval. Yet a few things could not help but be observed.

In the first place the three finest offerings among the shows are the "Survey of American Art," the prize winning Chicago artists' work, and the paintings of Agnes Potter Lowrie. The "Survey" gives us again, and placed more importantly, many of the canvases with which visits to the permanent collections of the museum have familiarized us. We welcome the virile Winslow Homer and the austere Bryson Burroughs, the studious Whistler and the intriguing Garber. We give renewed credit to the power and craftsmanship of William Merritt Chase and to the charm inherent in the work of Mary Cassatt.

Our feeling of pleasure, aroused in this room, is deepened on entering the prize winners' gallery and finding the beautiful "Dawn" of Gerald Frank, the cool "Indian Composition" of Prusheck, the romantic "Seville" of Marshall D. Smith and the attractive "He and His Mammy" of Oscar Gross. The feeling of pleasure is still alive when confronted by the gallery wall hung with the clear, gay, imaginative, cool and bright landscapes, most of them figured with whimsical deer or shy sails, by Agnes Potter Lowrie.

Across from her pictures are the sober canvases of Tressa Emerson Benson, studies of people and things. A formal, rather dull realism pervades her canvases and sends the wings of one's spirit drooping. They droop lower when introduced to the heavily stylized paintings by Ruth Van Sickle Ford, to whom an entire room has been given. They drag in the dust, however, under the burden imposed by the atrocious inventions of David McCosh, than whose modeling and drawing nothing worse has been exploited in some time. Fred Biesel does little to relieve the insufferable farce staged by Mr. McCosh.

The Chicago Camera Club's Fourth Annual International Photographic Salon has spread to embrace three galleries, where one would have been ample. The photographs repeat each other in many instances and where there are many capital prints, there are also many pictures that are just photographs. A strong protest should be raised to delegate this show to the print galleries, where it rightfully belongs. Too many Chicago painters and sculptors are denied recognition by the Art institute when three possible rooms are closed to them and open to the camera.

These exhibitions will continue to Oct. 9.

Blimp Puritan Makes Its First Sightseeing Tour at Fair Grounds

The Goodyear blimp Puritan made its first sightseeing cruise over the World's Fair grounds yesterday afternoon. The blimp took off from the exposition grounds at 35th street and the lake, from which flights are to be made on a daily passenger schedule. Aboard on the first flight were Capt. Frank H. Roberts, official representative of the U. S. navy to the fair; Maj. Chester L. Fordney, marine representative, and Lieutenant Commander J. M. Creighton, U. S. N.

Gov. George White of Ohio visited the fair grounds with the fair committee of his state to view the site of Ohio's exhibitions. Ohio has already appropriated $75,000 for exhibitions.

Sun Tan Sets Off New Dotted Swim Outfits

Variations from All-White Suits Gain in Favor.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

This summer offers splendid opportunity for the summer resort writers to pen persuasive paragraphs about our village as a good summer vacation resort. With miles of working beaches and plenty of lake water to cool the swarms of swimmers, and all the smartest shops literally filled with all kinds of swim suits and beach togs, the most demanding tourist couldn't ask for more.

If you think that swim suits are nearly all alike, that one model doesn't differ from any other except in size, one look at the beaches will teach you otherwise, and a shopping trip will convince you that new models are still making fashion headlines. The all-white suits are still more than popular but clever new white affairs seem to have a weakness for dots and color.

For instance, some eye-filling white suits have embroidered dots about the size of a quarter sprinkled over the background at six inch intervals.

You can buy red dots, blue dots and green dots and until you see them against sun tanned, slender silhouettes you've no idea how tremendously smart they are.

One shop is showing some black and white combinations that are something to dash down and buy, especially if you are a black and white enthusiast. Black knitted wool is fashioned to cling tighter than your skin, if that is possible.

A white band outlines the square front neckline and backless back line, and a square tied white bow is appliqued over your heart and black straps streak across your shoulders. What a devastating amount of envy would sweep over the beach if the right bright haired, slim, beach beauty would wear this out to be seen.

There are some lovely jade green suits in this same shop that will make some golden blonde a siren, while some dull gold affairs with contrasting stripes of olive green and black are unusual enough to make a completely bored beach guard come to life.

Terry cloth robes are most obliging things you can own. You can swagger around the beach in them, you can lounge around home in them, and last but not least they do easily the drying work of a half dozen towels. This summer you can match your terry cloth robe with slacks, or match your slacks with robes. Blazing strips of noisy colors run up and down the best beach robes. Some are less violent with one color against a white background, while others are splendidly barbaric with at least four different shades. The newest ones are parading like a regular Roman holiday with all the colors that usually shout only on Roman striped ribbon and sashes.

With your slacks you can now buy some new mesh shirts or blouses, shirts that are made of the most wide open mesh ever used, these undoubtedly cool and airy shirts come in the good salty shades of red and deep blue and, of course, white. They have short sleeves and you can either select a round or V neck.

Something else to top your slacks are the new soft thin woolen oblongs that have a neck-slit in the center. These slip over your head and the front half laps over the back section and ties. Unusually interesting modernistic designs make these tie oblongs uncommonly effective with white slacks as well as colored models.

During this delightful era of merciful prices any fashion-wise beach lounger can acquire two or three knock-out beach ensembles for the price she formerly paid for one.

Moonlight Lends Charm to Pool

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Are you all ready, Uptown winners, for a glorious afternoon of magic and movies at the Publix-Balaban & Katz north side theater? It's going to be all kinds of fun with the great Thurston on the stage amazing us with his tricks of illusion and with James Cagney on the screen in his latest picture, "Winner Take All."

And didn't we select just the right kind of weather for a movie party! Once we're inside the Uptown we'll forget completely that the sun's rays are beating down on the city streets and that the mercury is 'way, 'way up on the thermometer. You know the cooling system in the Publix-Balaban & Katz theaters makes them ideal spots during this sizzling weather.

I'm going to read all the letters you wrote me for invitations to our party at the Century of Progress exposition on July 28 this morning. And from the hurried glance I've had of them as they stand in neat piles on my desk I'm afraid it will be a difficult task to select just one hundred of you. It's going to be a marvelous party with its thrilling rides and interesting buildings to see and the exciting show at the Florida alligator farm. And those of you who win invitations are sure to have a grand time.

Heniot Levy, Pianist, and Herbert Butler in Double Recital Roles

Heniot Levy, pianist, and Herbert Butler, violinist, appeared in the double guise of soloists and composers in their joint recital at Kimball hall yesterday afternoon.

Under the auspices of the American Conservatory of Music, of which institution both artists are faculty members, Mr. Levy presented two elaborate compositions, a set of variations in A minor and a Concerto for two pianos, in which latter he retired to the position of orchestra at the third piano while the solo parts were brilliantly played by Genevieve Anderson and Ruth Taylor. Both compositions were of a highly learned nature, carefully written in a way to develop their musical basis to the utmost.

In the following group Mr. Butler made solo presentation of two melodious works from his own pen, Serenade and Air de Ballet, which were received with much approbation by the audience. The two artists combined forces in the first number of the program, Cesar Franck's fine Sonata for piano and violin, and separately later in solos by composers other than themselves. E. M.

Protestant Men Plan World Meeting During Fair Here

TORONTO, Ont., July 20.—(AP)—A world congress of leaders in Protestant men's church work, Bible classes, and the World Brotherhood federation, probably will be held in Chicago during the 1933 World's Fair.

William Ward, honorary president of the World Brotherhood federation and a visitor here from London, said arrangements have been begun with the approval of Protestant church leaders in the United States.

Doris Talks to the Critical Young Girl.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Twenty-one, and she hasn't fallen for a boy yet!

She's had a steady run of beaus since she came out of school at 18. But never a boy has crossed her path who seemed to measure up to her ideal. All the fault of the measuring rod, we intercept right here. Lonely in the midst of plenty of attention! Who's fault could it be?

She's been to all the dances a girl needs. Has been cut in on frequently enough to appease her vanity. She has had dates—no end. And is lonely! So lonely, at times, she just can't figure it out.

Well, "Bett," it's no trouble figuring it out, at all! You're wrong. As ideal boys as you'll ever need in the course of your lifetime have probably come and gone. But you've got some impossible He's picture all done up with lighted tapers. And none but he shall serve as Best Beau. Of course, you're no spinster. You haven't reached the terrifying borderline of 29 without a permanent beau. But you may if you don't get down and hammer out a few of those Conquering Hero notions that are now cluttering your young mind.

There isn't any Prince Charming. There are hundreds of him. Thousands of him. You can take the raw material, the flesh and blood material, and dress him up in Hero style just as well as you do your phantom Charmer. And the former's a darned sight more useful to a young lady's career. You've overlooked a lot of good stuff in those boys you've been chumming around with, Bett!

Suppose you try giving the next one a break. It's one of them you'll have to decide upon, eventually. Better begin practicing on him now. Let him open up to you with his dreams and ambitions. Let him expose the weaknesses he surely must possess. Turn the limelight on yourself long enough to inquire just what you, a human, pleasure loving young woman, have to offer an ideal He. What you have to trade is much the same, every day human variety of gifts and faults that the boys you know have.

Outdoor Art Show Granted Permit by South Park Board

The south park commissioners yesterday granted permission for a showing of Chicago painting and sculpture in Grant park, between Jackson boulevard and Van Buren street, to start about Aug. 1.

At the request of World's Fair officials the commissioners ordered fill-in work on the lake shore between 23d and 39th streets, at a cost of $80,000, which will be financed by the purchase of south park bonds by the exposition.

Field Museum Shows Ten-Foot Stone Core Brought Up by Drill

The Field Museum of Natural History announced yesterday that what are believed to be the two longest pieces of rock core brought from great depths in the earth by mining drills are on exhibition at the Fredrick J. V. Skiff hall of the institution.

One of the cores is a cylinder of limestone, 6 feet 7½ inches long and 2 inches in diameter, drilled out from a depth of 670 feet at Waltonville, Ill. The other is a granite cylinder, 10 feet long and 2 inches in diameter, brought from Colorado. The cylinders are of value to geologists and mining experts.

The museum will hold its third summer series of free entertainments for children, under the auspices of the James Nelson and Anna Louise Raymond foundation this morning. A moving picture, "Adventures in the Far North," will be presented at 10 and 11 o'clock.

Children's Classes at Loyola "U" Will Close Next Wednesday

The Loyola university demonstration summer school for children will close next Wednesday with a program for parents and friends. More than 150 north side children have been taught by experts during the six weeks' term, while several hundred public and parochial school teachers have observed the teaching methods.

While the children receive no credit for their work, school authorities said that the pupils have been greatly benefited by contact with the books, creative activity, and teachers of unusual ability. Demonstrations and exhibits of work done in the school will be given Wednesday. The Rev. Austin G. Schmidt, S. J., will close the program by presenting certificates of attendance to the children.

Lake Forest's Young Display Water Prowess

Winter Club's Carnival Draws Big Crowds.

BY JUDITH CASS.

PROFESSIONAL expert swimmers could not have attracted a larger and more enthusiastic audience than did the youngsters who exhibited their aquatic prowess yesterday at the annual swimming carnival at the Winter club in Lake Forest. The show was so big and its stars were so numerous that it had to be divided into two groups. The younger children, from 4 to 9 years old, performed in the morning and the older ones had their show in the afternoon.

The morning show drew such a crowd that cars were lined in double rows all around the club and in the driveway. A few fathers stayed at home from their offices to see the show and even a few mothers neglected their jobs [Lake Forest has more and more working women these days] to cheer their youngsters from vantage points around the white-lined pool.

The prizes were gold, silver and bronze buttons in every class. A few of the more accomplished young swimmers can boast of more than one prize. Little Joan Mitchell, daughter of the James H. Mitchells, for instance, won first prize in the 10 yard dash for 7 year old girls and also in the diving for 7 year olds. Her sister, Sally, took third prize in the 10 yard dash for 8 year olds and third prize in the 8 year old girls' diving exhibition. Both the little Mitchells spend a great part of every day at the Winter club pool with their mother. They both wear attractive litle swimming suits with blue trunks and red and white tops.

Coaches Are Proud of Youngest Pupils' Work.

The tiniest pupils opened the morning program with an exhibition of skill that made Miss Baker, the girls' coach, and Coach Sweeney, who teaches the boys, immensely proud of their newest pupils. In the girls' beginners' class Sheila Kelly, Lucia Winston and Sandra Strotz won first, second and third prizes respectively. In the same class for boys the winners' buttons went to Phelps Kelley, Harry Chandler, and John Bermingham.

In the 7 year old girls' 10 yard dash, besides Joan Mitchell, the prizes were awarded to Diana Prosser and Olive Robbins. David Hotz, Buddy [Alexander] Revel, and John Lee won the 10 yard dash for 7 year old boys. In the diving for 7 year olds, Joan Mitchell, Olive Robbins, and Diana Prosser; David Hotz, Farwell Smith and Richard Taylor were winners.

In the 10 yard dash for 8 year old girls and boys the buttons were won by Nancy Broeksmit, Shirley Hopkins and Sally Mitchell; Billy Douglas, Sammy Walker, and Kingman Douglass. Nancy Broeksmit, Isabel Curtis and Sally Mitchell took the 8 year old girls' diving prizes.

Adelaide McCreary, Frances Clow, and Louanna Jelke; Frankie Ambler, Hickson Glore, and Eddie Spalding were the best 9 year old divers. In the 20 yard dash for 9 year olds prizes went to Bessie Cowles, Peggy Nicholson, and Sarah Roberts; Bobby Hotz, Billy Manierre, and Hickson Glore.

Col. E. R. Bradley, who came up from Kentucky for the Classic, is staying on for some more Arlington races. Yesterday he brought his niece, Miss Peggy Bailey, to the Post and Paddock, and Mrs. James Simpson Jr. lunched with them. Nancy Leiter is at Arlington nearly every day, usually wearing fine white organdy dresses. Narcissa Swift brought a backgammon board with her yesterday and played between races with some of her guests on the terrace at the Post and Paddock. Mrs. Walter W. Keith of Baltimore is still here and goes to Arlington every day with her sisters, Mrs. Honoré Palmer and Mrs. Stanley Field.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan of Philadelphia have been at the track every day this week, too, using a guest card of the Stanley Fields for the Post and Paddock. Mrs. J. Clarke Dean and Dr. Julia Strawn both had large luncheon parties yesterday.

The coolest looking person I saw yesterday was Mrs. Patrick C. Hill, who had just arrived in town the night before from Fort Worth and was leaving again last evening with her father, John Alden Carpenter, for a month at their country place at Charlotte, Vt. The former "Ginny" Carpenter probably has become accustomed to hot weather in Texas this summer, and it certainly seems to have agreed with her, for I've never seen her look so lovely. She and her father will return to Chicago near the end of August, but she will not go back to Fort Worth until later in the fall. Yesterday she was wearing a wide brimmed natural colored straw hat and a dark blue silk dress with a large cape collar of sky blue plaited chiffon, a most becoming outfit.

Potter Palmer Sr. will leave tomorrow evening to join Mrs. Palmer and their daughter, Pauline, in Santa Barbara, to be with Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne Lewis [Bertha Palmer], who are occupying the residence of Mr. Lewis' grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne, this summer. The Palmers will remain in the west until September.

I Like You So Much

BY MAY EDGINTON

SYNOPSIS.

Gold Franklyn calls Dr. Elverton, who has a surgery in a poor district of London, to attend her indolent, dependent young half brother. The doctor offers to give Barney Pierce, a well to do accident victim, a lift to his destination, and Pierce waits while the doctor makes his call. He catches a glimpse of the pretty young creature who summoned the doctor. Both men determine to help the plucky orphan girl. The doctor is to sail the next week to New York and Havana on a leave, taking the ship doctor's place. Mrs. Doris Hathaway, a widow, friend of Pierce's, is to sail on the same boat. She wants a maid-companion for the Atlantic crossing. The doctor sends Gold to see Mrs. Hathaway and she gets the job. Pierce regrets putting Gold under the demoralizing influence of Doria. He decides to sail himself. On the boat Doris meets David Dorrance, who wants to interest Pierce in a business deal. Doria asks Gold to dine with her. They are joined by Pierce and Dorrance. Gold is angered by Pierce's cynicism and distrust of women. Gip Alen, Gold's half brother, stows away on the boat and threatens to disclose his identity unless Gold does as he bids. Pierce, who overhears Gip's threats, unknown to Gold, arranges to get him third class passage on condition he doesn't bother Gold. Dorrance offers Gold a position as his secretary on the Havana trip, which she gladly accepts.

INSTALLMENT XXII.

"I HATE HIM."

Gold was faintly afraid of Barney Pierce; she knew it. She was afraid of some ordering of her life that would be too strong for her, and she could not trust him with such ordering. Besides the new life was already assuming gorgeous colors. Even the shock of last night's meeting with Gip was calming after the receipt of his note in the morning. So now she looked at Barney Pierce, her heart beating fast, and said: "Very well. It is just that your interest is very kind, but I don't want it."

"Nor need it?"

Glad to remember Dorrence's offer, she replied: "Nor need it. I shall have work after I leave Mrs. Hathaway."

"Do you mean," said Pierce quietly, "that work has been offered to you?"

"I do."

"By whom?"

"What right have you to question?" she flashed.

"I want to know who has offered you work? Is it in New York? What is it?"

"Why should you know?"

But his quiet voice was cool and hard; his eyes had their usual baffling look of incredulity. "Why should you care what I think, Mr. Pierce?"

"You're rattling your teacup, and its empty anyway," he said, and took it from her and set it down on the deck from where the attentive steward instantly retrieved it. She bit her lip; her hands had been trembling.

"Why are you shaking?" he asked very quietly.

She looked back into his steady light gray eyes.

"Because you—you make me angry."

"I'm sorry for that."

"I don't know why you should be sorry. You care very little for any one's feeling, I think."

"Do you? I'm sorry for that opinion, too."

But his quiet voice was cool and hard; his eyes had their usual baffling look of incredulity.

"Why should you care what I think, Mr. Pierce?"

"Because," he paused. He leaned a little nearer to tuck her rug round her, and under the rug his hand found her nervous ones and held them for a moment. It was like last evening, in the twilight . . . "Because," he said, "I like you so much."

She moved her hands under his, so that he drew it away. His mind was very busy about her now. She did not want him and his care? Why not? Why should a very poor and lonely girl reject—and she was rejecting it—the attention of Barney Pierce? It was something new. It might be partly because she would think he "belonged" to Doria Hathaway, and yet it would not be entirely that—so his cynical mind told him—for Mrs. Hathaway's benefits to her were of such short duration. They would end on the docks at New York. Who was helping this girl? Had she perhaps met some one here, on the boat, in circumstances akin to her own, who had been able to tell her some special procedure of securing work in a strange city? Had she already made some friends here?

Or was it Dorrance?

"Has Dorrance offered you something?"

She would have liked to reply triumphantly: "Yes!" but remembered that Dorrance had impressed upon her the necessity for tact. Tact included silence, or judicious speaking only, and she felt that it would be injudicious indeed were she to make that answer to Barney Pierce. Her business training under exigent employers called for her obedience.

"I would rather not discuss my affairs with you at all, Mr. Pierce."

"As you like," he said in a much harder voice, but still quiet and cool. She looked at him quickly; his face, turned seaward, was a profile in granite. Yes, he was an overwhelming man. "But he shan't overwhelm me," she thought childishly.

Then he was speaking again:

"As you like. It will come to the same thing in the end."

"He got up. "I've bothered you for nothing."

"The—the 'end'?"

"Yes," he said, looking down at her, "it will come to the same thing in the end."

She was looking up at him, still startled, when he turned away with a salute of his hand to his bare head, leaving her. No sooner had his tall striding figure disappeared than the little elderly governess appeared, bobbing up, as it seemed, from nowhere.

"O, my dear! What an interesting looking gentleman! Is that the one who writes the notes?"

"It certainly isn't!"

"Are there two of them then?" The little woman sat down in the chair Pierce had left, eager for romance as a hungry sparrow for crumbs.

"This doesn't mean anything," the girl protested.

"O, don't say so, my dear! Do, do make the very best of your opportunities. I never had any. And when I see a young girl with opportunities I do, do hope so much that she won't throw them away. You wouldn't mind my knowing that gentleman's name?"

"Pierce. Mr. Barney Pierce."

"O! O! I think . . . yes, I certainly think that's a name well known in New York society. I'm sure I've heard it. And to think he's been to the trouble of coming and finding you in this corner, and having tea with you, and everything. O, don't, don't miss your opportunities."

"I hate him!"

The little governess put on her glasses and peered at her closely. "And why should you think you hate him, my dear?"

"If you must know, because he's arrogant, overbearing, hard, and he despises women—but especially working girls. Women to him are just objects of contempt, or patronage. He thinks we're all greedy, soulless fools. He thinks we're all out for what we can get from men; well, here is one woman who wants nothing from him. And he doesn't like a woman wanting nothing, although he's ready to despise her if she wants something and tries to get it from him. He hasn't the least kindness for others in his makeup. And he wants to order the world about."

"Dear me, Miss Franklyn, what a lot you have thought about him!"

Gold Franklyn flushed; her eyes widened in surprise at herself. She was bewildered. Yes, she was thinking about Barney Pierce. She had thought about him since the first moment of meeting. Again that reiterated "I like you so much" made a refrain in her head.

"I really don't bother about him," she said.

The little governess opened her book precisely at the place where she had left an embroidered marker. "Look, one of the little children I used to teach made me that one Christmas," she said mildly, regarding the marker with a fond smile.

She settled her glasses firmly.

"But you don't hate Mr. Pierce, dear," she added. And she immersed herself in the vicarious romance of her novel.

Gold Franklyn rose. "Time I was going," she said hurriedly. She went to Doria's stateroom, began to arrange the toilette Doria had specified for dinner. Very glorious Doria was to be apparently; a silver gown whose heavy, accurate, limp hang over one's arm was an affirmation of its perfect making; a little silver coat cuffed and collared high with blue fox; silver sandals; a fresh pair of stockings to be taken from the dozens of new pairs. . . . Poverty! And busy in the war, rose colored stateroom Gold took stock of herself in the light vouchsafed by Doria, and thought that she knew herself to have been a fool.

Makeup Done in Public Said to Annoy the Men

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Some one suggested the other day in my hearing that making up in public was just one of those things men refuse to become accustomed to. If true, the poor dears must be in a state of the jitters, what with the bold, bad brazeness girls are practicing publicly before the huge pancake compacts every 1932 pocketbook entertains.

There was much more undercover squinting, furtive maneuvering in the days of the miniature compact. The girls and her huge compact today aren't afraid of man, boy or head waiter. Rather she appears to be putting on an act, with applause expected. Lipstick application in front of this larger pocket mirror becomes consistently bolder. But since it is all in the interests of making a pretty girl prettier, why should the boys complain if it is true they do?

Certainly one can do a more complete makeup in front of the larger mirror, and if your taste runs to the lipstick paste you apply with the finger tip the performance is easier handled with the large compact.

The sifted powder compacts are a boon these days. They give you a chance to employ the chic French swansdown puffs. You feel better powdered whether you are or not—and the fluffy puff lends a note of feminine appeal it, of course, the fluffy puff is renewed frequently and often, is always fresh and clean. Incidentally, you'd better go over those puffs of yours now, discard the unwashables and renew your stock with new or freshly washed ones.

This is the time of year when puff washing becomes a daily duty. The face is oilier, the sweat glands more active and consequently the puff gets the worst of it. Rather, the complexion does, if you keep on applying soiled powder puffs to the surface.

You haven't any idea how this habit adds to blackhead formation and general facial disturbances. Also, a reminder in the interest of clearer and better complexions: Wash your hands each time before you dip them in the cold cream jar. If, perhaps, there happens to be a dark rim to your current jar, take a piece of cleansing tissue and remove every bit of the soiled top or top-edge surface.

Washington Society

Washington, D. C., July 20.—[Special.]—Mrs. Dill, wife of Clarence C. Dill of Washington, is in New York for a week before going to the west coast to join the senator, who went there immediately after the adjournment of congress.

Mrs. John R. Williams closed her Washington home today and went to her summer home at Beverly, Mass., where she will have with her her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Huston Rawls. Mrs. Williams' older daughter, Mrs. Joseph Leiter, is now in Chicago and will not open her home on the north shore this year but will leave Chicago the end of the week for Wyoming to spend the season.

of Mr. and Mrs. Uri B. Grannis, will depart on Saturday on a journey that will take him around the world. He will go first to Desbarats to bid farewell to his mother, Mrs. James O. Heyworth, at her island estate, and then on to Los Angeles, where he'll meet Edward Brewster of New York, who was graduated with him from Yale last month. They'll have a look at the Olympic games before going to San Francisco, where they'll board a boat for Honolulu on Aug. 20. They will be away about a year.

Mrs. Florence Kennett Dupee of Coronado is visiting her sister, Mrs. Frederick H. Rawson, for a few weeks.

From Beverly, Mass., comes news of some of the few Chicagoans summering on the north shore of Massachusetts, including the John Clays, who spent last season in Europe but who arrived at Finnisterre, their summer place far out on the tip of Eastern Point at Gloucester, last week, to remain until late September. They have with them their little granddaughter, Betty, whose parents, the junior John Clays, are in Wisconsin. They may make a visit to the senior Clays at Gloucester later in the summer, however. Arriving on Saturday to spend the month of August with the Clays are Mr. Clay's brother, Alexander Clay of Edinburgh, Scotland, and his daughter, Miss Patricia Clay. Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Sanders of Chicago are visiting the Clays now.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Clay Bartlett, who are summering at their Beverly estate, Tree Tops, are entertaining a company of twelve at dinner at their residence Saturday night.

Lake Geneva Summer Colony Plans Flower Show.

The Lake Geneva summer colony is busy these days making arrangements for the 28th annual flower, fruit, vegetable and dairy show to be staged at Horticultural hall on Friday and Saturday, Aug. 12 and 13. Plans are being made this year to change the features and several innovations are to be introduced. For instance, the programs will show where each exhibit is located, whether in the hall proper or in the patio, which will be a great help to a visitor who wants to see a particular exhibit and hasn't time to enjoy the whole show.

Mrs. Edwin B. Frost, president of the Lake Geneva Garden club, is general chairman of the show and Mrs Henry Bartholomay is assistant chairman. Other chairmen of subcommittees and their assistants are: wild flowers, Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson, assisted by Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson, Mrs. John R. Wilson, Mrs. Charles B. Corey, Mrs. Harley L. Clarke, and the Misses Sturges; vegetables, Mrs. E. P. Ellwood, assisted by Mrs. Arthur W. Wakeley, Mrs. Walden W. Shaw, and Mrs. L. B. Hamlin; dairy, Mrs. Hans H. Reese, assisted by Miss Blanche Kaye and Miss Dorothy Deignan; cut flowers, Mrs. John F. Jennings; flower arrangement, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne; wall pockets, Miss Katherine Iæfens; table decorations, Mrs. Augustus K. Maxwell; fruit, Mrs. William P. Finney, assisted by her sister, Miss Nellie Wheeler, Mrs. Earle Zimmerman, and Mrs. Sangston Hettler; breakfast trays, Mrs. William N. Pelouze; garden accessories, Mrs. Frank Rehm and Mrs. Armin Brand, assisted by Mrs. Daniel Peterkin and Miss Jeannette Peterkin; food sale, Mrs. Harry L. Macdonald, assisted by Mrs. S. R. Barrett and others; tea, Mrs. Walter G. McIntosh, assisted by Mrs. Robert Whitaker, Mrs. Robert Tarrant, and Mrs. Alfred Edwards; printing and publicity, Mrs. Henry Bartholomay; treasurer, Mr. Bartholomay. Last year the two day event netted $1,500 for Holiday home and it is hoped that as large a sum will be realized this year. Many Chicagoans motor up each year for the show.

There will be mostly men guests in most of the houses on the lake this week-end, for the annual invitation golf tournament is being held at the Lake Geneva Country club tomorrow and Saturday and almost every member invites enough men guests to fill out a foursome.

Fort Sheridan-Onwentsia Polo Game Next Sunday.

Polo enthusiasts will be out at Fort Sheridan on Sunday to see one of the highest goal polo games of the season between Fort Sheridan and Onwentsia. The game will be the third of a series between these two high goal teams, each team having won one game. The Fort Sheridan team will carry 13 goals while Onwentsia will total 14. Charles F. Glore is captain of the Onwentsia team and Capt. C. A. Wilkinson will lead the Fort Sheridan players.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Willis Strong (Dorothy Miller) of 1320 North State street announce the birth of a daughter, Dorothy Cara, on Monday at the West Suburban hospital. The baby is named for its mother, grandmother (Cara Francesca Miller), and great grandmother (Cara Dickinson Falk—Mrs. Louis Falk), who, with her husband, was well known in early Chicago musical circles. Mrs. Strong is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin M. Miller of 1500 Lake Shore drive. Mr. Strong's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Strong of Flint, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Alexander of Highland Park are spending the summer at the Old Mission inn on Madeline island in Lake Superior. Among others from this part of the country who are summering at the old inn, which is celebrating its hundredth anniversary this season, are Mr. and Mrs. W. Robert Johnston and their sons, Robert and Goodwin, of Hinsdale; Mrs. John S. Goodwin of Dearborn parkway, and Mrs. Henry W. Shedd and sons of River Forest. In 1832 the first Protestant mission in Wisconsin was built on Madeline island, the old building now forming a part of the inn.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Needs Clothing to Find Work.

"My husband has been out of work for over a year and he is desperately in need of clothing. I wonder if you could help us get a suit of clothes for him so that he may look presentable when searching for work. Anything will be greatly appreciated. He wears size 44. Mrs. R. D."

Clothes do make a difference, not only when looking for a job, but they also help a great deal to lift one's spirits. If you are discarding a suit in this size, won't you give it to

"I wonder if you could get a wheel chair through your column for a 21 year old boy who is paralyzed from the waist down. His father is unemployed and could not possibly buy one for him. M. M."

This young man is missing a lot because of his condition, but having a wheel chair would make up for much of it. Have you one to donate to him?

Iowa Educator Says Most Cities Build Too Many Schools

Most cities build entirely too many schools, Dr. Paul C. Packer, dean of the college of education at the University of Iowa, declared yesterday before the conference on public school administration at the University of Chicago.

"It is very foolish," Dr. Packer said, "for small communities to separate groups of students. They can all go to the same building, from first grade through high school.

"In most cities, you usually can gather from 800 to 850 elementary students within a half mile radius. Less than that number is uneconomical. While school sites should draw their students from a half mile radius, you can't have too big grounds for a school. Five acres is desirable for an elementary school, and for a high school from 15 to 100 acres is not unreasonable.

"As for junior high schools, when you can't make your high and elementary schools any better, and have more money than you know what to do with, then is the only time to build junior high schools."

Dr. Packer criticized the location of school sites near railroads or noisy business or commercial districts.

Flowers that Kill

Perfumed Mist

Some years ago it was discovered that a certain field flower grown in Japan drove away winged insects. A shipment was sent to America for testing in a research laboratory. Here an extract was made from the flowers and sprayed in a closed room filled with flies and mosquitoes. Every insect perished at its touch.

Now that extract is the basis of Fly-Tox, developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. Ten years and over $100,000 have been spent by us in perfecting it. This Fly-Tox, used as directed, fills the room with a perfumed mist, at a cost of only 1 or 2 cents. That mist is harmless to people, stainless to anything. But every fly or mosquito that it touches dies at once. And they can't escape it when the room is filled.

These pests are deadly, for they carry the germs of over 30 diseases. They deposit those germs on foods or in blood streams. Many thousands of children die every year from this cause. Fly-Tox rightly used, frees your home and keeps it free, in an easy, certain, economical way.

Think what that means to you and yours.

FLY-TOX ONLY

A Rex Research Product

Use Fly-Tox only, and always in a new-type Fly-Tox sprayer. Every lot is tested on flies in our laboratory. The efficiency is guaranteed. The odor is pleasant, the extra strength makes it very economical. Use it because nothing is too good for the safety of your home. Fly-Tox also kills Roaches, Ants, Bed Bugs and Moths. Go get it today—it's sold everywhere. Harmless to people. Stainless. Made by the Makers of Moth-Tox.

Novel Upside Down Cake Is Still Favorite

Delicious Topped with Cream, Berries.

BY MARY MEADE.

About once every ten years some clever cook thinks up a novel gesture in the cake line which sends the rest of us to the kitchen to see if there really is something new under the sun—something guaranteed not to crack, fall, tunnel, or run over the sides.

The latest addition to the cake family—though now nearly ten years old—is the upside down cake. The first of these dizzy affairs to invert itself was a pineapple cake which so took the country by storm that it seemed that the week that went by without its upside down pineapples was simply a week lost, gastronomically speaking. But there the thing stuck. And not until recently have the adventurous discovered that the upside down cake family is as wide and varied as the imagination of its maker—that the addition of pineapple is only one of a host of delicious variations possible.

UPSIDE DOWN CAKE BATTER.

Consider first of all the one stable part of our cakes which can remain unaltered, no matter what tantalising secrets we hide in the bottom—namely, the cake batter itself. I prefer a simple cake recipe of ½ cup shortening creamed with 1 cup of sugar and 2 well beaten eggs. To this mixture add ½ cup of milk and 2 cups of flour sifted with 2½ teaspoons baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. Stir in the milk and dry ingredients alternately. Flavor with 1 teaspoon of any desired extract.

Turn one glass [about one cup] of clear, thick strawberry preserve into the bottom of a round cake pan. Spread evenly and pour in the cake batter given above. Bake in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.] about 45 minutes. Remove from the oven, let stand ten minutes, and then turn out quickly onto a large plate, bottom side up. Spread any strawberries remaining in the pan back onto the cake and serve in pie shaped wedges either hot or cold. Top with whipped cream, slightly sweetened. Delicious!

Orange marmalade, plum jam or your choice of fresh stewed fruits are other favorites in the upside down line. Prepare them just as directed for a strawberry cake. With the fresh stewed fruits [cherries are delectable!] add very little juice, and sprinkle with an extra half cup of sugar before adding the batter.

If you are still making pineapple upside downers, you are familiar with the sugar and water sirup which acts as a foundation for the batter and finally as a luscious frosting when the turnout is completed. These cakes are most satisfactory if baked in a heavy iron frying pan. In this melt together one cup of brown sugar and three tablespoons of butter. When sirupy and smooth, add your choice of fruit. It may be two cups of drained crushed pineapple or eight small slices arranged evenly in the sirup. Or if you are feeling adventurous, try drained canned peaches, prunes or apricots; stewed dried fruits; plump drawn figs, chopped dates, or sliced raw apples. About two cups of any of these fruits will fill the bill. On top of this goes the batter, and the cake is then baked as directed above.

MAPLE SUGAR UPSIDE DOWN CAKE.

If fruit fails to appeal some day, let it be simply a luscious maple sugar cake made extra good with pecans. And simple cake batter will do, but instead of the regular brown sugar sirup, melt together in a heavy frying pan one cup of shaved maple sugar and one-third cup of butter. When dissolved, add three-fourths cup of chopped pecans, distributing them evenly through the sirup. Pour in the batter and bake as before. Serve with sweetened whipped cream and your most savory cup of coffee—and watch the compliments pile up!

Couturier Trims Blue Wool Coat with Crisp Pique

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—There has been a grand revival in Paris this summer of that crisp and dainty fabric—piqué. Seen in cotton, silk, and satin versions, and both plain and printed, it has emerged in new uses as well as its ol. ones.

Since Mademoiselle Chanel created a sensation with her cotton piqué evening frock, which smart Parisiennes have been wearing about town this summer, this simple fabric has gained a new respect. Madame Lanvin trir a her woolen day dresses for fall with berthas, flat jabots and huge cuffs in white piqué. She also puts piqué cuffs on gloves that are made of suede. There is no doubt about it, girls, piqué has come into its own.

In the sketch today you see the very newest application of piqué—adorning a woolen coat. Mirande is the creator of this idea. The coat is in navy blue smooth surfaced woolen. It is belted at the normal waistlines and fastens on the side under a double row of flower shaped silver buttons. There are two vertically set-in pockets.

Extending over the sleeve tops are two shelflike tabs of navy blue wool, giving width to the upper part of the coat, which otherwise is cut on straight and slim lines. This coat has one wide blue wool rever and one in white piqué. The white piqué rever fastens over on the left side on four silver buttons, as shown in the sketch. It could be left unfastened, of course, and worn on top of the other rever.

This is the type of coat chic Parisiennes are wearing for morning shopping and luncheon at the Ritz or Bagdad.

Life's too short to wash handkerchiefs

End this repulsive job by using KLEENEX

STILL washing handkerchiefs? How out-of-date . . . and how unsanitary!

End this unwholesome task today. Just buy a box of Kleenex. It's packed with handkerchief-size tissues, made of softest rayon-cellulose. You use a tissue, then destroy it. No washing. No self-infection, as from a handkerchief used over and over. No laundry bills.

Handy, you bet! And safe, sanitary, comfortable. You'll never go back to handkerchiefs.

Kleenex is fine for children. Fine for many other purposes, too, besides handkerchiefs. Use it for babies, when giving cod liver oil or feeding.

Use Kleenex to polish spectacles, bathroom fixtures, mirrors, furniture. Ideal to blend powder and rouge . . . to remove cosmetics thoroughly.

Booklets Help Solve Problem for New Parents

Extracts:

"I am a brand-new mother, far away from home with no formulated ideas for caring for my young son. Could you send me some helpful booklets?"

"The art of motherhood is still new to me. Anything you can send me that will help I shall be grateful for."

"I am a daily reader of your column and I find it quite helpful to the young mother who is unversed in the care of children. Such is my case. Enthusiastic, of course, but none too rich in the requisite knowledge."

"My daughter is six months old and we find this profession of being mother and dad not so simple as it might be. Will you please send us the booklets you mention in your articles?"

"I am enclosing a stamped envelope for your series on child management. I have a baby boy five months old only, but I am anxious to read extensively and prepare myself to meet problems before they present themselves. I am interested in informing myself because of him primarily and also because I find it all interesting."

I like to get letters from "brand new mothers." It brings back the time when I was a brand new mother, too. Which one of us was not "enthusiastic, of course, but none too rich in the requisite knowledge?" And who of us has not also found this profession "not so simple as it might be?" How rich these mothers are who, besides informing themselves primarily for the good of their babies, "find it all interesting."

In answer to these needs let me say that there is fine material published, both free and to be paid for, that is designed especially for the new mother. It covers the care of the baby both physically and psychologically, and the various matters [not problems unless they become so] that mothers should be informed on, so that as each phase of the child's development comes they will meet it with foreknowledge.

We have in our service such leaflets for the young mother as: "Keeping the Well Baby Well," "Child Management," "Don't Touch" and "Elimination Habits." A stamped, self-addressed envelope will bring any one of them to you.

Twenty-one persons forgot how hot they were yesterday in thinking about the babies in Chicago's baking tenement districts. The result was 21 contributions to the Free Ice fund.

One contributor, Clara J. Vierling, 4914 Greenwood avenue, wrote that she had been obliged to cut in half her usual contributions to many charities, but that her usual $10 contribution to the Free Ice fund would remain the same. She realized in these hot days that it was needed more than ever, she added.

It is a tough life for babies in this weather, according to the letters received from mothers relating their need of ice. Without ice their milk does not keep sweet, and when a baby has to drink sour milk in addition to being hot and miserable, he can well feel imposed upon.

One young mother wrote that she and her unemployed husband and baby had gone to live with her unemployed father, who has seven children under 16 years old. The charities provide them with groceries, but not ice, and her efforts to keep the milk sweet by standing it in running water have failed.

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Miss Anne Madison Washington, great-great-grandniece of George Washington, and a direct descendant of President James Madison, was entertained in Manhattan and Brooklyn today as the honored guest of the city.

Miss Washington, making her first trip by plane, arrived at Newark municipal airport shortly before noon. She was met at the airport by Maj. Lester D. Gardner, chairman of the aviation committee of the Washington bicentennial celebration. She was escorted to Fraunce's tavern in lower Manhatttan, the scene of Gen. Washington's farewell to his officers, and received there by Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert T. Hodges.

Later Miss Washington was taken to Bryant park where she inspected the reproduction of Federal hall.

LARGEST SHIP EVER BUILT IN AMERICA

BRITISH WHEAT SCHEME FAILS ON EVE OF PARLEY

Canada Hits Quota Plan; Conference On Today.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., July 20.—As the delegates of 450,000,000 people under the flag of Great Britain prepared to open the empire trade conference here tomorrow morning one of London's biggest schemes for creating inter-empire trade went on the rocks.

This was the British wheat quota scheme. It was fathered by the British government to ration Britain's wheat consumption into quotas assigned to the home farmers and the various dominions, either shutting out altogether foreign wheat or allowing a very limited quantity to enter British ports.

Strikes at U. S. Trade.

The wheat scheme is but one of many out of which Great Britain hopes to restore prosperity to the British isles and the dominions through this conference.

The conference will be attended by 272 delegates and official advisers. They will represent the United Kingdom, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, Newfoundland, India, South Africa, Southern Rhodesia, and the Irish Free State. These countries hold one-third of the world's population and hold one-fourth of its lands.

Out of the conference the leaders hope to obtain a vast economic alignment for interempire trade. Admittedly such an alignment will hit the United States hardest. Canada's trade alone with the United States in 1931 was worth 900 million dollars, and America's total exports to Great Britain, her dominions and colonies in normal times amount to close to two billion dollars.

Meets Opposition in Canada.

From the very beginning it was evident from the protests of the grain trade and the British millers and bakers that Britain's wheat quota scheme, even if workable, which is denied, would be obstructed at every turn. Now it appears the Canadian wheat growers never cared much about it either and would rather have a straight duty on foreign wheat with a preference for empire grown grain. This would raise the world price and, for a portion of each year, at least, exclude foreign wheat from the English market.

A further point of Canadian opposition was that even if the quota scheme worked, Canada's share under the arrangement would be so small that it would afford very little relief to the Canadian grower. Under the tariff scheme, Canadian growers hope to get the bulk of England's consumption as they believe that their great stretches of rich prairie and modern methods of cultivation will enable them to score over the English farmer even if he is protected.

Empire Currency Plan Flivvers.

Another hope of the conference seems to have gone glimmering. That is the proposal for an empire currency divorced from gold. Britain's success with a managed sterling currency and the adherence to it of the Scandinavian and a number of South America states had encouraged the British to hope that it might be made common to the whole empire and that eventually the gold standard countries might be compelled to follow suit.

It has been found, however, that Canada is not going to sacrifice her attachment to the sound American dollar for some problematical currency and that South Africa is too deeply interested in the prosperity of her own gold mines to take any chances with the new currency. The plan has not been officially abandoned, but instead of figuring at the head of the agenda as was expected it has been moved down to the end and every one knows that in conferences of this kind the tail end of the agenda is seldom reached.

Confirms Steel Agreement.

The report that an agreement had been reached between the steel manufacturers of Great Britain and Canada under which Canada will admit with a heavy tariff preference or even free of duty certain kinds of steel, which are not now manufactured in Canada and purchased in large quantities from the United States, was confirmed by Sir William Clark, chief of the British steel delegation, today. The agreement was concluded on July 13 and it was intended to keep it secret until it had been put before the empire conference for ratification but publication has forced the hands of both sides.

To meet this new fact the U. S. Steel corporation which has been watching developments with the utmost care is now planning to complete its great plant at Ojibway near Windsor, Ont., and thus save its export trade to Canada, which in good times has amounted to one hundred million dollars a year. The Ojibway plant, as originally planned, was to cost between forty and fifty million dollars. Between seven and eight millions have already been spent on it and there are in operation wire and plate mills, while the docks are also completed.

Open Conference Today.

All arrangements are now complete for the formal opening of the conference at 11 a. m. tomorrow. The formal speech of welcome will be made by the viceroy, Lord Bessborough, who will also read a message from King George. He will be followed by Prime Minister Bennett of Canada, who will propose a resolution of loyalty to the king.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the British-Irish constitutional squabble has been soft pedaled at least for the opening session. The wording of the loyalty resolution was agreed on at a meeting of the heads of delegations this morning and Vice President Sean T. O'Kelly of the Irish Free State said it was acceptable. The Irish will not be called on to take any positive stand, as the resolution will be formally put and declared carried without objection.

The heads of delegations also considered this morning the speeches to be made at the opening session and coordinated them so that there will be no public clash of opinion. Bennett will be followed by Baldwin and the heads of the other delegations in order of seniority after which Bennett will be elected chairman of the conference.

A chorus of Norwegian women gathered before the old Viking ship in Lincoln park yesterday and sang the songs of their native land. The program, an annual affair, was conducted by the Norwegian Woman's federation. Similar services have been held since 1919, when the Norwegian women's clubs of the city raised funds to restore the vessel, which was sailed across the ocean to the 1893 world's fair, and is a reproduction of such craft as the Vikings are supposed to have used in their pre-Columbian voyages to America.

He named his companions and they were captured at their homes. They are Stanley Bonk, 20 years old, 1807 West 21st street; Antone Odrowski, 16, of 1751 West 21st place, and Edward Grantsnar, 19, of 1831 West 21st street.

CALLS ON BRITAIN NOT TO FORGET BEST CUSTOMER

U. S. Trade Council Sends Reminder to Ottawa.

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—The National Foreign Trade council, in a statement issued here today, called on the imperial economic conference which opens in Ottawa tomorrow to "put heart into the world" and to formulate policies which will encourage rather than restrict international trade.

"The United States is an indispensable partner of the British empire," the statement declared, "and its greatest customer. Of every dollar we spend abroad 33 cents goes to the empire. In the last normal trading year, 1929, our purchase from empire units were a billion dollars, excluding an additional $400,000,000 paid to England herself.

"Great Britain only spent a billion and a half that year with her empire. That was 28 per cent of her total outside buying; the United States obtained 15 per cent of her outside purchases from the same empire. Outside Great Britain we are about as good a customer of the widely scattered empire as the motherland."

The Same Year by Year.

It was added that while the amounts had changed greatly in the last few years, the percentages were relatively the same in 1931 and 1932.

"Taking into consideration the severe price recession of the last two years in rubber, tin, jute, and other empire products, the actual volume of our import trade from the empire has diminished only by about 20 or 25 per cent," the statement averred.

It was pointed out that in the last five years American purchases of rubber in the Straits Settlements have averaged 200 million dollars annually, while paper from Canada took 150 million dollars from the United States and timber 70 million more.

Figures were quoted to show that this country purchases 75 per cent of the empire's rubber and that it buys more from Indian, British Malaya, Ceylon, Jamaica, Trinidad, the Gold Coast and Nigeria in Africa, Aden, Newfoundland, and British Honduras than it sells to them.

Balanced by U. S. Tourists.

However, the council asserted that the balance of Canadian rade was more than balanced in favor of the dominion by the spending of American tourists over the line.

In view of these facts, the National Foreign Trade council urged that the advice of the prince of Wales be followed. In his address to the imperial commissioners on their way to Ottawa he said on July 1:

"In the meantime it is of the utmost importance in our own interests that, so far from taking any steps that might discourage foreign countries, we should make every effort at Ottawa to put heart into the world and concert measures in which other countries later coöperate. The political differences of the world the empire cannot cure, but on the economic side cannot some message of hope go out to the world trade dying in the grip of almost universal restrictions?"

200 "HEIRS" SEE HARLEM; CLAIM GENEROUS SLICE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—A lot of out of town visitors—200 of them—gave Harlem the once over today and decided that a large slice of that thriving Negro neighborhood belonged to them by right of inheritance. The visiting "heirs" are all white and descendants of twenty-three old Dutch families who settled the township of New Haarlem before the revolutionary war.

The business of the "heirs," who are representing more than 2,000 claimants in the far west and central and southern states, was to tie a string to about 200 million dollars' worth of real estate. The string tying was done oratorically this afternoon. Later the courts will be called upon to endeavor to untangle the knots.

Once "Patented" Village.

The old town of New Haarlem was once a "patented" village. Its last papers were taken out in 1686, and at that time included all the northern part of Manhattan island from the site where Grant's tomb now stands to the tip.

Meeting in the red plush and gilt splendor of the Park palace on the edge of Harlem, the delegation of men and women held the first "town meeting" since New York City was a British possession. They organized a municipal government, selecting as "supervisor" Jesse S. Halstead of Oakland, Calif. Dr. J. H. Hanning, a dentist, was elected town clerk.

Down in deep Harlem along "strivers row," up and down Lenox avenue and out in front of the Cotton club and Connie's Inn things simmered, but it was the heat and not indignation at the whites. In fact, Harlem just grinned and said, "They can have it free after another year like this."

The Harlem property owners are not bothered. They consider the "heirs" as just another group of optimistic white folks and point out that the back taxes for a couple of hundred years mount up into real money and the "heirs" will have to pay up if they are ever awarded their claims.

The descendants, however, believe they have a valid claim on about 2,500 acres covered for the most part with red brick buildings. Today the "heirs" appeared to be thoroughly enjoying a holiday on the "old homestead." A lot of the men stripped off their coats and revealed galluses and rubber sleeveholders. Some of the leaders of the "Corporation of New Haarlem," as the organization has been named, bit off large quids of eating tobacco and sent out hurry calls for cuspidors. The women were all comfortable sized and given to low heels and petticoats.

Fight Under Way 10 Years.

The speeches—and there were plenty of them—brought out the fact that the fight for the property was begun ten years ago when Mr. Halstead organized the descendants. Already 1,842 persons have established their direct descent from the Dutch owners of New Haarlem and 2,300 more are being investigated by genealogists, who appear to be profiting more than any one else from the campaign.

F. A. Sawall and J. C. Farrell, introduced as Detroit investment brokers, said their confidence was such that they were financing the expenses of any of the delegates in return for one-half of whatever they [the heirs] may get.

NEWSPAPERS LEADING FIELD AS USUAL AS ADVERTISING MEDIUM

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—A survey of national advertising as comprising a large group of major industries reveals that newspapers continue to lead, generally by a substantial margin, in the advertising appropriations, it was announced today by the bureau of advertising, American Newspaper Publishers' association.

According to the survey, 435 national advertisers invested a total of $143,365,000 in newspaper space last year. Of these firms 190 also used magazine space to the extent of $78,317,815 and 121 used radio broadcast to an expenditure of $21,223,862. Of the thirty-two industrial divisions represented in this group of advertisers newspapers were the favored medium in twenty-five.

GERMAN BOXERS SEE THEIR FIRST BASEBALL GAME

Praise "Power of Batters' Stroke."

BY HEINZ REICHMANN,
[German Sports Writer in Chicago to Cover the International Golden Gloves Contests.]

Did you know that there are people who compare baseball with boxing?

The German boxers who will fight the Chicagoland Golden Gloves champions at Soldiers' field on Tuesday did it yesterday when they saw their first baseball game between the Cubs and the Giants at Wrigley field. They wanted to know the sport where one can make $80,000 dollars a year, work only six months, and out of the six months only about two hours daily.

"This reminds me of boxing," remarked Hans Ziglarski, "Look how the players are arguing with the umpire."

By the way, Hans was taught English in about ten minutes so he could say some words into the microphone of W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station. When prohibition will have passed away they ought to offer him a job as advertising manager for Munich beer.

When the announcer asked him where he came from he answered: "From Munich, where the best beer comes from. You ought to drink it."

"Please don't remind me," answered Bob Elson, the announcer. "It's too hot for thoughts like that."

Homers Provide Thrill.

"We cannot copy this," they said, "because it softens the effect of our punches. But what we ought to have sometimes is something like a catcher in the ring."

The Germans were amazed about the power the batters were putting behind their strokes when they made a home run.

"Just as exciting as a knockout," said Heinrich Kohlhaas, the heavyweight who was celebrating his 20th birthday yesterday. "But I would prefer to be a baseball batter. You hit and don't get hit back."

After the ball game the German team, escorted by a police squadron, went to Soldiers' field to inspect the place where they are going to defend Germany's honor against the American boys. They were surprised when they saw that a special wooden arena, which can seat 46,000 people, had been put up in the horseshoe of the stadium. The size of Soldiers' field made a big impression on the visitors. But they said they won't be nervous fighting before such a huge crowd.

"Warte, Warte," There, Charlie.

Yesterday was not all pleasure for the German boxers, who started training at 7 o'clock in the morning. After a short swim they did some road work for about 15 minutes. Their wind is so excellent that Coach Mandlar decided to drop road work as long as the sun is shining so mercilessly.

Training was delayed until 7 o'clock last night, so that the team gets more used to the late fighting hour. They took their work very seriously and sparred three rounds with each other.

The team knows that only the winners will continue their voyage to Los Angeles and the losers will return with the next steamer to Hamburg. So they want to be in their best form next Tuesday, and Coach Mandlar does not need to steam up their training interest.

After the workout the German boxers were weighed in and the scale proved that they all got their fighting weight already. Impatiently the team is counting the days and hours until they enter the ring. It won't be long now. "Warte, warte, nur ein Weilchen."

HOGAN AND OTT GET IDEA FROM WOODY ENGLISH

Rest Today; Then on to Pittsburgh.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

When the New York Giants do beat the Cubs they make a thorough job of it. In a manner highly reminiscent of the 13 to 3 spanking they accorded our fellows Monday, the New Yorkers yesterday draped the Chicagoans with a 9 to 1 shroud in the final of the five game series.

The blistering wasn't entirely unexpected, for Manager Rogers Hornsby, having in mind the arduous days ahead in Pittsburgh, and confronted with the presence of Carl Hubbell, the Giants' leading pitcher, put his tongue in his cheek and tried to skin by on second string pitching. You have heard the score of the ball game.

CARL HUBBELL.

At Pittsburgh Tomorrow.

The Pittsburgh Pirates again were kind enough to ease the Cubs' pains of defeat by losing also, so that the Cubs continued only two games behind the league leaders. The Pirates will play the Phillies again today, while the Cubs will be idle. Thus the big Cub-Pirate series will open tomorrow in Pittsburgh with the Cubs either 1½ or 2½ games behind the Pirates.

The game yesterday concluded a 16 day home stand against the eastern teams with the Cubs in possession of 11 victories, a percentage record of .687 for the home stand.

Now for the details of yesterday's rest up. First we will tell you of the Cubs' offensive. It consisted of a homer by English in the first inning.

Shanty Gets One, Too.

English's homer was matched by a bigger homer knocked in the second by a bigger man, one Shanty Hogan. Those two homers made the score

CONVENTIONS AND TRAINING.

Wawasee, Ind., July 20.—[Special.]—Friend Arch: Well, Arch, the regional convention of the National Furniture Warehouse association has ended after four days. Since the warehouse men and the Golden Gloves boxers training to meet the Germans at Soldiers' field next Tuesday night had fraternized to some extent, Bill Hoag of the visitors, who majordomoed that party, sought Trainer Johnny Behr and said, "We've enjoyed meeting the boys and they have not disturbed us at all."

"Disturbed you?" retorted Johnny, rather more crisply than really seemed necessary. "How could they, unless they disturbed you when they got up in the morning?"

Here was the point, Arch. Warehouse men, we've discovered, are addicted to song. As they held business sessions in the daytime, song was reserved for nights. Well, Arch, they even sang "Sweet Adeline." Now from locker room experience, you may know how much stimulus and time is required to arrive at the "Sweet Adeline" stage which has been preceded by "Happy Days," "A Long, Long Trail," your Notre Dame victory song, "On, Wisconsin," and all the old reliables. That was what Johnny referred to, because he thought maybe our boys didn't sleep well, and maybe they didn't.

Anyway, the warehouse boys were a nice bunch from all the central states, and a whole lot from Chicago. I think you know Floyd Bateman from Wilmette, and Joe Corcoran and George Anderson from Evanston. Joe's wife belongs to that infant welfare junior auxiliary that has you looking through your closets for clothes for its annual rummage sale, clothes you really ought to keep in these times, but you fall for the charity.

Surely you know Jim McAuliffe of your neighborhood, because he probably moved your wares to your present location. I used to think the moving van bills were fairly high, but after seeing the boys in action I don't begrudge those bills any more.

You see, some one had a birthday the first three nights of the convention and that required celebration. They were out of real birthdays, but Ray Conway told the bunch it was Mike Murray's birthday for the final. Murray had another birthday last January, but evidently that one didn't take, for he had another one.

Following the birthday parties it was customary for some of the warehouse men to attempt to ride the wooden donkey on the lake. That took place at 3 a. m. I have never ridden one at that hour with all my clothes on. Neither had Eddie Anderson nor Jimmy Kane. They didn't this time, but they tried any way. Perhaps that's one reason Johnny Behr thought our boys didn't sleep so well.

Of course, I knew about a half dozen of them and several asked for you and they all said they read THE TRIBUNE, so I thought Louis Rose would like some one with them, on account of the

THIS LEAGUE OF NATIONS FIGHTS—FOR CHICAGOLAND

BY WILFRID SMITH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Wawasee, Ind., July 20.—The league of nations Golden Gloves team is ready for the eight boys from Germany. Four days of training remain, and except for minor injuries, which will be healed soon, Chicago's fighters could step into Soldiers' field arena tomorrow.

Three rounds each and all in condition to go twice that was the story of this afternoons' drills. The days at this lake have worked wonders. You wouldn't recognize these boxers for the same bunch which arrived ten days ago.

All Have One Aim.

They call the Golden Glovers, Chicagoland fighters. But in reality they are as heterogeneous a crew as ever was assembled. Jew, Pole, German, Lithuanian, Belgian, Irish, Negro, Italian. So runs the list. Never was the melting pot of America better illustrated. And these boys, Americans all—have one ambition in common. They want the eight who will represent the squad to batter the German champions. Eight victories, if possible, but at least five so that the international title will stay in Chicago.

Here are the members of the squad and their nationalities: Al Soukup, Bohemian; Vernon Miller, John Baltzer, Tony Sutton, Germans; Frank May, Duffy Dvonch, Austrian-German; Lennie Cohen, George Goodman, Jews; Leo Rodak, Ukranian; George Haberski, Charley Neigo, Adolph Wiater, Poles; John Phagan, Negro; Henry Rothier, Belgian; Bill Connell, English-Irish; Adam Smith, Lithuanian, and Laddie Tonelli, Italian.

Sutton, Phagan Take It Easy.

Tony Sutton, who did not box because of his cut eye, and Johnny Phagan, who eased up in his three rounds with Charley Neigo to favor a strained back muscle, represent the only drawbacks to what so far has been a perfect camp. Frankie May has a sore thumb, but it doesn't bother him. He and Leo Rodak stepped three fast rounds today.

Johnny Coulon and his wife, accompanied by friends, visited the camp today. Johnny is a former bantamweight champion of the world, and he entertained the crowd at ringside with his famous "Now you lift me, now you can't" act. Others who came down for the day were Pep Kerwin, Sam Abruscato, and Frank Kalteux, all members of The Tribune Officials' association. Bud Borelli came in for two rounds with Connell.

Phagan will draw a rest tomorrow and so will Sutton, except for a workout in the morning with the coaches, who will not shoot at his cut eye. The others will drop back to a two round boxing schedule with the usual minutes on the bags and ropes.

White Sox Quit East, but Not Soon Enough; Lose Again, 7-2

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 20.—The day that released the White Sox from further labor in the east, for the time being, was just another day. The top place Yankees, recognising the fact that a kindly foe was departing, adopted as their theme song, "We'll Give You Something to Remember Us By." They gave it to the tune of 7 to 2 for a sweep of the five game series. It was the 14th trimming in 18 starts for the Sox since they came east, which could have been worse—but not much.

FRANK GRUBE.

The Chicago defects in the grand finale was just about the same as usual. Their fielding was a bit panicky, although it doesn't show much in the error column. The way in which the Yanks fastened hits on Peter Daglia also caused panic. And the Sox, probably because they didn't want to make it possible for anybody to say anything good about them, refrained from any serious hitting against Johnny Allen. At one point they actually had a one run lead on him, but promptly went into a trance and came up with only two hits in the last six innings.

Daglia's Trouble Starts Early.

Daglia had quite a load on his broad chest in the first inning, but shook it off without the loss of more than one run. Byrd opened with a single to left and Sewell punched a hit past Kress. Chapman singled through second, but Appling knocked it down and thus held Byrd at third. With the bases loaded, Gehrig sailed a long fly to Funk and Byrd scored. Combs and Lazzeri were easy.

Grube led off in the third with a two bagger past Byrd in center and this little contribution grew into the Sox only runs. Daglia fanned and Funk filed to left, but Hayes sur-

HILENA, RACING'S GOLD DIGGER, IS LASSIE WINNER

BY FRENCH LANE.

Fleet Hilena from down in Virginia raced to a surprise victory in the Lassie stakes, worth $25,230, the world's richest 2 year old filly stake, at Arlington Park yesterday.

After Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Screech beat the barrier and flew into a lead of three lengths, Hilena came up on the outside at the end of the first quarter, dashed to the front and, with Jockey Sonny Workman riding her stoutly, won by a length and a half from the favorite, Edelweiss.

Returns $13.66.

Hilena, which had won the Debutante stakes at Washington Park, wasn't entirely without backers in the Dollar Day crowd of 12,000. And the presence of Workman in the saddle mustered more supporters.

As a result she wound up by paying $13.66 to win, $5.30 to place, and $3.16 to show. Edelweiss paid $3.90 to place and $2.26 to show. Swivel's show price was $2.38.

Hilena had to be a real champion to win. She was forced to run the six furlongs in 1:10 2-5, within a fifth of a second of the track record. Once in the lead, she never hesitated and was going just as courageously in the late stages as in the early part of the race.

She's a Gold Digger.

It was in the Lassie stakes last year that Top Flight started her drive toward the 3 year old championship. Hilena, as fleet as she might be, will hardly reach that goal. For since she won the debutante at Washington Park, she has been a most inconsistent filly. In fact, she hadn't won a race and was beaten at times by some ordinary 2 year olds.

But Hilena seems to be one of those money horses. She gets into a running mood when big dough is up. Some folks might be so mean as to call her a gold digger.

But She Didn't Win.

It was a truly run race, although lots of folks, even after the official numbers were posted, were not satisfied that Hilena was the best. These folks were of the opinion Edelweiss was the better filly.

But Edelweiss didn't seem to have any bad luck. She was slow to get into motion. That was her own fault or the fault of her jockey, the alert Hank Mills. She made up lots of ground. She was running faster than

Favelli Defeats Saielli, 7 and 5, for Junior Title

Favelli was 4 up at the end of the morning 18 holes, increased his advantage one stroke on the out nine in the afternoon, and then won the 28th. He halved the next two, and finished the match on the 31st with a par 4 while Saielli was taking 5.

In the class A division, reserved for youngsters under 18 years of age, Edwin Schildberg, New Trier school boy, and Billy Walrath of Kildeer engaged in a see-saw battle, the former finally winning, one up in 36 holes.

In the Favelli-Saielli match the two boys were all even on the first nine, but coming home Saielli couldn't run down his putts, enabling Favelli to win five of the nine holes. They halved three while Saielli took the 18th to finish the 18 with Favelli four up.

Favelli increased his advantage in the afternoon by winning the first hole. For the remainder of the nine they shot each hole in identical scores. Favelli terminated the match on the 31st, having increased his lead to 7 by winning the 28th, 31st, and final hole.

Feels like a two-base hit, says Charley Grimm, captain of the Cubs, as he takes his life in his hands and allows Heinrich Kohlhaas, German heavyweight champion, to land a blow in workouts at Germania club.

CONDESCEND HAS CLOSE CALL IN RICHMOND PURSE

Favorite at Empire City Beats French Lass.

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Frank E. Brown's Condescend, winner of four races in a row at Jamaica last spring, won for the first time since that sequence when he was first in the Richmond purse, feature at Empire City this afternoon. Condescend's margin at the end of the six furlongs was only a nose, and a short one at that.

The leader for most of the way, and the one which led through the stretch until the last stride, was W. L. Johnson's French Lass, the 6 year old Baigneur mare, which long has been known as a formidable sprinter. She was an 8 to 1 shot as against 7 to 10 for Condescend.

Winner a Genuine Favorite.

The big brown gelding was the shortest priced favorite of the afternoon, even though he had 125 pounds in the saddle and had not been first in nine efforts since his winning streak at Jamaica. The impost did not prove too much, nor did the supposed handicap of running down close to the rail.

Condescend finished in 1:10 2-5 and was ridden by Jack Long. He was a trailer in the early stages when Queenly Way and Caerleon battled for the lead, only to have French Lass forge up on the outside and show the way to both of them. On the bend French Lass had half a length the best of this pair and several lengths the best of Condescend, which was taken to the inside approaching the stretch turn.

French Lass drove into the stretch half a length to the good, despite the ground Long saved with Condescend along the fence. The mare was driving, but doing it in so game a manner that it looked as if she might win.

Long Goes to Work.

Long then sat down to get every ounce of speed the Brown color bearer possessed. He skimmed the rail, gained steadily on French Lass, and dropped Condescend's nose in front for the judges to see.

Five lengths back of French Lass James Butler's Spring Fever landed third.

The afternoon started well for favorites when Joseph Edwards' Bank Shot, driven down to even money, led all the way to score by three lengths.

CARNERA STOPS JACK GROSS IN SEVENTH ROUND

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Primo Carnera, giant Italian heavyweight making his first appearance in this country since his unsuccessful invasion of Europe, scored a technical knockout over Jack Gross of Philadelphia in the seventh round of a scheduled ten round bout at Ebbets' field tonight. Carnera weighed 268 pounds and Gross 206½.

The end came ten seconds before the bell would have ended the seventh round after Gross arose from taking a count of seven. Up until the seventh, Carnera's numerous rights apparently had little effect on the Philadelphian. Gross answered the Italian's rights with an occasional offensive, but failed to make the giant European give ground.

In the seventh, Carnera pounded his smaller opponent almost at will, driving him into a corner. Gross managed to fight his way out of the corner but was groggy. A flurry of rights and lefts sent Gross to the mat. He got up at the count of seven, but was out on his feet and the referee stopped the fight.

Hilena, Turf's Gold Digger, Wins Lassie

all the others as they neared the finish. But Hilena still was a length and a half in front of her. Swivel even had fewer excuses to offer than Edelweiss, for she began in third place, and, running a good even race, stayed third all the way.

Barn Swallow and Screech had nothing left to finish on, after Hilena had carried the field to the quarter in :22 2-5 and to the half in the sizzling time of :45 2-5. The early pace had been so fast those behind Hilena, with the exception of Edelweiss, had nothing with which to challenge in the late stages.

She Has Been Sick.

Hilena is a daughter of High Cloud-Felina II., and is a home bred from the Audley farm. Early in the season she was regarded as one of the fleetest 2 year olds in the country. Then she took down with a sick spell and recovered just in time to be ready to win the Debutante stakes at Washington Park. Trainer Kay Spence has allowed her to take things easy since that victory and apparently built her up for the rich Lassie.

Most of the regular race goers are worrying about whether Equipoise can carry 134 pounds and win the $20,000 added Arlington Handicap Saturday.

There wasn't much worry in the Equipoise training camp yesterday morning after the champion reeled off a mile and a quarter—the handicap route—in 2:06.

Equipoise carried more weight in this training drill than he will in the handicap on Saturday afternoon. And he could have run much faster if the boy in the saddle had asked him for speed at any stage of the journey.

Trainer Fred Hopkins was elated with the work and went ahead with plans to start Equipoise in the handicap.

Remember how old Plucky Play upset the dope now and then last year and beat the best horses to return tall dividends? He also turned in a very shifty workout yesterday for the Arlington Handicap in 2:07 1-5. He's in the handicap very light and will bear watching.

Lady Broadcast was cut down so badly in the running of the Ravinia Sweepstakes Tuesday she may have to be destroyed. She sold for $26,000 less than two years ago and every effort is being made to save her for breeding purposes.

Regulars at Arlington are beginning to play the horses the young jockey, W. Wright, rides. He got 'em away to a flying start yesterday when he got R. L. Woodard's Stinger up in time to win the first race and later on booted home the heavily backed Zida.

Wheeling Gulls Call Camper to Rest for Night

BY BOB BECKER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Upper Peninsula, Mich., July 20.—Steering our automobile northward on one of the many highways leading to vacation lands, we have found a comparatively new Michigan park which gives the camper excellent choice of tent sites right on Lake Michigan. We found this tenting ground on highway 35 leading out of Menominee. Our route had taken us into Marinette, Wis., and then across the bridge into Menominee, where a choice of highways presented itself. One may follow the shore line of Lake Michigan over highway 35 or take the hard road inland, thence east to Escanaba, Mich.

We took the former route, a winding, wooded, gravel road that gives one a vista of Lake Michigan's waters. For the most part the beach along this shore is shallow and campers may splash around without worrying about the art of swimming.

On some of the bars which were just under the water the gulls were numerous, some dozing in the hot sun as the cool water eddied around them while others searched for food. If the traveler follows this shore line route he finally comes to a Michigan state park which has many fine camp sites in readiness. These sites are just a few rods from the beach in stands of fragrant cedars and hemlocks. The state has sunk wells so that drinking water is available all along the property.

Continuing on highway 35 to Escanaba we swung eastward across the upper peninsula over route 2, which took us past Indian lake into Manistique. Then we angled north to Blaney which is in the center of a trout fishing region which we visited in June. We checked into this territory in time to pick up the trail of several ornithologists who have been conducting investigations in this region. W. I. Lyon, the well known bird bander of Waukegan, Ill., just passed through here on his way to band gulls and terns on Lake Michigan islands and Walter Hastings, Michigan's famous bird photographer and naturalist, also has been here.

PATER-FILIUS TOURNEY TODAY AT NORTH SHORE

The 28th annual Milothian Pater-Filius tournament, one of the oldest and best recognized golf events in the United States, will be held today at the North Shore Golf club in Glen View. Heretofore the Pater-Filius, which brings together Chicago's leading father and son teams, has been held at Midlothian, but this year it has been placed in charge of the Chicago District Golf association.

Play will be at 36 holes, the father and son having the low net winning the Pater-Filius trophy.

Among the entries already received are those of Judge Charles S. Cutting and his son, Robert, vice president of the United States Golf association; the John A. Benders; the N. Landon Hoyts; the Hiram D. Fargos; the Otto H. Hassels; the C. Earl Pritchards; the Thomas G. McMahons; the Walter G. Schmidts, and the John Van Nortwicks.

C. Y. O. GOLFERS COMPETE TODAY FOR SHEIL CUP

The first annual golf tournament of the Catholic Youth organization, competing for the Bishop Sheil cup, will be held today at Walnut Hills Country club, 103d street and Roberts road. The event, which has attracted a large entry list of teams and individuals representing nearly every parish in the Chicago diocese, is distinctive in that the priest of each parish competing will lead his club in team play. The Rt. Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, bishop of Chicago, will attend and award the trophies.

Kiwanis, Rotary Play Golf at Harvey Course Today

The Harvey Kiwanis and Rotary clubs will join with the Harvey Chamber of Commerce in its annual golf tournament, to be held at the Dixie-Hi golf course, west of Harvey, today.

Kid McCoy Freed from California Prison; Gets Job

Detroit, Mich., July 20.—[Special.]—The gates of San Quentin, Cal., prison swung open for Kid McCoy today after eight years. McCoy, who entered the prison for killing his sweetheart, owes his freedom to a man whom he befriended when he was at the top of the boxing world.

That man, then a young navy boxer, was Harry H. Bennett, now the Ford Motor company service department. McCoy was sentenced to 20 years, but he was paroled today because of the promise of a job which he would go to immediately after leaving prison.

"Before I met the Kid, I didn't know how to take care of myself," Bennett said today. "The Kid taught me most of the tricks I know."

Fonseca Sends Sox to Montreal; He Goes Scouting

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 20.—About a half dozen of the White Sox athletes started for Chicago early this evening. The others went to Montreal for an exhibition game tomorrow. They hope to be able to get back to Chicago in time to keep a Saturday date with the Indians.

Before starting out on a scouting trip, Manager Fonseca announced the release of Pat Caraway, the lengthy southpaw, to Ray Schalk's Buffalo International league team. For two seasons Caraway was quite a pitcher, but the boys wised up to his trick delivery last year and he now is practically helpless.

Babe Ruth came out to the game and sat with the Australian cricket players, who, from time to time, wanted to know what was going on. The Babe thinks he'll be playing in another week, although he can just about hobble now.

Benny Chapman, the league's leading burglar, stole his 24th base in the third inning, but it was more or less of a gift. Appling had him with room to spare but didn't hold the ball. Benny got his 25th later.

Sox Quit East, but Too Late; Lose Again, 7-2

vived when hit on the wrist by a pitched ball. Seeds aimed a two bagger over first base and, with the help of Chapman's return throw to second instead of to the plate, Hayes was able to score after Grube. Sewell made a neat one handed stop of a hard grounder by Fothergill or there'd have been another run.

Then the Panic Starts.

Daglia walked Chapman to start the fifth. This proved costly. Chapman immediately stole for the second time, making his total 25 for the season. Gehrig bounced out gently, but Combs scratched a hit to Appling, putting Chapman on third. Then Crosetti lined into left center. Funk finally caught up with the ball, but by the time it was returned to the infield Crosetti had scored behind Chapman and Combs. Crosetti drove in another in the seventh by singling after Gehrig had done the same.

Hits—But for What?

After being hitless since the third, and not even getting a man to base in the interval, the visitors gave Allen a surprise in the eighth by singling. Grube did it to start the inning. Blue batted for Daglia and Lyons ran for Grube.

Blue flied out, Funk rolled to Gehrig, and Hayes walked, after which Seeds fouled out. Then Fothergill furnished a single to open the ninth and he had to stand on first while the next three batters were boosting flies into Chapman's hands.

Three Double Headers on W. I. League Card Sunday

Klein Hits 2 Homers; Phils Beat Pirates

Pittsburgh, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—Chuck Klein was ill today, but he hammered his way out of a batting slump with two homers and a triple, while the Phillies handed the first place Pirates another trimming, 6 to 2. The Phillies' right fielder suffered a stomach attack induced by the excessive heat and complained that he was unable to sleep last night.

Edgar Holley, rookie, won his ninth victory of the season. The Phils hit Meine and Spencer for 13 hits. Score:

Malone Will Open Series Tomorrow Against Pirates

And now the decks are clear for the big series between the Cubs and the Pirates. There will be single games in Pittsburgh tomorrow and Saturday, after which the teams will journey to Wrigley field for a Sunday double header.

The ticket sale indicates the largest crowd of the season for that Sabbath clash.

Malone will open the series tomorrow. Saturday it will be either Bush or Root.

Starting Grimes yesterday wasn't altogether a wild gamble. In the last game he finished Burleigh beat that same Hubbell, 2 to 1.

Here's a summary of the long home stand of the Cubs which ended yesterday: Against the Phillies the Cubs won 3 and lost none; against the Braves the Cubs won 3 and lost 1; against the Dodgers the Cubs won 2 and lost 2; against the Giants the Cubs won 3 and lost 2.

In the third the Giants got to Grimes for—and, by the way, did we mention that Grimes was the starting pitcher and stayed out there long enough to suffer his ninth loss of the year? As we were saying, it seems that the Giants solved Grimes in the third inning, though the old boy's crumpling process was aided on some unguinly fielding by that normally agile man, Kiki Cuyler.

With one out in the third, Hubbell socked the first of three successive hits he accomplished for a perfect day at bat. It was a single to left. Moore also singled to left and Hubbell stopped at second. Critz forced Moore for the second out and then Ott got credit for a triple when his hit rolled under Cuyler's feet and went on to the center field stands, Hubbell and Critz scoring. Terry walked and Lindstrom singled to left, scoring Ott and putting Terry on third. Hacke made a nice play to get Hogan for the belated third out.

Ott Knocks No. 18.

Old Burleigh's demise came in the fourth inning. He started off by hitting Verges with a pitched ball. Verges went to second while Hack was throwing out Marshall and to third on Hubbell's single over second. Moore singled to center, Verges scoring and Hubbell stopping at second. Grimes gave up and May came in. Critz again furnished the second out, this time with a fly to Cuyler which put Hubbell on third. Ott then knocked his second homer in two days and his 18th of the season, scoring Hubbell and Moore ahead of him.

The Giants went scoreless in the fifth, despite a single by Hogan and a double by Hubbell, but in the sixth they scored an unearned run to wind up their day's production, it being much too hot for further tearing around the bases. With one out, Ott reached first when Cuyler muffed his high fly, advanced when Terry was hit by a pitched ball, and scored on Lindstrom's single to left.

Sarazen's Birdies Win Over Armour in Exhibition Play

South Bend, Ind., July 20.—[Special.]—Gene Sarazen's birdies on the last two holes enabled the British and U. S. open champion, and Don Ransberger, local amateur, to defeat Johnny Woolverton, also of South Bend, and Tommy Armour, 1 up, in an exhibition match at the Chain o' Lakes Country club today. Sarazen missed an eagle on the last green when his putt rimmed the cup. His final spurt enabled him to finish two strokes under par and tie the course record of 69. Duke Welling, who caddied for Sarazen, set the record last year. Armour shot a 73. Woolverton had 83 and Ransberger 84.

AUSTRALIANS TO START ALL-STAR CRICKET LINEUP

Eight of the world's leading cricket players will appear in the lineup of the championship Australian team against a picked Chicago squad in the first of a four game series in Grant park just south of Buckingham fountain Saturday. The game will start at noon.

Outstanding in the visiting front is young Don Bradman, who was married in Sydney, N. S. W., just before the team sailed for America. Mrs. Bradman is accompanying her husband. Other Australian headliners are Stan McCabe, R. Nutt, Vic Richardson, captain; Manager Arthur Mailey, L. O. Fleetwood-Smith and Allan Kippax.

The team will arrive at the Twelfth Street station at 8:05 o'clock Saturday morning and will be welcomed by Greeter George Gaw and Ald. S. W. Govier, representing Mayor A. J. Cermak. City Controller M. S. Szymczak will address a banquet in honor of the Australians at the Morrison hotel Saturday night.

CHICAGO LEADS QUALIFIERS FOR U. S. LINKS PLAY

Louisville, Ky., July 20.—[Special.]—Chicago qualified three men in the national public links championship played over the Shawnee golf course today. Pete Miller of Cherry Hill, led the trio with rounds of 73—74—147. Hank Foley Jr., of Silver lake, was next with 75—75—150, and Gus Fetz of Mid City, had 77—75—152. Chicago was the only city with three qualifiers.

The Warren G. Harding cup was won by Louisville, with 606 strokes, a new record. Chicago was second, one stroke behind with a 36 hole total for four men of 607. Wilbur Kokes was the fourth member of the team. He shot 80—78—158. Carl Jankowski of West Gate valley, had 81—78—159 for the qualifying rounds while Art Huebner finished with 82—85—167.

Sixteen year old Joe Nicols of Long Beach, Cal., who has been playing around Chicago for the last two weeks won medalist honors with 71—74—145.

PUT OFF MIDWEST PUBLIC LINKS GOLF TOURNEY

The fifth annual midwest public links tournament has been postponed, President Homer Deane of the Lincoln Park Golf club, which sponsors the event, announced yesterday. The action was taken as a courtesy to the Jackson Park Golf club, which will hold its twenty-ninth annual city tournament, the oldest golf meet in Chicago, next week.

Entries for the midwest tournament, which will be played from Aug. 1 to 6, inclusive, will be accepted at the tee. Among those already received is that of Al Anderseggen of Jackson Park, present Cook county open champion, who won the title last year. The entry fee is $2.50. Sixty-four players will qualify.

The city meet at Jackson Park, which was taken over by the national public links players from California last year, is expected to draw another large number of entries from the United States tournament now in progress at Louisville.

COEN GOES INTO THIRD ROUND OF EASTERN TENNIS

Huntington, N. Y., July 20.—[Special.]—Junior Coen, Kansas City, entered the third round in the Crescent-Hamilton club invitation tennis tournament today. He defeated Elbert Lewis, Los Angeles, 5-7, 6-0, 6-1. Dr. Eugene McCauliff, New York, won by default from Bryan Grant, Atlanta, Ga. Grant could not go through with his match because of an injured left knee.

U. S. Takes 3d of Yacht Series with England

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RYDE, ISLE OF WIGHT, England, July 20.—The United States increased its lead against England by sweeping the third race of the series for the British-America six meter yacht cup today. Nancy won the race with three other American boats behind her. The fourth race will be held Friday.

ANNOUNCE PLAN TO REORGANIZE THE GRANVILLE

Plan Extension of Date of Maturity.

BY AL CHASE.

If 100 per cent of the bonds of the Granville apartments at the southwest corner of Granville and Artesian avenues are deposited with the Chicago Title and Trust company, on or before Sept. 1, a reorganization plan is to be effected whereby foreclosure proceedings will be avoided, an extension of the maturity date made, and interest due May 1, 1932, will be paid, according to Charles T. Rothermel, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, in a letter sent to the bondholders. The committee is composed of Oscar H. Haugan, C. Edward Carlson, Perkins B. Bass, William A. Peterson, and Holman D. Pettibone, chairman.

OSCAR H. HAUGAN.

The original bond issue was for $47,500, underwritten by the Foreman-State Trust and Savings bank, since reduced to $35,000. The building contains twelve four room apartments. The property is 100 per cent occupied. The borrowers are unable to refinance a new loan to pay the bonds, which all matured on May 1, 1932.

Mr. Rothermel in his letter outlines the plan of putting the property back on its feet so that neither the bondholders nor the owner will lose out. The maturity date is to be extended to May 1, 1937, with interest at 5 per cent, and the owner is to sign the agreement providing for such an extension.

Income to Trustee.

"The agreement will require that the entire net income be deposited with the trustee each month, together with a complete monthly operating statement of the mortgaged premises," said Mr. Rothermel. "The net income after the reserve for interest shall be used to pay any and all taxes which remain outstanding.

"It is estimated that such unpaid taxes, together with the balance to become due, will be entirely liquidated from the earnings within the next two years. After all taxes have been brought up to date, the surplus after the payment of interest is to be used for the retirement of bonds at the best price obtainable.

"The owner has waived his right to receive any income from the property until the bondholders have been paid. Any charges in connection with the negotiations of this extension shall be paid by the owner. In addition, he has deposited an amount sufficient to pay the interest which became due May 1, 1932, with authority to pay this to the bondholders as and when the extension is granted."

Casa Villa Apartments.

Bondholders of the Casa Villa apartments, at the northeast corner of Chicago avenue and Cass street, have been notified by Mr. Rothermel of a liquidation trust plan of reorganization whereby the title to the property will be placed in the Chicago Title and Trust company, as trustee, with three trust managers to operate it.

The trio will be composed of Perkins B. Bass and Mr. Rothermel, representing the bondholders, and Carroll Sudler of Sudler & Co., realty firm, representing the owner of the equity. All but a small percentage of the bonds have been deposited, Mr. Rothermel states. He also points out that a foreclosure suit will be avoided if this plan is carried out.

Form New Committee.

Holders of bonds sold through Baer, Eisendrath & Co. were notified yesterday that a new committee composed of Edward G. Felsenthal, Clarence L. Coleman Jr., and Mervin K. Baer has been formed to handle defaulted issues which have not been called for deposit by the Realty Investors' trust. Mr. Felsenthal is president and Mr. Coleman is secretary of the Realty Investors' trust. Mr. Baer is secretary of the Waldrath company.

"This newly organized committee will handle each defaulted issue individually," the announcement states. "Although the pooling feature of the Realty Investors' trust cannot be adopted by the committee, the general policies now pursued by the trust and the Waldrath company, which aim to save all possible expense and to protect the best interests of the bondholders only, will be continued by the committee. It will endeavor wherever possible to avoid foreclosure and receivership."

Deposit of bonds of fifty-five Baer, Eisendrath & Co. issues are requested in the announcement mailed last night to the bondholders.

ODDS NOW SEEN FAVORING GAINS IN SEPTEMBER

Optimism Growing in Trade World.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Reports on trade and finance from various sections of the country gave further indication of increasing optimism among business men. In many quarters there is a feeling that many lines of business are rapidly adjusting themselves so that by September the odds will not be against an upturn, as they have been in each of the last two years.

In the securities markets there have been so many cries of "Wolf" over the situation in England, France, Germany, Austria, Rumania, Estonia, etc., that even news of events in Germany yesterday had little effect on bonds. Stocks went up, many gains of 1 to 2 points being made.

One of the most encouraging developments yesterday was the statement emanating from the railroad presidents' meeting in New York, which indicated that the rail heads, for the first time since the roads were released from government operation in 1920, are intent upon demanding the right to run their properties according to the dictates of good business.

Steel Hopes Brighten.

Although the iron and steel business anticipates no great improvement in commitments before the end of August, reports yesterday showed that it is becoming increasingly confident of an upturn in September. The hopes of steel men have been buoyed up somewhat by encouraging reports from agricultural sections and the prospect of better demand from the oil industry.

"While business is not yet manifesting definite improvement," says the Iron Age, "it is holding its own, suggesting that a bottom has been struck from which advances will be made when autumn seasonal influences make themselves felt.

"Moreover, price weakness, which was particularly pronounced among primary materials, seems to be disappearing."

Auto Output Figures.

The recession in automobile production has been less than anticipated. Chevrolet in July stepped up its production program from 25,000 to 30,000 cars. Ford's schedule has been fairly even and the company is expected to fulfill its schedule of 85,000 cars for the months. The Hudson company is reported working at a good rate on a new model, just announced, and has bought steel for 10,000 new cars.

The report of electric power production for the week ended July 16 was disappointing, showing a drop of 13.9 per cent from the corresponding period last year, the sharpest drop thus far. There was, however, some gain over the preceding week, which included the July 4 holiday.

Electricity output for the Chicago district for the week ended July 16 was 84,900,000 kilowatt hours, compared with 96,673,000 kilowatt hours in the corresponding week of 1931, a decrease of 12.2 per cent.

Wholesale Trade Better.

Wholesale trade in Chicago, according to Dun's weekly review, made a much better showing than did retail trade, which was in midsummer dol-

Federal Grip on Business Called Danger

BY SCRUTATOR.

A congressional committee has started out to discover the various ways in which the federal government is competing with its citizens in business. The committee began a series of hearings this week, starting in Kansas City, and what it discovers and, later on, its findings will be duly reported. What these findings will be and what the inquiry will cost the taxpayer remain to be seen.

Pertinent to the investigation are some recent discussions of the effects of government in business. They come from W. E. Mallalieu, general manager of the National Board of Fire Underwriters, and C. D. Morris, assistant to the chairman of the Western Railway's committee of public relations. Both present pithy arguments why the government must stay out of business.

Reasons to Keep Out.

"There are some very practical reasons why the government should not be in business," Mr. Mallalieu says. "To begin with, government pays no taxes on its business operations. This means that taxes on all other business must be increased proportionately as 'government in business' grows. For all other businesses must pay taxes—taxes that are so heavy in some cases that they have forced concerns out of business.

"A second point is that government business, in addition to not paying taxes, is likewise not required to pay interest on the government capital which set it up. It is not compelled, generally speaking, to pay off these loans. But remember, it is your money that is in the investment.

"A third important consideration is that no government enterprise has the profit urge behind it. And without this profit urge there can be but one form of business organization—complete nationalization of all industry and commerce. In an economic sense, the government exists largely through the taxes it levies on the profits earned by business. If there are no profits, there can be no taxes. Nationalization and complete loss of individual opportunity automatically follow."

Government Harms Business.

The fear inspired in business men by government encroachments and regulations is commented on by Mr. Morris, who, while speaking from the railroad point of view, still draws a more composite picture.

"Responsibility for the activity of our government in private business affairs rests upon business men quite as much as upon public officials," he says. "So long as the government confined its interference in private business to the railroads, there was little or no objection urged by the multitude of business men who are now howling because the government is competing with them. But once having departed from the fundamentals enunciated in our organic law, the habit of doing so seems to have become fixed, so that no one now seems to have any well defined idea of what is going to happen next.

"For months business men generally have been expressing the hope that congress would adjourn and go home so that business might have a chance to go ahead. No commitments looking toward industrial activity of any kind have been made during the life of the present congress, the reason assigned therefor being the fear that some law might be passed that would ruin the entire proposition. Under such a condition as this, is there any wonder that business is in a slough of despond with slight hope of pulling itself out.

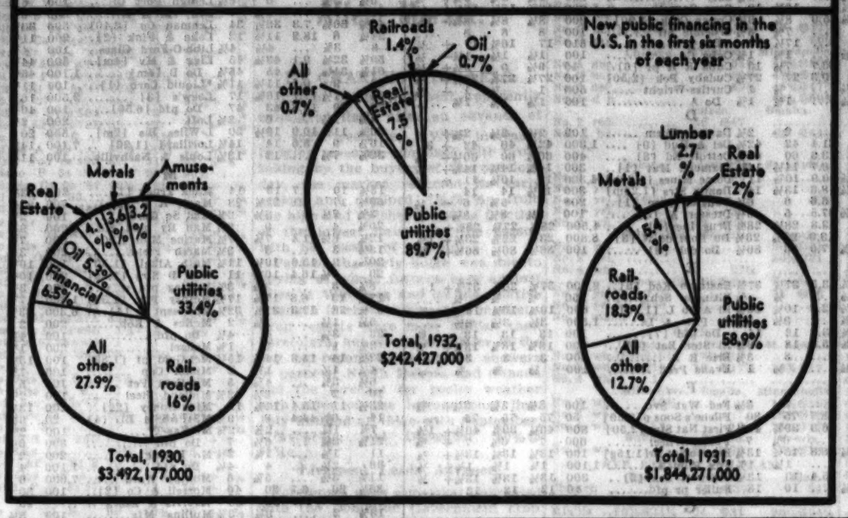
"During a recent address in congress, Representative Shannon showed conclusively that the government is engaged in the merchandising business, just as it is in transportation, insurance, banking, manufacturing, agriculture, printing and a multitude of other activities in direct competition with its citizens. The editor of Nation's Business recently exhibited a list of more than 80 separate instances of government activity in private enterprises.

Harder to Make Profits.

"There are two results of this sort of thing plainly manifest. Business men find it more and more difficult to earn a reasonable profit from their activities, while the cost of government has risen by leaps and bounds until now it aggregates something like one-fourth of the national income. Last year the railroad paid in taxes more than $3 for every $1 of their net revenues, while the farmers of the country paid something like 36 per cent of their total income for the same purpose.

"To imagine that any country can be prosperous under such conditions is but to advertise our senility. The only remedy lies in getting the government back to the place the fathers intended it should occupy."

Public Utilities Got 90 per Cent of Funds for New Securities Sold in First Six Months



FOREIGN COPPER AT 4.55 CENTS SETS NEW LOW MARKET RECORD

New York, July 20.—[Special.]—Copper sold in the world market, outside the newly erected domestic tariff barriers, continued to weaken today, touching a new all time low at 4.55 cents a pound, against 4.65 cents yesterday. Larger producers were said to be offering the metal abroad at the former price.

The domestic price remained unchanged. Larger producers asked 3⅝ cents a pound and custom smelters offered at 5¼, the same prices which have obtained for several months.

The weakness of the world copper market was not surprising to copper men, who predicted that imposition of the tariff in the United States would increase the pressure of offerings abroad.

REPORT DU PONT INTERESTS GET CHECKER SHARES

New York, July 20.—(AP)—Reports were current today that interests closely identified with the Du Pont-Raskob group had acquired an interest in the Checker Cab Manufacturing company.

The election of three new directors was announced today. They were William Freiday of South Orange, N. J., a member of the staff of Gov. A. Harry Moore of that state; G. Ray Kaiser, said to represent Wilmington, Del., interests, and Lervis F. Huttonlocker of New York.

In addition to Mr. Kaiser, another man who is said to be closely associated with some of the Du Pont interests is R. W. Ellis, who was recently associated with John J. Raskob, and who is also a recently elected director.

Recent operations of the company have been unsatisfactory, Morris Markin, president, stating that it had earned no profit in the first six months of this year.

Foreign News Causes London Market to Ease

LONDON, July 20.—(AP)—The stock exchange started cheerful with moderate rises in gilt edged securities and gold mine shares, but unfavorable German and Italian news caused dullness. Later a general easing in prices, with weakness in German bonds, caused the market to close uncertain.

Unsettled in Paris.

PARIS, July 20.—(AP)—Prices on the bourse were unsettled owing to the increased bullish influence of German developments. Under the lead of French rentes, prices dropped in all sections, the closing being heavy.

Public Aloof in Berlin.

BERLIN, July 20.—(AP)—Traders on the boerse took the political developments quietly, but the public held aloof. Firmness in the quotation abroad for the mark produced a good impression. The market closed inactive, with fractional changes.

Nation's Monetary Gold Stock Greater by $260,000

New York, July 20.—(AP)—The gold statement of the New York Federal Reserve bank today showed a net gain of $260,000 through release of metal from foreign earmark. There were no imports or exports.

METHODS OF FIGURING UTILITY DEPRECIATION REST ON NEW ACTION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 20.—Methods of figuring depreciation, the moot question between public utility companies and utility regulatory bodies for many years, probably will be the point upon which will hang the possibilities of a fight against the recent ruling of the public service commission of Alabama that holding companies in the state should declare no dividends until the commission had sanctioned the reserves set up.

It is understood that officers of the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, which controls Alabama Power, are planning to have their representatives meet with the commission for a clearer explanation of the ruling.

This, in the opinion of the Alabama Power interests, appears to indicate that the commission is aiming at a new basis for the computation of depreciation. If this is so, it is understood that the utility company managers feel that the methods they are now using to set up reserves are fair and equitable and that they will appeal the ruling to the courts.

RAILWAYS ASK CHANCE TO AID SELVES IN CRISIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 20.—Relaxed regulation of the railroads to enable those carriers to meet present competition was urged in a public statement today by the Association of Railway Executives at the Hotel Biltmore. That followed submission of a report of a group headed by Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. The roads represented operate 225,000 miles of line.

Commenting on the statement, M. J. Gormley, executive vice president of the American Railway association, said a reduction in unit costs between 1923 and 1929 resulted in a saving of $450,000,000 in expenditures in the latter year, when traffic ran at record high levels.

"The railroads are utilizing and propose to continue to utilize even more extensively their organization in the field of research and experimentation and take all other available measures in order to secure the utmost in operating efficiency," the statement said.

Ask Equal Chance.

"There is no doubt that the railroads, if given equality of opportunity, will surmount the present difficulties. To accomplish this we believe that it is essential, in addition to all that the railroads may do for themselves, that the existing regulations of the roads should be relaxed so as to restore freedom of managerial control. The railroads do not expect or seek favors from the government, but they do ask equality of freedom with all other agencies of transportation.

"Obviously they will not have such equality as long as the government is engaged in or is subsidizing any form of competitive transportation or so long as the railroads are forbidden to engage in any other form of transportation.

"If the railroads, given equal opportunity, cannot demonstrate their ability to serve the public at such rates and under such conditions as will satisfy the public's need and at

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, July 20.—Morsels of heartening news from here and there imbued the share market with fresh courage today. Second quarter earnings reports from two of three of the largest corporations, notably Corn Products and National Biscuit, made cheerful reading, advices from Paris indicating that the international petroleum conference is near agreement brightened up things for the oil shares and the improved tone of the mid-week steel reviews brought the first crop of grins to the followers of stocks of the group in a long while.

Reports were in circulation that the Interstate commerce commission is about to make some definite announcement regarding the carriers' proposals for a four system plan in eastern territory.

Bright Side of Things.

All told those with a gift for seeing the bright side of things found enough in the day's budget of domestic news to take their minds off such adverse developments as the German political disorders and the news from Canada that the dominions and Great Britain are working on a plan to sharply curtail imports of steel made in the United States.

Trading was at a little better pace than yesterday and price trends were uniformly higher. The improvement ranged from a fraction to some 2 points in the active list. Closing figures were around the best of the day and activity was greatest in the final hour

A Bank of Deposit and Discount

Since it opened for business on the first day of July in 1863, the two principal functions of the First National Bank of Chicago have been the acceptance of deposits and the making of loans.

The Divisional Organization was originated in 1905 to bring customers into immediate contact with loaning officers who specialize in the credit requirements and financial aspects of specific lines of business.

This year, as in the sixty-nine preceding years, this bank makes loans required in the current conduct of business by individuals, firms and corporations.

JOB OUTLOOK GROWS BRIGHTER AT SOME POINTS

New England and Ohio Send Cheerful News.

Boston, Mass., July 20.—(AP)—President Hoover today was asked by a New England joint conference on reemployment to consider calling a national conference to sponsor the flexible workday and week as a part solution of the unemployment problem. The conference here was attended by more than 100 executives, economists, labor and industrial leaders, college presidents, and social workers. The project indorsed is called the "New Hampshire plan."

Individual resolutions approving that plan were adopted by groups representing governors of New England states, business and industry, agriculture, and social agencies. The New England governors recommended it to governors of other states.

Labor View Presented.

The resolution adopted by the labor group said that "even if so-called good times return, there is no indication that there will be enough work to justify our eight hour day standards."

"Labor does not ask," said that resolution, "to be paid for eight hours when it works six, but it asks that the rate per hour be adequate so that the families of workers may be properly provided for. . . . Labor does not recede from its fundamental policy and sincere belief that permanent improvement can come only from an increased regard for the worker, for his share in production. . . . The need for flexibility is recognized by labor and the abuse of flexibility is known quite well from experience."

Basis of the Project.

The conference was under the auspices of the New Hampshire Unemployment Relief committee and the Massachusetts Commission on the Stabilization of Employment. Harold M. Davis of Nashua, N. H., who developed the plan, said economic conditions required that 3,000,000 persons be put to work and that proof be given the entire population that the nation's industrial machine does not "ruthlessly discard millions of workers." The plan, he said, would begin by adding 10 per cent of the unemployed to the millions now employed full or part time. Hours of work for persons would be shortened and those of machines lengthened, except for executives, foremen, and especially trained workers.

Opposes Raising Costs.

"The cost of the new plan must be paid by the workers, executives, and stockholders," Davis said. "Operating costs of business and industry cannot be increased in this emergency. . . . Concerns or departments of concerns working four days a week or more should be the first to start. Those working only one to three days per week may work out the method they prefer to use and announce their readiness to start when their minimum days per week have been restored to four by increased production."

Gov. Winant of New Hampshire, who opened the conference, said:

"Benjamin Franklin told the American people in a time of national crisis that their salvation lay not in government but in themselves. The New Hampshire principle shows the people, from wage earners through executives to stockholders, how to provide their own salvation in the present crisis."

To Restore Old Pay.

Akron, O., July 20.—(AP)—A salary and wage increase plan, effective as of July 1, and calculated to restore to all employés the 20 per cent cut from wages last January, was announced today by W. G. Klauss, president of India Tire and Rubber company.

"The plan contemplates adding to the wage and salary checks during the last six months of the fiscal year a sufficient amount to enable all employés to recover the pay they were deprived of by taking the cut," Klauss said, following a meeting of the board of directors. He declined to reveal the number of employés or pay roll total, but it was understood the plant employs approximately 400 factory workers and about 50 in office posts.

Retirement of J. M. Alderfer of Sharon Center as chairman of the board and election of Frank A. Scott, Cleveland banker, to the post was also announced.

On Six Hour Day.

India Rubber's factory employés have been on a si hour day seven days a week shift for more than a year. Klauss informed his board that so far this year both production and sales are running ahead of any previous year in the company's history.

Klauss said the working plan enables the company to employ 33 1-3 per cent more men than before its adoption and, under the present low commodity prices, wages men are receiving for six hours a day give them greater purchasing power comparatively than the wages which they were earning in 1929.

Works on U. S. Contracts.

Cleveland, O., July 20.—(AP)—There is a plant in Cleveland which is operating 24 hours a day and employing three shifts. L. P. Zinke of the Smith Engineering company, said his plant has been engaged at top speed for the last 60 days in manufacturing a controllable pitch propeller for airplanes. A considerable part of the work is being done on government contract.

Approves New Water Works.

Council Bluffs, Ia., July 20.—(AP)—The water works board of trustees has approved a construction program calling for expenditure of $65,000 for a water works building and $68,000 for a three mile main line. The work will give employment to one hundred men throughout the fall and winter, the board said.

Silk Mill Doing Better.

Phillipsburg, N. J., July 20.—(AP)—William Rosendale, general superintendent of the Standard Silk company, operator of the largest silk mill here, said today that by the middle of next month he hoped to have the entire force of 965 men and women at work in the mill. Because of business conditions, he said, the number of employés at the mill had dropped to 200, but recently a large number had been assigned to work.

RAILWAYS ASK CHANCE TO AID SELVES IN CRISIS

Other Carriers Unhindered.

"Today the railroads are required to publish their rates and charges and they are forbidden to change any rates until after thirty days' notice of the proposed change has been given. They are required to carry without prejudice all traffic offered and are forbidden to discriminate in any manner between individuals or places. No such federal restriction applies to carriers by water or by truck on the highways.

"If in the public interest restrictions of the kind mentioned among others are necessary for the railroads they would seem to be no less necessary for other transportation agencies. The problem involved is not only of national interest but touches also the individual interest of every citizen. Its proper solution is of immediate importance. The railway executives therefore ask for the earnest consideration and active support of the public to the end that adequate and efficient transportation service in every modern form may be maintained to the highest degree and with equal opportunities for all.

Work at Half Capacity.

"The railroads, with an efficient plant capable of carrying the peak load at all times and with more than 1,500,000 skilled and loyal employes, are being used at the present time to the extent of less than one-half of their demonstrated capacity, with, of course, a corresponding reduction of earnings. It is because of this situation chiefly that the credit of the railroads as a whole is at the lowest point ever touched in their entire history.

"In addition to the prevailing depression in business the steam carriers also have felt in constantly increasing measure the competition of other transportation agencies, including the motor driven vehicles on the greatly improved highways and of transportation by water. Since 1921 federal and state governments have spent more than $13,000,000,000 for highway improvement. Upon these highways, which largely parallel the railroads, there are being operated more than 23,000,000 private automobiles, approximately 3,500,000 freight trucks, and some 96,000 passenger carrying buses. All of this has come about largely in the last ten years.

Billions in Rail Bonds.

"Of the more than $12,000,000,000 of bonds outstanding $4,300,000,000 are held by insurance companies and savings banks, and probably $2,250,000,000 are held in endowment funds by colleges, hospitals, and other institutions of similar character where security of investment is sought rather than a larger rate of return but of a more speculative character. . . .

"It should not be forgotten that through a period of more than 100 years the railroads, when considered as a single system, as in effect they are, have grown to their present proportions responsive to the actual or potential demand of commerce. They could today with the existing plant carry the entire commerce of the country, while all other transportation agencies combined could carry only a small part of the reduced traffic now moving over the railroads. It follows, therefore, that the railroads will always be needed not only in time of peace but even more in time of war."

To Seek Legal Relief.

This autumn there will be an attempt to obtain legislation to release the railroads from some of the present restrictions and to impose on highway and waterway traffic the same regulations under which the railroads operate. The pledge against waste offered in today's statement was described as a frank admission that before demanding legislative aid the railroads should give tangible proof that they were putting their own house in order.

This matter within the industry, it was disclosed by the association's officials, will be brought about as follows:

In the east, two organizations will function. The President's traffic conference, a new organization, among other things, will act to end "destructive" cutting of rates to meet truck competition.

The second organization will be the eastern presidents' conference, an old organization, but with enlarged powers. It will cope with such problems as the operation of an excessive number of unprofitable passenger trains, maintenance of too large a number of terminal facilities, and indirect routing of freight.

In the west, the problem of competitive waste would be attacked by a board headed by a commissioner or impartial chairman, yet to be selected. This committee would have jurisdiction over rates, terminal facilities, and the questions involved in the provision of new competitive passenger and freight services.

Seeks Belt Line Cash.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., July 20.—A tentative finding that the Belt Railway Company of Chicago owes the government $1,977,347 on account of excess net railway earnings was announced by the interstate commerce commission. The carrier, according to the tentative report, had excess earnings above 6 per cent on the value of its property in 1921 to 1927, inclusive.

The commission valued its property at amounts ranging from $20,500,000 to $31,525,000 as a basis for computing the excess earnings. The report was issued under the part of the transportation act requiring the commission to recover from carriers one-half of net railway operating income in excess of 6 per cent on the value of the property. The carrier has a right to protest the findings before action is taken.

Personal, Property, and Salary.

Why pay more than Household's low rate?

The nationally known HOUSEHOLD LOAN PLAN offers cash loans of $300 or less to husbands and wives at reasonable rates.

Loans above $100 and up to $300 are made at a rate less than the usual small loan rate.

If you are keeping house and can make regular monthly payments, you have all the security needed for a Household loan.

Commonwealth Customers—PAY LESS—for LOANS

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

You get the full amount of the loan, and up to 25 months to repay. Interest at the reduced rate is charged only while you keep the money.

Also Salary and Auto Loans.
